David Orlofsky has nearly 20 years of diversified business experience, providing both interim management and advisory services to a variety of clients. His industry experience includes media, manufacturing, automotive, health care and retail.

Professional Experience

David recently led the team representing the unsecured creditor committee at HMX Group, the maker and seller of Hickey Freeman and Hart Schaffner Marx men's tailored clothing. He also advised the first lien lenders of BCBG MaxAzria, the women's apparel designer and retailer, on its business plan and long-term capital restructuring alternatives. In the Kodak bankruptcy, David led the team representing the retiree committee.

He also advised Friendly's Ice Cream through its successful Chapter 11 bankruptcy and operational restructuring. David served as the chairman of the board of American Laser Centers during its in-court restructuring. In addition, he represented a group of hedge funds in their due diligence of Blockbuster as a potential acquisition out of bankruptcy. David also led the team that developed a strategic plan for a post-production media company in an out-of-court restructuring.

Other assignments include a wide range of situations and roles on behalf of companies, their equity sponsors or lenders, including: financial advisor to a leading airline MRO provider; CRO of Mark IV Industries, a $1.3 billion global automotive and transportation company; financial advisor to term lenders of Metaldyne, a $1 billion automotive supplier; financial advisor to the senior lenders of Tronox, a $1.5 billion chemical company; and financial advisor to Collins & Aikman.

His interim management experience includes serving as CFO and COO at Malden Mills, a U.S.-based textile company with operations in Europe and Asia, best known as the creators of Polartec® brand fleece. At Malden Mills, David was responsible for managing operations, finance, sales and marketing and its international divisions. He was one of the key executives who led the successful restructuring of the company through a variety of turnaround efforts including strategic cost reductions, growth initiatives and the establishment of a sales and supply organization in China.

David has been with Zolfo Cooper since 1999. He has assisted in the restructurings of Washington Group International, Recoton, American Home Patient and Frederick's of Hollywood. Before joining Zolfo Cooper he was an audit manager at Arthur Andersen.
