ARTICLE II

COMPROMISE AND SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES; SUBSTANTIVE CONSOLIDATION; ASSUMPTION OF OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE PLAN

2.1 Compromise and Settlement: The Plan incorporates a proposed compromise and settlement of certain issues disputed by the Proponents, the Creditors’ Committee, the ENA Examiner and other parties in interest. These issues include whether the estates of each of the Debtors should be treated separately for purposes of making payments to Creditors, whether and to what extent proceeds from the liquidation of assets, including claims and causes of action, or from the Sale Transactions should be allocated among the Debtors based upon their respective claims of ownership to such assets, and the amount, allowance and priority of certain Intercompany Claims. The provisions of the Plan relating to substantive consolidation of the Debtors, the treatment of Intercompany Claims, and the treatment of each Class of Claims under the Plan reflect this compromise and settlement, which, upon the Effective Date, shall be binding upon the Debtors, all Creditors, and all Entities receiving any payments or other distributions under the Plan. Without limiting the foregoing, the Plan and the definitions of “Distributive Assets”, “Enron Guaranty Distributive Assets”, “Wind Guaranty Distributive Assets”, “ACFI Guaranty Distributive Assets”, “ENA Guaranty Distributive Assets”, “EPC Guaranty Distributive Assets”, “Intercompany Distributive Assets” and corresponding provisions with respect to the calculation and distribution of “Trust Interests” set forth in Article I hereof incorporate the following salient provisions of such compromise and settlement:

(a) Substantive Consolidation: The Plan Currency and, if applicable, the Trust Interests to be distributed to each holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim against each Debtor, other than the Portland Debtors, shall equal the sum of (i) seventy percent (70%) of the distribution such holder would receive if the Debtors, other than the Portland Debtors, were not substantively consolidated and (ii) thirty percent (30%) of the distribution such holder would receive if all of the Debtors’ estates, other than the estates of the Portland Debtors, were substantively consolidated, but, notwithstanding such substantive consolidation, one-half of Allowed Guaranty Claims were included in such calculation.

(b) Related Issues: The compromise and settlement of the substantive consolidation issue set forth in the Plan encompasses a global settlement of numerous issues related to or impacted by substantive consolidation, including, without limitation, characterization of Intercompany Claims, treatment of Guaranty Claims, transactions involving certain of the Debtors' structured-finance transactions and ownership of certain claims and causes of action.

(i) Intercompany Claims: The Plan Currency and, if applicable, Trust Interests to be allocated to each holder of an Intercompany Claim against another Debtor shall equal seventy percent (70%) of the distribution such holder would receive if the Debtors were not substantively consolidated.

(ii) Guaranty Claims: The Plan Currency and, if applicable, Trust Interests to be distributed to each holder of an Allowed Guaranty Claim shall equal the sum of (i) seventy percent (70%) of the distribution such holder would receive if the Debtors, other than the Portland Debtors, were not substantively consolidated and (ii) thirty percent (30%) of the distribution such holder would receive if all of the Debtors' estates, other than the estates of the Portland Debtors, were substantively consolidated, but, notwithstanding such substantive consolidation, one-half of Allowed Guaranty Claims were included in such calculation.

(iii) Ownership of Certain Assets: For purposes of calculating the Distributive Assets of ENE and ENA, the Debtors shall take, or cause to be taken, such action as is appropriate to reflect that: (a) ENA's Assets shall include ENE's preferred stock interests in Enron Canada Corp., either through a capital contribution or otherwise; (b) the preferred stock interests in Enron Canada Corp. held by Enron Canada Power Corp. and the preferred stock interests in Enron Canada Power Corp. held by Enron Canada Corp. shall be deemed cancelled or otherwise returned to their respective issuers; provided, however, that, if such cancellation or return leaves Enron Canada Power Corp. with insufficient funds to satisfy third-party obligations, Enron Canada Corp. shall contribute such monies to Enron Canada Power Corp. as are necessary as to satisfy such third-party obligations; (c) to the extent that proceeds are received in connection with the sale or contribution of Papiers Stadacona Ltée., ENE and ENA Assets shall each include fifty percent (50%) of the proceeds thereof, net of the payment of third-party obligations; and (d) to the extent that proceeds are received in connection with the sale or contribution of Bridgeline Holdings, L.P., ENA's Assets shall include all the proceeds thereof, net of the payment of third-party obligations.

(iv) Ownership of Certain Litigation Claims: The Litigation Trust Claims and the Special Litigation Trust Claims, whether or not the Litigation Trust or the Special Litigation Trust, as the case may be, is created, shall be deemed to be owned by ENE and its Creditors. In the event the Litigation Trust or the Special Litigation Trust, as the case may be, is created, Litigation Trust Interests and Special Litigation Trust Interests shall be distributed to holders of Allowed Claims, as if such Litigation Trust Claims and Special Litigation Trust Claims were owned by ENE, in accordance with the Distribution Model and Articles XXII and XXIII of the Plan.

(c) Plan Currency: By virtue of and integral to the compromise and settlement of the issues set forth in the Plan, except as provided in Sections 7.3 and 7.8 hereof with respect to ENA and certain of its subsidiaries and the holders of TOPRS, respectively, each holder of an Allowed Unsecured Claim against each Debtor, other than the Portland Debtors, shall receive the same Plan Currency regardless of the asset composition of such Debtor's estate on or subsequent to the Effective Date. Such mixture of Plan Currency shall bear direct relationship to the amount of Creditor Cash available for distribution and the value of the respective Plan Securities, as recalculated in accordance with the provisions of Section 32.1(d) of the Plan.

(d) Inter-Debtor Waivers: By virtue of and integral to the compromise and settlement of the issues set forth in the Plan, on the Effective Date, (i) each Debtor, other than the Portland Debtors, shall waive any defense, including, without limitation, defenses arising under sections 502(d) and 553(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, to Intercompany Claims asserted by another Debtor and such Claims shall be deemed to be Allowed Claims; provided, however, that such waiver and allowance shall not inhibit the assertion of any defense in the MegaClaim Litigation, the Montgomery County Litigation and any other litigation commenced by the Debtors, the Debtors in Possession, the Reorganized Debtors, or on their behalf in accordance with sections 509, 544, 547, 548, 550, 551 and 553(b) of the Bankruptcy Code or Article XXVIII of the Plan, (ii) Intercompany Claims between Debtors shall be deemed to be mutual claims arising prior to the Initial Petition Date for purposes of setoff, (iii) each of the Debtors and Debtors in Possession, other than the Portland Debtors, shall waive its right to receive distributions on any claims and causes of action such Debtor and Debtor in Possession may have against another Debtor and Debtor in Possession, other than the Portland Debtors, arising in accordance with sections 509, 544, 547, 548 and 553(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, without waiving or releasing any claims and causes of action against non-Debtor parties and (iv) except as provided in subsection (i) hereof, each Debtor and Debtor in Possession, other than the Portland Debtors, shall waive and forever release any right, claim or cause of action which has been or could have been asserted by such Debtor or Debtor in Possession against any other Debtor and Debtor in Possession, other than the Portland Debtors, including pursuant to principles of substantive consolidation, piercing the corporate veil, alter ego, domination, constructive trust and similar principles of state or federal creditors' rights laws.

(e) Governance: By virtue of and integral to the compromise and settlement of the issues set forth in the Plan, the post-Effective Date role for the ENA Examiner, the Creditors' Committee and the boards of the respective Entities contemplated pursuant to the Plan represent the interests of Creditor constituencies and provide protections to safeguard the interests of such constituencies.

2.2 Non-Substantive Consolidation: On the Effective Date, the Debtors' estates shall not be deemed to be substantively consolidated for purposes of the Plan; provided, however, that, as part of the compromise and settlement embodied in the Plan, holders of Allowed Claims and Allowed Equity Interests shall receive a portion of their distributions based upon the hypothetical pooling of the assets and liabilities of the Debtors, other than the Portland

Debtors. Any Claims against one or more of the Debtors based upon a guaranty, indemnity, co-signature, surety or otherwise, of Claims against another Debtor shall be treated as separate and distinct Claims against the estate of the respective Debtors and shall be entitled to distributions under the Plan in accordance with the provisions hereof.

2.3 Allocation of Expenses: On or prior to the Ballot Date, the Debtors shall file, after consultation with the Creditors' Committee and the ENA Examiner, a motion with the Bankruptcy Court and, in connection with the entry of the Confirmation Order, the Bankruptcy Court shall enter an order with respect to the allocation of overhead and expenses among the Debtors and the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be. Without limiting the foregoing, such allocation shall (i) reallocate overhead and expenses to the extent that the Assets of a Debtor are insufficient to satisfy the administrative professional fees and the allocable overhead of such Debtor and (ii) be predicated upon the tasks to be performed by the Debtors and the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, from and after the Confirmation Date, including, without limitation, the number of employees required to discharge such duties and obligations. Except as provided therein, all other provisions of the Bankruptcy Court's orders, dated February 25, 2002, November 21, 2002 and November 25, 2002, with respect to the allocation of overhead and expenses shall remain in full force and effect.

2.4 Wind Reserve Fund: Pursuant to the Wind Reserve Fund Order and for purposes of calculating distributions pursuant to the Plan, including, without limitation, the amount and value of Distributive Assets, Enron Guaranty Distributive Assets, Intercompany Distributive Assets and Wind Guaranty Distributive Assets, the Wind Reserve Fund shall not be included in the Assets of any of the Debtors, including Wind.

21.1 Objections to Claims; Prosecution of Disputed Claims: The Reorganized Debtors shall object to the allowance of Claims or Equity Interests filed with the Bankruptcy Court with respect to which they dispute liability, priority or amount, including, without limitation, objections to Claims which have been assigned and the assertion of the doctrine of equitable subordination with respect thereto. All objections shall be litigated to Final Order; provided, however, that the Reorganized Debtors (within such parameters as may be established by the Board of Directors of the Reorganized Debtors) shall have the authority to file, settle, compromise or withdraw any objections to Claims or Equity Interests. Unless otherwise ordered by the Bankruptcy Court, the Reorganized Debtors shall file and serve (i) objections to Claims with regard to the Yosemite and Credit Linked Notes financing transaction, the Apache/Choctaw financing transaction and the Zephyrus/Tammy financing transaction, each as described in the Disclosure Statement, no later than twenty (20) days following the Confirmation Date, unless extended for cause upon motion by the Debtors upon notice to the Creditors' Committee and the Creditors affected thereby, (ii) objections to the twenty (20) of the largest proofs of Claim filed against ENA, and identified by the ENA Examiner in a list provided no later than the Confirmation Date, no later than fifty (50) days following the Confirmation Date, unless extended for cause upon motion by the Debtors upon notice to the Creditors' Committee and the Creditors affected thereby, and (iii) all objections to other Claims as soon as practicable, but, in each instance, not later than two hundred forty (240) days following the Confirmation Date or such later date as may be approved by the Bankruptcy Court.

21.2 Estimation of Claims: Unless otherwise limited by an order of the Bankruptcy Court, the Reorganized Debtors may at any time request the Bankruptcy Court to estimate for final distribution purposes any contingent, unliquidated or Disputed Claim pursuant to section 502(c) of the Bankruptcy Code regardless of whether the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors previously objected to such Claim, and the Bankruptcy Court will retain jurisdiction to consider any request to estimate any Claim at any time during litigation concerning any objection to any Claim, including, without limitation, during the pendency of any appeal relating to any such objection. In the event that the Bankruptcy Court estimates any contingent, unliquidated or Disputed Claim, the estimated amount shall constitute either the allowed amount of such Claim or a maximum limitation on such Claim, as determined by the Bankruptcy Court; provided, however, that, if the estimate constitutes the maximum limitation on such Claim, the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, may elect to pursue supplemental proceedings to object to any ultimate allowance of such Claim. All of the aforementioned Claims objection, estimation and resolution procedures are cumulative and not necessarily exclusive of one another.

21.3 Payments and Distributions on Disputed Claims:

(a) Disputed Claims Reserve: From and after the Effective Date, and until such time as all Disputed Claims have been compromised and settled or determined by Final Order, the Disbursing Agent shall reserve and hold in escrow for the benefit of each holder of a Disputed Claim, Cash, Plan Securities, Operating Trust Interests, Remaining Asset Trust Interests, Litigation Trust Interests and Special Litigation Trust Interests and any dividends, gains or income attributable thereto, in an amount equal to the Pro Rata Share of distributions which would have been made to the holder of such Disputed Claim if it were an Allowed Claim in an amount equal to the lesser of (i) the Disputed Claim Amount, (ii) the amount in which the Disputed Claim shall be estimated by the Bankruptcy Court pursuant to section 502 of the Bankruptcy Code for purposes of allowance, which amount, unless otherwise ordered by the Bankruptcy Court, shall constitute and represent the maximum amount in which such Claim may ultimately become an Allowed Claim or (iii) such other amount as may be agreed upon by the holder of such Disputed Claim and the Reorganized Debtors; provided, however, that, under no circumstances, shall a holder of an Allowed Convenience Claim be entitled to distributions of Litigation Trust Interests, Special Litigation Trusts Interests or the proceeds thereof. Any Cash, Plan Securities, Operating Trust Interests, Remaining Asset Trust Interests, Litigation Trust Interests and Special Litigation Trust Interests reserved and held for the benefit of a holder of a Disputed Claim shall be treated as a payment and reduction on account of such Disputed Claim for purposes of computing any additional amounts to be paid in Cash or distributed in Plan Securities in the event the Disputed Claim ultimately becomes an Allowed Claim. Such Cash and any dividends, gains or income paid on account of Plan Securities, Operating Trust Interests, Remaining Asset Trust Interests, Litigation Trust Interests and Special Litigation Trust Interests reserved for the benefit of holders of Disputed Claims shall be either (x) held by the Disbursing Agent, in an interest-bearing account or (y) invested in interest-bearing obligations issued by the United States Government, or by an agency of the United States Government and guaranteed by the United States Government, and having (in either case) a maturity of not more than thirty (30) days, for the benefit of such holders pending determination of their entitlement thereto under the terms of the Plan. No payments or distributions shall be made with respect to all or any portion of any Disputed Claim pending the entire resolution thereof by Final Order.

(b) Allowance of Disputed Claims: At such time as a Disputed Claim becomes, in whole or in part, an Allowed Claim, the Disbursing Agent shall distribute to the holder thereof the distributions, if any, to which such holder is then entitled under the Plan together with any interest which has accrued on the amount of Cash and any dividends or distributions attributable to the Plan Currency or Trust Interests so reserved (net of any expenses, including any taxes of the escrow, relating thereto), but only to the extent that such interest is attributable to the amount of the Allowed Claim. Such distribution, if any, shall be made as soon as practicable after the date that the order or judgment of the Bankruptcy Court allowing such Disputed Claim becomes a Final Order but in no event more than ninety (90) days thereafter. The balance of any Cash previously reserved shall be included in Creditor Cash and the balance of any Plan Currency and Trust Interests previously reserved shall be included in future calculations of Plan Currency and Trust Interests, respectively, to holders of Allowed Claims and, to the extent determined to be distributable to holders of Allowed Equity Interests in accordance with the terms and provisions of the Plan, holders of Allowed Equity Interests.

(c) Tax Treatment of Escrow: Subject to the receipt of contrary guidance from the IRS or a court of competent jurisdiction (including the receipt by the Disbursing Agent of a private letter ruling requested by the Disbursing Agent, or the receipt of an adverse determination by the IRS upon audit if not contested by the Disbursing Agent, or a condition imposed by the IRS in connection with a private letter ruling requested by the Debtors), the Disbursing Agent shall (i) treat the escrow as one or more discrete trusts (which may be composed of separate and independent shares) for federal income tax purposes in accordance with the trust provisions of the IRC (Sections 641 et seq.) and (ii) to the extent permitted by applicable law, report consistent with the foregoing for state and local income tax purposes. All holders of Allowed Claims and Allowed Equity Interests shall report, for tax purposes, consistent with the foregoing.

(d) Funding of Escrow's Tax Obligation: If the reserve created in accordance with Section 21.3(a) hereof has insufficient funds to pay any applicable taxes imposed upon it or its assets, subject to the other provisions contained herein, the Reorganized Debtors shall advance to the escrow the funds necessary to pay such taxes (a "Tax Advance"), with such Tax Advances repayable from future amounts otherwise receivable by the escrow pursuant to Section 21.3 or otherwise. If and when a distribution is to be made from the escrow, the distributee will be charged its pro rata portion of any outstanding Tax Advance (including accrued interest). If a cash distribution is to be made to such distributee, the Disbursing Agent shall be entitled to withhold from such distributee's distribution the amount required to pay such portion of the Tax Advance (including accrued interest). If such cash is insufficient to satisfy the respective portion of the Tax Advance and there is also to be made to such distributee a distribution of other Plan Currency or interests in the trusts to be created hereunder, the distributee shall, as a condition to receiving such other assets, pay in cash to the Disbursing Agent an amount equal to the unsatisfied portion of the Tax Advance (including accrued interest). Failure to make such payment shall entitle the Disbursing Agent to reduce and permanently adjust the amounts that would otherwise be distributed to such distributee to fairly compensate the Disputed Claims reserve created in accordance with Section 21.3(a) of the Plan for the unpaid portion of the Tax Advance (including accrued interest).

ARTICLE XXII

THE LITIGATION TRUST

22.1 Establishment of the Trust: Upon the joint determination of the Debtors and, provided that the Creditors' Committee has not been dissolved in accordance with the provisions of Section 33.1 of the Plan, the Creditors' Committee, on or after the Effective Date, but in no event later than December 31st of the calendar year in which the Effective Date occurs, unless such date is otherwise extended by the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee, in their joint and absolute discretion and by notice filed with the Bankruptcy Court, the Debtors, on their own behalf and on behalf of holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 190, shall execute the Litigation Trust Agreement and shall take all other steps necessary to establish the Litigation Trust; provided, however, that, in the event that the board of directors of Reorganized ENE and, provided that the Creditors' Committee has not been dissolved in accordance with the provisions of Section 33.1 of the Plan, the Creditors' Committee determine that the aggregate distributions of Plan Currency and Trust Interests would permit a distribution to be made pursuant to Section 17.2, 18.2 or 19.2 of the Plan, then, the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, shall modify the Plan to provide for such distributions to be made. In the event that the Litigation Trust is created, in accordance with and pursuant to the terms of Section 22.4 of the Plan, the Debtors shall transfer to the Litigation Trust all of their right, title, and interest in the Litigation Trust Claims. In connection with the above-described rights and causes of action, any attorney-client privilege, work-product privilege, or other privilege or immunity attaching to any documents or communications (whether written or oral) shall be transferred to the Litigation Trust and shall vest in the Litigation Trustee and its representatives, and the Debtors, the Debtors in Possession and the Litigation Trustee are authorized to take all necessary actions to effectuate the transfer of such privileges.

(b) For all federal income tax purposes, all parties (including, without limitation, the Debtors, the Litigation Trustee and the beneficiaries of the Litigation Trust) shall treat the transfer of assets to the Litigation Trust in accordance with the terms of the Plan, as a transfer to the holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 190, followed by a transfer by such holders to the Litigation Trust and the beneficiaries of the Litigation Trust shall be treated as the grantors and owners thereof.

22.5 Valuation of Assets: As soon as possible after the creation of the Litigation Trust, but in no event later than thirty (30) days thereafter, the Litigation Trust Board shall inform, in writing, the Litigation Trustee of the value of the assets transferred to the Litigation Trust, based on the good faith determination of the Litigation Trust Board, and the Litigation Trustee shall apprise, in writing, the beneficiaries of the Litigation Trust of such valuation. (a) The Litigation Trustee, upon direction by the Litigation Trust Board and the exercise of their collective reasonable business judgment, shall, in an expeditious but orderly manner, liquidate and convert to Cash the assets of the Litigation Trust, make timely distributions and not unduly prolong the duration of the Litigation Trust. The liquidation of the Litigation Trust Claims may be accomplished either through the prosecution, compromise and settlement, abandonment or dismissal of any or all claims, rights or causes of action, or otherwise. The Litigation Trustee, upon direction by the Litigation Trust Board, shall have the absolute right to pursue or not to pursue any and all Litigation Trust Claims as it determines is in the best interests of the beneficiaries of the Litigation Trust, and consistent with the purposes of the Litigation Trust, and shall have no liability for the outcome of its decision except for any damages caused by willful misconduct or gross negligence. The Litigation Trustee may incur any reasonable and necessary expenses in liquidating and converting the assets to Cash and shall be reimbursed in accordance with the provisions of the Litigation Trust Agreement.

(b) The Litigation Trustee shall be named in the Confirmation Order or in the Litigation Trust Agreement and shall have the power (i) to prosecute for the benefit of the Litigation Trust all claims, rights and causes of action transferred to the Litigation Trust (whether such suits are brought in the name of the Litigation Trust or otherwise), and (ii) to otherwise perform the functions and take the actions provided for or permitted herein or in any other agreement executed by the Litigation Trustee pursuant to the Plan. Any and all proceeds generated from such claims, rights, and causes of action shall be the property of the Litigation Trust.

22.7 Investment Powers: The right and power of the Litigation Trustee to invest assets transferred to the Litigation Trust, the proceeds thereof, or any income earned by the Litigation Trust, shall be limited to the right and power to invest such assets (pending periodic distributions in accordance with Section 22.8 of the Plan) in Cash Equivalents; provided, however, that (a) the scope of any such permissible investments shall be limited to include only those investments, or shall be expanded to include any additional investments, as the case may be, that a liquidating trust, within the meaning of Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) may be permitted to hold, pursuant to the Treasury Regulations, or any modification in the IRS guidelines, whether set forth in IRS rulings, other IRS pronouncements or otherwise, and (b) the Litigation Trustee may expend the assets of the Litigation Trust (i) as reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Litigation Trust during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including, but not limited to, any taxes imposed on the Litigation Trust or fees and expenses in connection with litigation), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Litigation Trust (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Litigation Trust Agreement; and, provided, further, that, under no circumstances, shall the Litigation Trust segregate the assets of the Litigation Trust on the basis of classification of the holders of Litigation Trust Interests, other than with respect to distributions to be made on account of Disputed Claims and Disputed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions hereof.

22.8 Annual Distribution; Withholding: The Litigation Trustee shall distribute at least annually to the holders of Litigation Trust Interests all net cash income plus all net cash proceeds from the liquidation of assets (including as Cash for this purpose, all Cash Equivalents); provided, however, that the Litigation Trust may retain such amounts (i) as are reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Litigation Trust during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including any taxes imposed on the Litigation Trust or in respect of the assets of the Litigation Trust), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Litigation Trust (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Litigation Trust Agreement. All such distributions shall be pro rata based on the number of Litigation Trust Interests held by a holder compared with the aggregate number of Litigation Trust Interests outstanding, subject to the terms of the Plan and the Litigation Trust Agreement. The Litigation Trustee may withhold from amounts distributable to any Person any and all amounts, determined in the Litigation Trustee's reasonable sole discretion, to be required by any law, regulation, rule, ruling, directive or other governmental requirement.

22.9 Reporting Duties:

(a) Federal Income Tax: Subject to definitive guidance from the IRS or a court of competent jurisdiction to the contrary (including the receipt by the Litigation Trustee of a private letter ruling if the Litigation Trustee (or the Debtors) so requests one, or the receipt of an adverse determination by the IRS upon audit if not contested by the Litigation Trustee), the Litigation Trustee shall file returns for the Litigation Trust as a grantor trust pursuant to Treasury Regulation Section 1.671-4(a). The Litigation Trustee shall also annually send to each holder of a Litigation Trust Interest a separate statement setting forth the holder's share of items of income, gain, loss, deduction or credit and will instruct all such holders to report such items on their federal income tax returns.

(b) Allocations of Litigation Trust Taxable Income: Allocations of Litigation Trust taxable income shall be determined by reference to the manner in which an amount of cash equal to such taxable income would be distributed (without regard to any restrictions on distributions described herein) if, immediately prior to such deemed distribution, the Litigation Trust had distributed all of its other assets (valued for this purpose at their tax book value) to the holders of the Litigation Trust Interests, taking into account all prior and concurrent distributions from the Litigation Trust (including all distributions held in escrow pending the resolution of Disputed Claims). Similarly, taxable loss of the Litigation Trust will be allocated by reference to the manner in which an economic loss would be borne immediately after a liquidating distribution of the remaining Litigation Trust Claims. The tax book value of the Litigation Trust Claims for this purpose shall equal their fair market value on the Effective Date or, if later, the date such assets were acquired by the Litigation Trust, adjusted in either case in accordance with tax accounting principles prescribed by the IRC, the regulations and other applicable administrative and judicial authorities and pronouncements.

(c) Other: The Litigation Trustee shall file (or cause to be filed) any other statements, returns or disclosures relating to the Litigation Trust that are required by any governmental unit.

22.10 Trust Implementation: Upon the joint determination of the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee, on or after the Effective Date, but in no event later than December 31st of the calendar year in which the Effective Date occurs, unless such date is otherwise extended by the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee, in their joint and absolute discretion and by notice filed with the Bankruptcy Court, the Litigation Trust shall be established and become effective for the benefit of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 190. The Litigation Trust Agreement shall be filed in the Plan Supplement and shall contain provisions customary to trust agreements utilized in comparable circumstances, including, but not limited to, any and all provisions necessary to ensure the continued treatment of the Litigation Trust as a grantor trust for federal income tax purposes. All parties (including the Debtors, the Litigation Trustee and holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 190) shall execute any documents or other instruments as necessary to cause title to the applicable assets to be transferred to the Litigation Trust.

22.11 Registry of Beneficial Interests: The Litigation Trustee shall maintain a registry of the holders of Litigation Trust Interests.

22.12 Termination: The Litigation Trust shall terminate no later than the fifth (5th) anniversary of the Effective Date; provided, however, that, on or prior to the date three (3) months prior to such termination, the Bankruptcy Court, upon motion by a party in interest, may extend the term of the Litigation Trust if it is necessary to the liquidation of the Litigation Trust Claims. Notwithstanding the foregoing, multiple extensions can be obtained so long as Bankruptcy Court approval is obtained at least three (3) months prior to the expiration of each extended term.

22.13 Net Litigation Trust Recovery/Assignment of Claims :

(a) Net Judgment: Notwithstanding anything contained herein to the contrary, in the event that a defendant in a litigation brought by the Litigation Trustee for and on behalf of the Litigation Trust (i) is required by a Final Order to make payment to the Litigation Trust (the “Judgment Amount”), and (ii) is permitted by a Final Order to assert a right of setoff under section 553 of the Bankruptcy Code or applicable non-bankruptcy law against the Judgment Amount (a “Valid Setoff”), (y) such defendant shall be obligated to pay only the excess, if any, of the amount of the Judgment Amount over the Valid Setoff and (z) none of the Litigation Trust, the holders or beneficiaries of the Litigation Trust Interests shall be entitled to assert a claim against the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors with respect to the Valid Setoff.

(b) Assignment: Notwithstanding anything contained herein to the contrary, in the event that a compromise and settlement of a Litigation Trust Claim or a Final Order with respect to a Litigation Trust Claim provides for a waiver, subordination or disallowance of a defendant’s Claim or Claims against one or more of the Debtors, other than ENE, for purposes of computing amounts of distributions, (i) such Claim shall be deemed allowed at the lesser of (y) the “Estimated Allowed Amount” (which shall exclude duplicative Claims) of such Claim, as reflected on the Debtors’ claims management system, and (z) the filed proof of claim with respect thereto; provided, however, that, in the event that such proof of claim was filed in a zero-dollar ($0.00), contingent or unliquidated amount, such Claim shall be deemed allowed at the “Estimated Allowed Amount” of such Claim on the Debtors’ claims management system, (ii) such defendant shall be deemed to have assigned such Claim or Claims and right to receive distributions in accordance with the Plan to the Litigation Trust, (iii) the Disbursing Agent shall make distributions with respect to such Allowed Claims to the Litigation Trust and (iv) such defendant shall not be entitled to receive distributions from the Litigation Trust on account thereof; and, provided, further, that, in the event that any modifications are made to the “Estimated Allowed Amount” of Claims as reflected in the Debtors’ claims management system, and provided that the Creditors’ Committee and the ENA Examiner have not been dissolved or released in accordance with the provisions of Sections 33.1 and 33.4 of the Plan, respectively, the ENA Examiner and the Creditors’ Committee shall have an opportunity to review such modifications.

Special Litigation Trust Agreement and shall take all other steps necessary to establish the Special Litigation Trust; provided, however, that, in the event that the board of directors of Reorganized ENE and, provided that the Creditors' Committee has not been dissolved in accordance with the provisions of Section 33.1 of the Plan, the Creditors' Committee determine that the aggregate distributions of Plan Currency and Trust Interests would permit a distribution to be made pursuant to Section 17.2, 18.2 or 19.2 of the Plan, then, the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, shall modify the Plan to provide for such distributions to be made. On the Effective Date, and in accordance with and pursuant to the terms of Section 23.4 of the Plan, the Debtors shall transfer to the Special Litigation Trust all of their right, title, and interest in the Special Litigation Trust Claims. 24.6 Investment Powers: The right and power of the Operating Trustee to invest assets transferred to the Operating Trust, the proceeds thereof, or any income earned by the respective Operating Trusts, shall be limited to the right and power to invest such assets (pending periodic distributions in accordance with Section 24.7 of the Plan) in Cash Equivalents; provided, however, that (a) the scope of any such permissible investments shall be limited to include only those investments, or shall be expanded to include any additional investments, as the case may be, that a liquidating trust, within the meaning of Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) may be permitted to hold, pursuant to the Treasury Regulations, or any modification in the IRS guidelines, whether set forth in IRS rulings, other IRS pronouncements or otherwise, and (b) the Operating Trustee may expend the assets of the Operating Trusts (i) as reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Operating Trusts during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including, but not limited to, any taxes imposed on the Operating Trusts or fees and expenses in connection with litigation), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Operating Trusts (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Operating Trust Agreements; and, provided, further, that, under no circumstances, shall the Operating Trusts segregate the assets of the Operating Trusts on the basis of classification of the holders of respective Operating Trust Interests, other than with respect to distributions to be made on account of Disputed Claims and Disputed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions hereof.

24.7 Annual Distribution; Withholding: The Operating Trustee shall distribute at least annually to the holders of respective Operating Trust Interests all net cash income plus all net cash proceeds from the liquidation of assets (including as Cash for this purpose, all Cash Equivalents); provided, however, that the Operating Trusts may retain such amounts (i) as are reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Operating Trusts during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including any taxes imposed on the Operating Trusts or in respect of the assets of the Operating Trust), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Operating Trusts (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Operating Trust Agreements. All such distributions shall be pro rata based on the number of Operating Trust Interests held by a holder compared with the aggregate number of Operating Trust Interests outstanding, subject to the terms of the Plan and the respective Operating Trust Agreements. The Operating Trustee may withhold from amounts distributable to any Person any and all amounts, determined in the Operating Trustee's reasonable sole discretion, to be required by any law, regulation, rule, ruling, directive or other governmental requirement.

24.8 Reporting Duties:

(a) Federal Income Tax: Subject to definitive guidance from the IRS or a court of competent jurisdiction to the contrary (including the receipt by the Operating Trustee of a private letter ruling if the Operating Trustee so requests one, or the receipt of an adverse determination by the IRS upon audit if not contested by the Operating Trustee), the Operating Trustee shall file returns for the Operating Trusts as a grantor trust pursuant to Treasury Regulation Section 1.671-4(a). The Operating Trustee shall also annually send to each holder of a Operating Trust Interest a separate statement setting forth the holder's share of items of income, gain, loss, deduction or credit and shall instruct all such holders to report such items on their federal income tax returns.

(b) Allocations of Operating Trusts Taxable Income: Allocations of Operating Trusts taxable income shall be determined by reference to the manner in which an amount of cash equal to such taxable income would be distributed (without regard to any restrictions on distributions described herein) if, immediately prior to such deemed distribution, the Operating Trusts had distributed all of its other assets (valued for this purpose at their tax book value) to the holders of the Operating Trust Interests (treating any holder of a Disputed Claim, for this purpose, as a current holder of a Operating Trust Interest entitled to distributions), taking into account all prior and concurrent distributions from the Operating Trusts (including all distributions held in escrow pending the resolution of Disputed Claims). Similarly, taxable loss of the Operating Trusts shall be allocated by reference to the manner in which an economic loss would be borne immediately after a liquidating distribution of the remaining assets of an Operating Trust. The tax book value of the assets of an Operating Trust for this purpose shall equal their fair market value on the date such Operating Trusts were created or, if later, the date such assets were acquired by the Operating Trust, adjusted in either case in accordance with tax accounting principles prescribed by the IRC, the regulations and other applicable administrative and judicial authorities and pronouncements.

(c) Other: The Operating Trustee shall file (or cause to be filed) any other statements, returns or disclosures relating to the Operating Trust that are required by any governmental unit.

24.9 Trust Implementation: On or after the Confirmation Date, but in no event later than the date on which the Litigation Trust is created, the Operating Trusts shall be established and become effective for the benefit of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382. The Operating Trust Agreements shall be filed in the Plan Supplement and shall contain provisions customary to trust agreements utilized in comparable circumstances, including, but not limited to, any and all provisions necessary to ensure the continued treatment of the Operating Trusts as a grantor trust for federal income tax purposes. All parties (including the Debtors, the Operating Trustee and holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382) shall execute any documents or other instruments as necessary to cause title to the applicable assets to be transferred to the Operating Trusts.

24.10 Registry of Beneficial Interests: The Operating Trustee shall maintain a registry of the holders of Operating Trust Interests.

24.11 Termination: The Operating Trusts shall terminate no later than the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date; provided, however, that, on or prior to the date three (3) months prior to such termination, the Bankruptcy Court, upon motion by a party in interest, may extend the term of the Operating Trusts if it is necessary to the liquidation of the assets of Operating Trusts. Notwithstanding the foregoing, multiple extensions can be obtained so long as Bankruptcy Court approval is obtained at least three (3) months prior to the expiration of each extended term; provided, however, that the aggregate of all such extensions shall not exceed three (3) years from and after the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date.

24.12 Non-Transferability or Certification: Upon the creation of each Operating Trust, the beneficial interests in such Operating Trust shall be allocated on the books and records of such Operating Trust to the appropriate holders thereof, but such interests shall not be certificated and shall not be transferable by the holder thereof except through the laws of descent or distribution.

24.13 Applicability to Certain Claims and Equity Interests: In the event that allocations of Operating Trust Interests are made to holders of Allowed Claims or Allowed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions of Section 17.2, 18.2 or 19.2 of the Plan, all provisions contained in this Article XXIV shall be for the benefit of and be applicable to such holders of Allowed Claims or Allowed Equity Interests, as the case may be, as though set forth in this Article XXIV in the first instance.

ARTICLE XXV

THE REMAINING ASSET TRUSTS

25.1 Establishment of the Trusts: Upon the joint determination of the Debtors and, provided that the Creditors' Committee has not been dissolved in accordance with the provisions of Section 33.1 of the Plan, the Creditors' Committee, on or after the Confirmation Date, but in no event later than the date on which the Litigation Trust is created, and upon the joint determination of the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee, the Debtors, on their own behalf and on behalf of holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382 shall execute the respective Remaining Asset Trust Agreements and shall take all other steps necessary to establish the respective Remaining Asset Trusts. On such date, or as soon as practicable thereafter, including, without limitation, subject to appropriate or required governmental agency or other consents, and in accordance with and pursuant to the terms of Section 25.4 of the Plan, the Debtors shall transfer to the respective Remaining Asset Trusts all of their right, title, and interest in the Remaining Assets.

25.2 Purpose of the Remaining Asset Trusts: The Remaining Asset Trusts shall be established for the sole purpose of holding and liquidating the respective assets in the Remaining Asset Trusts in accordance with Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) and the terms and provisions of the Remaining Asset Trust Agreements.

(a) The transfer of assets to the Remaining Asset Trusts shall be made, as provided herein, for the benefit of the holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382, only to the extent such holders in such Classes are entitled to distributions under the Plan. In partial satisfaction of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382, the Remaining Assets shall be transferred to such holders of Allowed Claims, to be held by the Debtors on their behalf. Immediately thereafter, on behalf of the holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382, the Debtors shall transfer such assets to the Remaining Asset Trusts for the benefit of holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382, in accordance with the Plan. Upon the transfer of the Remaining Assets, the Debtors shall have no interest in or with respect to the Remaining Assets or the Remaining Asset Trusts.

(b) For all federal income tax purposes, all parties (including, without limitation, the Debtors, the Remaining Asset Trustee and the beneficiaries of the Remaining Asset Trusts) shall treat the transfer of assets to the respective Remaining Asset Trusts in accordance with the terms of the Plan, as a transfer to the holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382, followed by a transfer by such holders to the Remaining Asset Trust and the beneficiaries of the respective Remaining Asset Trusts shall be treated as the grantors and owners thereof.

25.5 Valuation of Assets: As soon as possible after the creation of the Remaining Asset Trusts, but in no event later than thirty (30) days thereafter, the respective Remaining Asset Trust Boards shall inform, in writing, the Remaining Asset Trustees of the value of the assets transferred to the respective Remaining Asset Trusts, based on the good faith determination of the respective Remaining Asset Trust Boards, and the Remaining Asset Trustees shall apprise, in writing, the beneficiaries of the respective Remaining Asset Trusts of such valuation. The valuation shall be used consistently by all parties (including the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors, the Remaining Asset Trustees and the beneficiaries of the Remaining Asset Trusts) for all federal income tax purposes.

25.6 Investment Powers: The right and power of the Remaining Asset Trustee to invest assets transferred to the Remaining Asset Trusts, the proceeds thereof, or any income earned by the respective Remaining Asset Trusts, shall be limited to the right and power to invest such assets (pending periodic distributions in accordance with Section 25.7 of the Plan) in Cash Equivalents; provided, however, that (a) the scope of any such permissible investments shall be limited to include only those investments, or shall be expanded to include any additional investments, as the case may be, that a liquidating trust, within the meaning of Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) may be permitted to hold, pursuant to the Treasury Regulations, or any modification in the IRS guidelines, whether set forth in IRS rulings, other IRS pronouncements or otherwise, and (b) the Remaining Asset Trustee may expend the assets of the Remaining Asset Trusts (i) as reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Remaining Asset Trusts during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including, but not limited to, any taxes imposed on the Remaining Asset Trusts or fees and expenses in connection with litigation), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Remaining Asset Trusts (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Remaining Asset Trust Agreements; and, provided, further, that, under no circumstances, shall the Remaining Asset Trustee segregate the assets of the Remaining Asset Trust on the basis of classification of the holders of Remaining Asset Trust Interests, other than with respect to distributions to be made on account of Disputed Claims and Disputed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions hereof.

25.7 Annual Distribution; Withholding: The Remaining Asset Trustee shall distribute at least annually to the holders of Remaining Asset Trust Interests all net cash income plus all net cash proceeds from the liquidation of assets (including as Cash for this purpose, all Cash Equivalents); provided, however, that the Remaining Asset Trusts may retain such amounts

(i) as are reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Remaining Asset Trusts during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including any taxes imposed on the Remaining Asset Trust or in respect of the assets of the Remaining Asset Trusts), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Remaining Asset Trusts (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Remaining Asset Trust Agreements. All such distributions shall be pro rata based on the number of Remaining Asset Trust Interests held by a holder compared with the aggregate number of Remaining Asset Trust Interests outstanding, subject to the terms of the Plan and the Remaining Asset Trust Agreements. The Remaining Asset Trustee may withhold from amounts distributable to any Person any and all amounts, determined in the Remaining Asset Trustee's reasonable sole discretion, to be required by any law, regulation, rule, ruling, directive or other governmental requirement.

25.8 Reporting Duties:

(a) Federal Income Tax: Subject to definitive guidance from the IRS or a court of competent jurisdiction to the contrary (including the receipt by the Remaining Asset Trustee of a private letter ruling if the Remaining Asset Trustee (or the Debtors) so requests one, or the receipt of an adverse determination by the IRS upon audit if not contested by the Remaining Asset Trustee), the Remaining Asset Trustee shall file returns for the Remaining Asset Trust as a grantor trust pursuant to Treasury Regulation Section 1.671-4(a). The Remaining Asset Trustee shall also annually send to each holder of a Remaining Asset Trust Interest a separate statement setting forth the holder's share of items of income, gain, loss, deduction or credit and shall instruct all such holders to report such items on their federal income tax returns.

(b) Allocations of Remaining Asset Trust Taxable Income: Allocations of Remaining Asset Trust taxable income shall be determined by reference to the manner in which an amount of cash equal to such taxable income would be distributed (without regard to any restrictions on distributions described herein) if, immediately prior to such deemed distribution, the Remaining Asset Trust had distributed all of its other assets (valued for this purpose at their tax book value) to the holders of the Remaining Asset Trust Interests (treating any holder of a Disputed Claim, for this purpose, as a current holder of a Remaining Asset Trust Interest entitled to distributions), taking into account all prior and concurrent distributions from the Remaining Asset Trust (including all distributions held in escrow pending the resolution of Disputed Claims). Similarly, taxable loss of the Remaining Asset Trusts shall be allocated by reference to the manner in which an economic loss would be borne immediately after a liquidating distribution of the remaining Remaining Asset Trust Assets. The tax book value of the Remaining Asset Trust Assets for this purpose shall equal their fair market value on the date such Remaining Asset Trusts were created or, if later, the date such assets were acquired by the Remaining Asset Trusts, adjusted in either case in accordance with tax accounting principles prescribed by the IRC, the regulations and other applicable administrative and judicial authorities and pronouncements.

(c) Other: The Remaining Asset Trustee shall file (or cause to be filed) any other statements, returns or disclosures relating to the Remaining Asset Trust that are required by any governmental unit.

25.9 Trust Implementation: On or after the Confirmation Date, but in no event later than the date on which the Litigation Trust is created, the Remaining Asset Trust will be established and become effective for the benefit of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382. The Remaining Asset Trust Agreement shall be filed in the Plan Supplement and shall contain provisions customary to trust agreements utilized in comparable circumstances, including, but not limited to, any and all provisions necessary to ensure the continued treatment of the Remaining Asset Trust as a grantor trust for federal income tax purposes. All parties (including the Debtors, the Remaining Asset Trustee and holders of Allowed Claims in Classes 3 through 180, 183 through 189 and 376 through 382) shall execute any documents or other instruments as necessary to cause title to the applicable assets to be transferred to the Remaining Asset Trust.

25.10 Registry of Beneficial Interests: The Remaining Asset Trustee shall maintain a registry of the holders of Remaining Asset Trust Interests.

25.11 Termination: The Remaining Asset Trusts shall terminate no later than the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date; provided, however, that, on or prior to the date three (3) months prior to such termination, the Bankruptcy Court, upon motion by a party in interest, may extend the term of the Remaining Asset Trusts if it is necessary to the liquidation of the Remaining Asset Trust Assets. Notwithstanding the foregoing, multiple extensions can be obtained so long as Bankruptcy Court approval is obtained at least three (3) months prior to the expiration of each extended term; provided, however, that the aggregate of all such extensions shall not exceed three (3) years from and after the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date.

25.12 Non-Transferability or Certification: Upon the creation of the Remaining Asset Trust, the Remaining Asset Trust Interests shall be allocated on the books and records of the Remaining Asset Trust to the appropriate holders thereof, but the Remaining Asset Trust Interests shall not be certificated and shall not be transferable by the holder thereof except through the laws of descent or distribution; provided, however, that the deemed recipient thereof may hold such Remaining Asset Trust Interests through a single wholly owned Entity.

25.13 Applicability to Certain Claims and Equity Interests: In the event that allocations of Remaining Asset Trust Interests are made to holders of Allowed Claims or Allowed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions of Section 17.2, 18.2 or 19.2 of the Plan, all provisions contained in this Article XXV shall be for the benefit of and be applicable to such holders of Allowed Equity Interests, as the case may be, as though set forth in this Article XXV in the first instance.

ARTICLE XXVI

THE PREFERRED EQUITY TRUST

26.1 Establishment of the Trust: On or after the Confirmation Date, but prior to the Effective Date, the Debtors, on their own behalf and on behalf of holders of Allowed Equity Interests in Class 383 shall execute the Preferred Equity Trust Agreement and shall take all other steps necessary to establish the Preferred Equity Trust. On such date of execution, or as soon as practicable thereafter, including, without limitation, subject to appropriate or required governmental, agency or other consents, and in accordance with and pursuant to the terms of Section 26.4 of the Plan, the Debtors shall issue to the Preferred Equity Trust the Exchanged Enron Preferred Stock subject to the Preferred Equity Trust Agreement. Notwithstanding anything contained herein to the contrary, there shall be separate classes of Preferred Equity Trust Interests that (a) separately reflect the distributions and other economic entitlements and (b) maintain the following order of priority with respect to the separate classes of Exchanged Preferred Equity Interests contributed: (1) Series 1 Exchanged Preferred Stock and Series 2 Exchanged Preferred Stock on a pari passu basis; (2) Series 3 Exchanged Preferred Stock; and (3) Series 4 Exchanged Preferred Stock.

26.2 Purpose of the Preferred Equity Trust: The Preferred Equity Trust shall be established for the sole purpose of holding the Exchanged Enron Preferred Stock in accordance with Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) and the terms and provisions of the Preferred Equity Trust Agreement. Without limiting the foregoing, the Preferred Equity Trust Agreement shall provide that, to the extent that the Preferred Equity Trust receives distributions of Plan Currency and Trust Interests under this Plan in respect of a particular class of Exchanged Preferred Equity Interests, it will redistribute such Plan Currency and Trust Interests to the holders of the separate class of Preferred Equity Trust Interests that corresponds to such class of Exchanged Preferred Equity Interests, but in no event will any holder of Preferred Equity Trust Interests receive a distribution of Exchanged Enron Preferred Stock.

26.3 Funding Expenses of the Preferred Equity Trust: In accordance with the Preferred Equity Trust Agreement and any agreements entered into in connection therewith, on the Effective Date, the Debtors shall have no obligation to provide any funding with respect to any expenses of the Preferred Equity Trust.

26.4 Transfer of Preferred Stock:

(a) The issuance of the Exchanged Enron Preferred Stock to the Preferred Equity Trust shall be made, as provided herein, for the benefit of the holders of Allowed Enron Preferred Equity Interests in Class 383.

(b) For all federal income tax purposes, all parties (including, without limitation, the Debtors, the Preferred Equity Trustee and the beneficiaries of the Preferred Equity Trust) shall treat the issuance of the Exchanged Enron Preferred Stock to the Preferred Equity Trust in accordance with the terms of the Plan, as an issuance to the holders of Allowed Enron Preferred Equity Interests in Class 383, followed by a transfer by such holders to the Preferred Equity Trust and the beneficiaries of the Preferred Equity Trust shall be treated as the grantors and owners thereof.

26.5 Investment Powers: The right and power of the Preferred Equity Trustee to invest assets transferred to the Preferred Equity Trust, the proceeds thereof, or any income earned by the Preferred Equity Trust, shall be limited to the right and power to invest such assets (pending periodic distributions in accordance with Section 26.6 of the Plan) in Cash Equivalents; provided, however, that (a) the scope of any such permissible investments shall be limited to include only those investments, or shall be expanded to include any additional investments, as the case may be, that a liquidating trust, within the meaning of Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) may be permitted to hold, pursuant to the Treasury Regulations, or any modification in the IRS guidelines, whether set forth in IRS rulings, other IRS pronouncements or otherwise, and (b) the Preferred Equity Trustee may expend the assets of the Preferred Equity Trust (i) as reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Preferred Equity Trust during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including, but not limited to, any taxes imposed on the Preferred Equity Trust or fees and expenses in connection with litigation), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Preferred Equity Trust (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Preferred Equity Trust Agreement; and, provided, further, that, under no circumstances, shall the Preferred Equity Trust segregate the assets of the Preferred Equity Trust on the basis of classification of the holders of Preferred Equity Trust Interests, other than with respect to distributions to be made on account of Disputed Claims and Disputed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions hereof or with respect to the separate classes of interests in the Preferred Equity Trust referred to in Sections 26.1 and 26.2 of the Plan.

26.6 Annual Distribution; Withholding: The Preferred Equity Trustee shall distribute at least annually to the holders of each class of Preferred Equity Trust Interests all net cash income plus all net cash proceeds from the liquidation of assets (including as Cash for this purpose, all Cash Equivalents) attributable to such class; provided, however, that the Preferred Equity Trust may retain such amounts (i) as are reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Preferred Equity Trust during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including any taxes imposed on the Preferred Equity Trust or in respect of the assets of the Preferred Equity Trust), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Preferred Equity Trust (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Preferred Equity Trust Agreement. All such distributions with respect to a given class of Preferred Equity Trust Interests shall be pro rata based on the number of Preferred Equity Trust Interests of such class held by a holder compared with the aggregate number of Preferred Equity Trust Interests of such class outstanding, subject to the terms of the Plan and the respective Preferred Equity Trust Agreement. The Preferred Equity Trustee may withhold from amounts distributable to any Person any and all amounts, determined in the Preferred Equity Trustee's reasonable sole discretion, to be required by any law, regulation, rule, ruling, directive or other governmental requirement. Notwithstanding the foregoing, any distributions to be made on account of the separate classes of Preferred Equity Trust Interests shall be made in the following order of priority with respect to the separate classes of Exchanged Preferred Equity Interests: (1) Series 1 Exchanged Preferred Stock and Series 2 Exchanged Preferred Stock on a pari passu basis; (2) Series 3 Exchanged Preferred Stock and (3) Series 4 Exchanged Preferred Stock.

26.7 Reporting Duties:

(a) Federal Income Tax: Subject to definitive guidance from the IRS or a court of competent jurisdiction to the contrary (including the receipt by the Preferred Equity Trustee of a private letter ruling if the Preferred Equity Trustee so requests one, or the receipt of an adverse determination by the IRS upon audit if not contested by the Preferred Equity Trustee), the Preferred Equity Trustee shall file returns for the Preferred Equity Trust as a grantor trust (consisting of separate shares for each class of Exchanged Enron Preferred Stock owned by the Preferred Equity Trust) pursuant to Treasury Regulation Section 1.671-4(a). The Preferred Equity Trustee shall also annually send to each holder of a Preferred Equity Trust Interest a separate statement setting forth the holder's share of items of income, gain, loss, deduction or credit and shall instruct all such holders to report such items on their federal income tax returns.

(b) Allocations of Preferred Equity Trust Taxable Income: Allocations of Preferred Equity Trust taxable income shall be determined by reference to the manner in which an amount of cash equal to such taxable income would be distributed (without regard to any restrictions on distributions described herein) if, immediately prior to such deemed distribution, the Preferred Equity Trust had distributed all of its other assets (valued for this purpose at their tax book value) to the holders of the Preferred Equity Trust Interests (treating any holder of a Disputed Claim, for this purpose, as a current holder of a Preferred Equity Trust Interest entitled to distributions), taking into account all prior and concurrent distributions from the Preferred Equity Trust (including all distributions held in escrow pending the resolution of Disputed Claims). Similarly, taxable loss of the Preferred Equity Trust shall be allocated by reference to the manner in which an economic loss would be borne immediately after a liquidating distribution of the remaining assets of the Preferred Equity Trust. The tax book value of the assets of the Preferred Equity Trust for this purpose shall equal their fair market value on the date the Preferred Equity Trust was created or, if later, the date such assets were acquired by the Preferred Equity Trust, adjusted in either case in accordance with tax accounting principles prescribed by the IRC, the regulations and other applicable administrative and judicial authorities and pronouncements.

(c) Other: The Preferred Equity Trustee shall file (or cause to be filed) any other statements, returns or disclosures relating to the Preferred Equity Trust that are required by any governmental unit.

26.8 Trust Implementation: On the Effective Date, the Preferred Equity Trust shall be established and become effective for the benefit of Allowed Enron Preferred Equity Interests in Class 383. The Preferred Equity Trust Agreement shall be filed in the Plan Supplement and shall contain provisions customary to trust agreements utilized in comparable circumstances, including, but not limited to, any and all provisions necessary to ensure the continued treatment of the Preferred Equity Trust as a grantor trust for federal income tax purposes. All parties (including the Debtors, the Preferred Equity Trustee and holders of Allowed Enron Preferred Equity Interests in Class 383) shall execute any documents or other instruments as necessary to cause title to the applicable assets to be transferred to the Preferred Equity Trust.

26.9 Registry of Beneficial Interests: The Preferred Equity Trustee shall maintain a registry of the holders of Preferred Equity Trust Interests.

26.10 Termination: The Preferred Equity Trust shall terminate no later than the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date; provided, however, that, on or prior to the date three (3) months prior to such termination, the Bankruptcy Court, upon motion by a party in interest, may extend the term of the Preferred Equity Trust if it is necessary to the liquidation of the assets of Preferred Equity Trust. Notwithstanding the foregoing, multiple extensions can be obtained so long as Bankruptcy Court approval is obtained at least three (3) months prior to the expiration of each extended term; provided, however, that the aggregate of all such extensions shall not exceed three (3) years from and after the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date.

26.11 Non-Transferability or Certification: Upon the creation of the Preferred Equity Trust, the Preferred Equity Trust Interests shall be allocated on the books and records of the Preferred Equity Trust to the appropriate holders thereof, but the Preferred Equity Trust Interests shall not be certificated and shall not be transferable by the holder thereof except through the laws of descent or distribution.

ARTICLE XXVII

THE COMMON EQUITY TRUST

27.1 Establishment of the Trusts: On or after the Confirmation Date, but prior to the Effective Date, the Debtors, on their own behalf and on behalf of holders of Allowed Enron Common Equity Interests in Class 384, shall execute the Common Equity Trust Agreement and shall take all other steps necessary to establish the respective Common Equity Trust. On such date of execution, or as soon as practicable thereafter, including, without limitation, subject to appropriate or required governmental, agency or other consents, and in accordance with and pursuant to the terms of Section 27.4 of the Plan, the Debtors shall issue to the Common Equity Trust the Exchanged Enron Common Stock subject to the Common Equity Trust Agreement.

27.2 Purpose of the Common Equity Trust: The Common Equity Trust shall be established for the sole purpose of holding the Exchanged Enron Common Stock in accordance with Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) and the terms and provisions of the Common Equity Trust Agreement. Without limiting the foregoing, the Common Equity Trust Agreement shall provide that, to the extent that the Common Equity Trust receives distributions of Plan Currency and Trust Interests under this Plan, it will redistribute such Plan Currency and Trust Interests to the holders to the Common Equity Trust Interests, but in no event will any holder of Common Equity Trust Interests receive a distribution of Exchanged Enron Common Stock.

27.3 Funding Expenses of the Common Equity Trust: In accordance with the Common Equity Trust Agreement and any agreements entered into in connection therewith, on the Effective Date, the Debtors shall have no obligation to provide any funding with respect to any expenses of the Common Equity Trust.

27.4 Transfer of Common Stock:

(a) The issuance of the Exchanged Enron Common Stock to the Common Equity Trust shall be made, as provided herein, for the benefit of the holders of Allowed Enron Common Equity Interests in Class 384.

(b) For all federal income tax purposes, all parties (including, without limitation, the Debtors, the Common Equity Trustee and the beneficiaries of the Common Equity Trust) shall treat the issuance of the Exchanged Enron Common Stock to the Common Equity Trust in accordance with the terms of the Plan, as an issuance to the holders of Allowed Enron Common Equity Interests in Class 384, followed by a transfer by such holders to the Common Equity Trust and the beneficiaries of the Common Equity Trust shall be treated as the grantors and owners thereof.

27.5 Investment Powers: The right and power of the Common Equity Trustee to invest assets transferred to the Common Equity Trust, the proceeds thereof, or any income earned by the Common Equity Trust, shall be limited to the right and power to invest such assets (pending periodic distributions in accordance with Section 27.6 of the Plan) in Cash Equivalents; provided, however, that (a) the scope of any such permissible investments shall be limited to include only those investments, or shall be expanded to include any additional investments, as the case may be, that a liquidating trust, within the meaning of Treasury Regulation Section 301.7701-4(d) may be permitted to hold, pursuant to the Treasury Regulations, or any modification in the IRS guidelines, whether set forth in IRS rulings, other IRS pronouncements or otherwise, and (b) the Common Equity Trustee may expend the assets of the Common Equity Trust (i) as reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Common Equity Trust during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including, but not limited to, any taxes imposed on the Common Equity Trust or fees and expenses in connection with litigation), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Common Equity Trust (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Common Equity Trust Agreement; and, provided, further, that, under no circumstances, shall the Common Equity Trust segregate the assets of the Common Equity Trust on the basis of classification of the holders of Common Equity Trust Interests, other than with respect to distributions to be made on account of Disputed Claims and Disputed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions hereof.

27.6 Annual Distribution; Withholding: The Common Equity Trustee shall distribute at least annually to the holders of Common Equity Trust Interests all net cash income plus all net cash proceeds from the liquidation of assets (including as Cash for this purpose, all Cash Equivalents); provided, however, that the Common Equity Trust may retain such amounts (i) as are reasonably necessary to meet contingent liabilities and to maintain the value of the assets of the Common Equity Trust during liquidation, (ii) to pay reasonable administrative expenses (including any taxes imposed on the Common Equity Trust or in respect of the assets of the Common Equity Trust), and (iii) to satisfy other liabilities incurred or assumed by the Common Equity Trust (or to which the assets are otherwise subject) in accordance with the Plan or the Common Equity Trust Agreement. All such distributions shall be pro rata based on the number of Common Equity Trust Interests held by a holder compared with the aggregate number of Common Equity Trust Interests outstanding, subject to the terms of the Plan and the respective Common Equity Trust Agreement. The Common Equity Trustee may withhold from amounts distributable to any Person any and all amounts, determined in the Common Equity Trustee's reasonable sole discretion, to be required by any law, regulation, rule, ruling, directive or other governmental requirement.

27.7 Reporting Duties:

(a) Federal Income Tax: Subject to definitive guidance from the IRS or a court of competent jurisdiction to the contrary (including the receipt by the Common Equity Trustee of a private letter ruling if the Common Equity Trustee so requests one, or the receipt of an adverse determination by the IRS upon audit if not contested by the Common Equity Trustee), the Common Equity Trustee shall file returns for the Common Equity Trust as a grantor trust pursuant to Treasury Regulation Section 1.671-4(a). The Common Equity Trustee shall also annually send to each holder of a Common Equity Trust Interest a separate statement setting forth the holder's share of items of income, gain, loss, deduction or credit and shall instruct all such holders to report such items on their federal income tax returns.

(b) Allocations of Common Equity Trust Taxable Income: Allocations of Common Equity Trust taxable income shall be determined by reference to the manner in which an amount of cash equal to such taxable income would be distributed (without regard to any restrictions on distributions described herein) if, immediately prior to such deemed distribution, the Common Equity Trust had distributed all of its other assets (valued for this purpose at their tax book value) to the holders of the Common Equity Trust Interests (treating any holder of a Disputed Claim, for this purpose, as a current holder of a Common Equity Trust Interest entitled to distributions), taking into account all prior and concurrent distributions from the Common Equity Trust (including all distributions held in escrow pending the resolution of Disputed Claims). Similarly, taxable loss of the Common Equity Trust shall be allocated by reference to the manner in which an economic loss would be borne immediately after a liquidating distribution of the remaining assets of the Common Equity Trust. The tax book value of the assets of the Common Equity Trust for this purpose shall equal their fair market value on the date the Common Equity Trust was created or, if later, the date such assets were acquired by the Common Equity Trust, adjusted in either case in accordance with tax accounting principles prescribed by the IRC, the regulations and other applicable administrative and judicial authorities and pronouncements.

(c) Other: The Common Equity Trustee shall file (or cause to be filed) any other statements, returns or disclosures relating to the Common Equity Trust that are required by any governmental unit.

27.8 Trust Implementation: On the Effective Date, the Common Equity Trust shall be established and become effective for the benefit of Allowed Enron Common Equity Interests in Class 384. The Common Equity Trust Agreement shall be filed in the Plan Supplement and shall contain provisions customary to trust agreements utilized in comparable circumstances, including, but not limited to, any and all provisions necessary to ensure the continued treatment of the Common Equity Trust as a grantor trust for federal income tax purposes. All parties (including the Debtors, the Common Equity Trustee and holders of Allowed Enron Common Equity Interests in Class 384) shall execute any documents or other instruments as necessary to cause title to the applicable assets to be transferred to the Common Equity Trust.

27.9 Registry of Beneficial Interests: The Common Equity Trustee shall maintain a registry of the holders of Common Equity Trust Interests.

27.10 Termination: The Common Equity Trust shall terminate no later than the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date; provided, however, that, on or prior to the date three (3) months prior to such termination, the Bankruptcy Court, upon motion by a party in interest, may extend the term of the Common Equity Trust if it is necessary to the liquidation of the assets of Common Equity Trust. Notwithstanding the foregoing, multiple extensions can be obtained so long as Bankruptcy Court approval is obtained at least three (3) months prior to the expiration of each extended term; provided, however, that the aggregate of all such extensions shall not exceed three (3) years from and after the third (3rd) anniversary of the Confirmation Date.

27.11 Non-Transferability or Certification: Upon the creation of the Common Equity Trust, the Common Equity Trust Interests shall be allocated on the books and records of the Common Equity Trust to the appropriate holders thereof, but the Common Equity Trust Interests shall not be certificated and shall not be transferable by the holder thereof except through the laws of descent or distribution.

On or prior to the Effective Date, and periodically thereafter, the Debtors shall deposit into such Disbursement Account(s) all Cash and Cash Equivalents of the Debtors, less amounts reasonably determined by the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, as necessary to fund the ongoing implementation of the Plan and operations of the Reorganized Debtors.

ARTICLE XXXII

32.1 Time and Manner of Distributions: Distributions under the Plan shall be made to each holder of an Allowed Unsecured Claim as follows:

(a) Initial Distributions of Cash: On or as soon as practicable after the Effective Date, the Disbursing Agent shall distribute, or cause to be distributed, to the Reorganized Debtor Plan Administrator on behalf of holders of Disputed Claims, and to each holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim, an Allowed Guaranty Claim, an Allowed Intercompany Claim and an Allowed Convenience Claim, such Creditor's share, if any, of Creditor Cash as determined pursuant to Articles VII, X, XI, XII, XIII, XIV, XV and XVI hereof.

(i) Prisma: Distribution of Prisma Common Stock to holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims, Allowed Guaranty Claims and Allowed Intercompany Claims shall commence upon (a) allowance of General Unsecured Claims in an amount which would result in the distribution of thirty percent (30%) of the issued and outstanding shares of Prisma Common Stock and (b) obtaining the requisite consents for the transfer of the Prisma Assets to Prisma and the issuance of the Prisma Common Stock;

(ii) CrossCountry: Distributions of CrossCountry Common Equity to holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims, Allowed Guaranty Claims and Allowed Intercompany Claims shall commence upon (a) allowance of General Unsecured Claims in an amount which would result in the distribution of thirty percent (30%) of the issued and outstanding shares of CrossCountry Common Equity and (b) obtaining the requisite consents for the issuance of the CrossCountry Common Equity; and provided, however, that, in the event that a Sale Transaction has occurred, or an agreement for a Sale Transaction has been entered into and has not been terminated, prior to the satisfaction of the conditions for the distribution of such Plan Securities pursuant to this Section 32.1(c), the proceeds thereof shall be distributed in accordance with the provisions of Section 32.1(a) of the Plan in lieu of the Plan Securities that are the subject of such Sale Transaction or agreement, or in the case of a Sale Transaction involving a sale of all or substantially all of the assets of an issuer of Plan Securities, the Plan Securities of such issuer (unless the agreement for such Sale Transaction terminates subsequent to the satisfaction of such applicable conditions in this Section 32.1(c), in which case, such Plan Securities shall be distributed pursuant to this Section 32.1(c)), with the balance of such Plan Securities distributed in accordance with the provisions of this Section 32.1(c); and, provided, further, that, if in the joint determination of the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee, the Prisma Trust Interests, CrossCountry Trust Interests and/or PGE Trust Interests are created, on the Effective Date, such interests shall be allocated to the appropriate holders thereof in accordance with Article XXIV of the Plan in lieu of the distributions of Prisma Common Stock, CrossCountry Common Equity and/or PGE Common Stock, respectively; and, provided, further, that during the period of retention of any such Plan Securities, the Disbursing Agent shall distribute, or cause to be distributed, to the Reorganized Debtor Plan Administrator on behalf of holders of Disputed Claims, and to each holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim, an Allowed Guaranty Claim and an Allowed Intercompany Claim, an amount equal to such Creditor's share, if any, of dividends declared and distributed with respect to any of the Plan Securities; and, provided, further, until such time as all Disputed Claims have been allowed by Final Order, in whole or in part, the Disbursing Agent shall hold in reserve at least one percent (1%) of the Plan Securities to be distributed in accordance with Section 21.3 of the Plan and this Section 32.1.

(d) Distribution of Trust Interests: In the event that the Litigation Trust or the Special Litigation Trust is created, on or as soon as practicable thereafter, the Disbursing Agent shall commence distributions, or cause to be distributed, to the Reorganized Debtor Plan Administrator on behalf of holders of Disputed Claims, and to each holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim, an Allowed Guaranty Claim, and an Allowed Intercompany Claim, such Creditor's share, if any, of Trust Interests as determined pursuant to Articles VII, X, XI, XII, XIII, XIV, XV and XVI hereof, and semi-annually thereafter until such time as there is no longer any Trust Interests to distribute.

(e) Allocation of Remaining Asset Trust Interests: In the event the Remaining Asset Trusts are created, on or as soon as practicable thereafter, the Disbursing Agent shall allocate, or cause to be allocated, to the Reorganized Debtor Plan Administrator on behalf of holders of Disputed Claims, and to each holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim, an Allowed Guaranty Claim, and an Allowed Intercompany Claim, such Creditor's share, if any, of Remaining Asset Trust Interests as determined pursuant to Articles VII, X, XI, XII, XIII, XIV, XV and XVI hereof.

(f) Recalculation of Distributive Assets, Guaranty Distributive Assets and Intercompany Distributive Assets: Notwithstanding anything contained herein to the contrary, in connection with each of the distributions of Plan Currency to be made in accordance with this Section 32.1, the Disbursing Agent shall calculate, or cause to be calculated, Distributive Assets, Enron Guaranty Distributive Assets, Wind Guaranty Distributive Assets, ACFI Guaranty Distributive Assets, ENA Guaranty Distributive Assets, EPC Guaranty Distributive Assets and Intercompany Distributive Assets as of the date thereof, taking into account, among other things, (i) sales of Remaining Assets, prior to the creation of the Remaining Asset Trust(s), (ii) proceeds, if any, of Sale Transactions and (iii) the allowance or disallowance of Disputed Claims, as the case may be.

(g) Prior and Subsequent Bankruptcy Court Orders Regarding Non-Conforming Distributions: For purposes of calculating distributions to be made in accordance with Section 32.1 of the Plan, including, without limitation, the payment of Allowed Claims in full, the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors, the Disbursing Agent and the Reorganized Debtor Plan Administrator shall take into account those payments made or to be made to holders of Allowed Enron Senior Note Claims and Allowed Enron Subordinated Debenture Claims pursuant to the provisions of prior or subsequent orders of the Bankruptcy Court.

32.2 Timeliness of Payments: Any payments or distributions to be made pursuant to the Plan shall be deemed to be timely made if made within twenty (20) days after the dates specified in the Plan. Whenever any distribution to be made under this Plan shall be due on a day other than a Business Day, such distribution shall instead be made, without interest, on the immediately succeeding Business Day, but shall be deemed to have been made on the date due.

32.3 Distributions by the Disbursing Agent: All distributions under the Plan shall be made by the Disbursing Agent at the direction of the Reorganized Debtor Plan Administrator. The Disbursing Agent shall be deemed to hold all property to be distributed hereunder in trust for the Persons entitled to receive the same. The Disbursing Agent shall not hold an economic or beneficial interest in such property.

32.4 Manner of Payment under the Plan: Unless the Entity receiving a payment agrees otherwise, any payment in Cash to be made by the Reorganized Debtors shall be made, at the election of the Reorganized Debtors, by check drawn on a domestic bank or by wire transfer from a domestic bank; provided, however, that no Cash payments shall be made to a holder of an Allowed Claim or an Allowed Equity Interest until such time as the amount payable thereto is equal to or greater than Ten Dollars ($10.00).

32.5 Delivery of Distributions: Subject to the provisions of Rule 9010 of the Bankruptcy Rules and the TOPRS Stipulation, and except as provided in Section 32.4 of the Plan, distributions and deliveries to holders of Allowed Claims shall be made at the address of each such holder as set forth on the Schedules filed with the Bankruptcy Court unless superseded by the address set forth on proofs of claim filed by such holders, or at the last known address of such a holder if no proof of claim is filed or if the Debtors has been notified in writing of a change of address. Subject to the provisions of Section 9.1 of the Plan and the TOPRS Stipulation, distributions for the benefit of holders of Enron Senior Notes shall be made to the appropriate Enron Senior Notes Indenture Trustee. Each such Enron Senior Note Indenture Trustee shall in turn administer the distribution to the holders of Allowed Enron Senior Note Claims in accordance with the Plan and the applicable Enron Senior Notes Indenture. The Enron Senior Notes Indenture Trustee shall not be required to give any bond or surety or other security for the performance of their duties unless otherwise ordered by the Bankruptcy Court.

32.6 Fractional Securities: No fractional shares of Plan Securities shall be issued. Fractional shares of Plan Securities shall be rounded to the next greater or next lower number of shares in accordance with the following method: (a) fractions of one-half (1/2) or greater shall be rounded to the next higher whole number, and (b) fractions of less than one-half (1/2) shall be rounded to the next lower whole number. The total number of shares or interests of Plan Securities to be distributed to a Class hereunder shall be adjusted as necessary to account for the rounding provided for in this Section 32.6. In the event that, as a result of such rounding, a holder of a Claim would receive no distribution pursuant to this Plan, such holder shall receive Cash in lieu of the fractional shares of Plan Securities to purchase fractional shares such holder was entitled to receive.

32.7 Undeliverable Distributions:

(a) Holding of Undeliverable Distributions: If any distribution to any holder is returned to the Reorganized Debtors as undeliverable, no further distributions shall be made to such holder unless and until the Reorganized Debtors is notified, in writing, of such holder's then-current address. Undeliverable distributions shall remain in the possession of the Reorganized Debtors until such time as a distribution becomes deliverable. All Entities ultimately receiving undeliverable Cash shall not be entitled to any interest or other accruals of any kind. Nothing contained in the Plan shall require the Reorganized Debtors to attempt to locate any holder of an Allowed Claim or an Allowed Equity Interest.

(b) Failure to Claim Undeliverable Distributions: On or about the second (2nd) anniversary of the Effective Date, the Reorganized Debtors shall file a list with the Bankruptcy Court setting forth the names of those Entities for which distributions have been made hereunder and have been returned as undeliverable as of the date thereof. Any holder of an Allowed Claim or an Allowed Equity Interest that does not assert its rights pursuant to the Plan to receive a distribution within three (3) years from and after the Effective Date shall have its entitlement to such undeliverable distribution discharged and shall be forever barred from asserting any entitlement pursuant to the Plan against the Reorganized Debtors or its property. In such case, any consideration held for distribution on account of such Claim or Equity Interest shall revert to the Reorganized Debtors for redistribution to holders of Allowed Claims and Allowed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions of Section 32.1 hereof.

32.8 Compliance with Tax Requirements: The Reorganized Debtors shall comply with all applicable tax withholding and reporting requirements imposed on it by any governmental unit, and all distributions pursuant to the Plan shall be subject to such withholding and reporting requirements.

32.9 Time Bar to Cash Payments: Checks issued by the Reorganized Debtors on account of Allowed Claims shall be null and void if not negotiated within ninety (90) days from and after the date of issuance thereof. Requests for reissuance of any check shall be made directly to the Reorganized Debtors by the holder of the Allowed Claim with respect to which such check originally was issued. Any claim in respect of such a voided check shall be made on or before the later of (a) the second (2nd) anniversary of the Effective Date or (b) ninety (90) days after the date of issuance of such check, if such check represents a final distribution hereunder on account of such Claim. After such date, all Claims in respect of voided checks shall be discharged and forever barred and the Reorganized Debtors shall retain all monies related thereto for the sole purpose of adding such monies to Creditor Cash for purposes of redistribution to Creditors in accordance with the terms and provisions hereof.

32.10 Distributions After Effective Date: Distributions made after the Effective Date to holders of Claims that are not Allowed Claims as of the Effective Date, but which later become Allowed Claims, shall be deemed to have been made on the Effective Date.

32.11 Setoffs: The Reorganized Debtors may, pursuant to applicable non-bankruptcy law, set off against any Allowed Claim and the distributions to be made pursuant to the Plan on account thereof (before any distribution is made on account of such Claim), the claims, rights and causes of action of any nature the Debtors or the Reorganized Debtors may hold against the holder of such Allowed Claim; provided, however, that neither the failure to effect such a setoff nor the allowance of any Claim hereunder shall constitute a waiver or release by the Debtors, Debtors in Possession or the Reorganized Debtors of any such claims, rights and causes of action that the Debtors, Debtors in Possession or the Reorganized Debtors may possess against such holder; and, provided, further, that nothing contained herein is intended to limit the ability of any Creditor to effectuate rights of setoff subject to the provisions of section 553 of the Bankruptcy Code.

32.12 Allocation of Plan Distributions Between Principal and Interest: To the extent that any Allowed Claim entitled to a distribution under the Plan is comprised of indebtedness and accrued but unpaid interest thereon, such distribution shall be allocated first to the principal amount of the Claim (as determined for federal income tax purposes) and then, to the extent the consideration exceeds the principal amount of the Claim, to accrued but unpaid interest.

32.13 Surrender of Instruments: Except to the extent evidenced by electronic entry, as a condition of receiving any distribution under the Plan, each holder of a certificated instrument or note must surrender such instrument or note to the appropriate Indenture Trustee or Disbursing Agent or its designee, unless such certificated instrument or note is being reinstated or left unimpaired under the Plan. Any holder of such instrument or note that fails to (i) surrender such instrument or note, or (ii) execute and deliver an affidavit of loss and/or indemnity reasonably satisfactory to the appropriate Indenture Trustee or Disbursing Agent before the first (1st) anniversary of the Effective Date shall be deemed to have forfeited all rights and claims and may not participate in any distribution under the Plan. Any distribution so forfeited shall become the property of the Reorganized Debtors.

32.14 Cancellation of Existing Securities and Agreements: On the latest to occur of (a) the Effective Date, (b) the entry of a Final Order resolving all Claims in the Chapter 11 Cases and (c) the final distribution made to holders of Allowed Claims and Allowed Equity Interests in accordance with Article XXXII of the Plan, any document, agreement, or instrument evidencing any Claim shall be deemed cancelled without further act or action under any applicable agreement, law, regulation, order or rule and the obligations of the Debtors under such documents, agreements or instruments evidencing such Claims shall be discharged; provided, however, that the Enron Subordinated Indenture, the Enron Senior Notes Indentures, the Enron TOPRS Indentures, the ETS Indentures and the ENA Indentures shall continue in effect for the purposes of (i) allowing the Enron Subordinated Indenture Trustee, the Enron Senior Notes Indenture Trustees, the Enron TOPRS Indenture Trustee, the ETS Indenture Trustee and the ENA Indenture Trustee to make any distributions pursuant to the Plan and the TOPRS Stipulation, as the case may be, and to perform such other necessary functions with respect thereto, and (ii) permitting the Enron Senior Notes Indenture Trustees, the Enron Subordinated Indenture Trustee, the Enron TOPRS Indenture Trustee, the ETS Indenture Trustee and the ENA Indenture Trustee to maintain and assert any rights or liens for reasonable fees, costs, and expenses under the Indentures; and, provided, further, that, except as otherwise provided herein, nothing in this Plan shall impair, affect or adversely affect the related transactions and the rights of the parties thereto; and, provided, further, that distributions to holders of the TOPRS shall be made by National City Bank as distribution agent pursuant to a distribution agency agreement to be entered into between the Debtors and National City Bank.

32.15 Certain Indenture Trustee Fees and Expenses: Except as otherwise provided in decretal paragraph 12 of the TOPRS Stipulation, in the event that the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee agree, in their joint and absolute discretion, as to the Indenture Trustee Claims incurred during the period up to and including the Effective Date, such Indenture Trustee Claims shall be paid in Cash by the Reorganized Debtors on the Effective Date, or as soon as practicable thereafter, without the need for the Indenture Trustees to file an application for allowance thereof with the Bankruptcy Court. In the event that either the Debtors or the Creditors' Committee disagree with an Indenture Trustee as to the reasonableness of all or a portion of the fees and expenses requested in an Indenture Trustee Claim, such Indenture Trustee may, at its sole discretion, request that the Bankruptcy Court (i) determine the reasonableness and allowance of such contested amounts and (ii) direct the Reorganized Debtors to pay such additional amounts determined to be reasonable, if any, and the Debtors, Creditors' Committee and any other creditor or party in interest may object thereto. To the extent that the Reorganized Debtors fail to pay any Indenture Trustee Claim in full, whether as a result of the Creditors' Committee's or the Debtors' objection as to reasonableness, Bankruptcy Court's determination as to reasonableness or an Indenture Trustee's determination not to request payment therefor, such Indenture Trustee shall have the right to assert its lien and priority rights pursuant to the applicable Indenture for payment of any unpaid amount upon any payment or other distribution to be made in accordance with the provisions contained herein. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Reorganized Debtors shall be responsible and, upon presentation of supporting documentation in form and substance satisfactory to the Reorganized Debtors, satisfy the reasonable direct out-of-pocket costs and expenses incurred by the Indenture Trustees in connection with making distributions pursuant to the Plan; provided, however, that, under no circumstances, shall the Reorganized Debtors be responsible for any indemnification obligations, costs and expenses of any of the Indenture Trustees associated with the negligence or willful misconduct of an Indenture Trustee in making any such distributions.

32.16 Cancellation of PGE, CrossCountry Distributing Company and Prisma Securities: Upon the issuance of each of the PGE Common Stock, CrossCountry Common Equity and Prisma Common Stock to holders of Allowed Claims or the Operating Trusts, the Existing PGE Common Stock, stock or other equity interests of CrossCountry Distributing Company held by ENE and/or any of its subsidiaries, and stock of Prisma held by ENE and/or any of its subsidiaries, respectively, shall be cancelled; provided, however, that, notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event that (a) the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee, in their joint and absolute discretion, determine to have issued preferred stock of PGE, CrossCountry Distributing Company or one of the alternative structures contemplated pursuant to Section 37.3 of the Plan, and (b) such preferred stock is issued subsequent to the Confirmation Date and prior to the issuance of the PGE Common Stock, or the CrossCountry Common Equity, as the case may be, to holders of Allowed Claims or the Operating Trusts, such preferred stock shall not be cancelled.

32.17 Record Date: On the Record Date, registers of the respective Indenture Trustees shall be closed and the Indenture Trustees shall have no obligation to recognize any transfers of Claims arising under or related to the Enron Subordinated Indenture, the Enron Senior Notes Indentures, the ETS Indentures, the Enron TOPRS Indentures or the ENA Indentures occurring from and after the Record Date.

32.18 Applicability to Certain Claims and Equity Interests: Notwithstanding anything contained in this Article XXXII to the contrary, in the event that (a) distributions of Cash, Plan Securities or Trust Interests or (b) allocations of Remaining Asset Trust Interests are made to holders of Allowed Claims or Allowed Equity Interests in accordance with the provisions of Section 17.2, 18.2 or 19.2 of the Plan, all provisions contained in this Article XXXII shall be for the benefit of and be applicable to such holders of Allowed Claims or Allowed Equity Interests, as the case may be, as though set forth in this Article XXXII in the first instance.

action commenced by or on behalf of the Debtors in Possession, including any actions prosecuted by the Creditors' Committee and the Employee Committee, (iii) identified or subsequently identified as a wrongful actor in the "Report of Investigation by the Special Investigative Committee of the Board of Directors of Enron Corp.," dated February 1, 2002, (iv) identified or subsequently identified in a report by the Enron Examiner or the ENA Examiner as having engaged in acts of dishonesty or willful misconduct detrimental to the interests of the Debtors, or (v) adjudicated or subsequently adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction to have engaged in acts of dishonesty or willful misconduct detrimental to the interests of the Debtors or (b) any claim (i) with respect to any loan, advance or similar payment by the Debtors to any such person, (ii) with respect to any contractual obligation owed by such person to the Debtors, (iii) relating to such person's knowing fraud, or (iv) to the extent based upon or attributable to such person gaining in fact a personal profit to which such person was not legally entitled, including, without limitation, profits made from the purchase or sale of equity securities of the Debtors which are recoverable by the Debtors pursuant to section 16(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended; and, provided, further, that the foregoing is not intended, nor shall it be construed, to release any of the Debtors' claims that may exist against the Debtors' directors and officers liability insurance.

42.7 Exculpation: None of the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors, the Creditors' Committee, the Employee Committee, the ENA Examiner (other than those functions defined by the Investigative Orders), the Indenture Trustees, and any of their respective directors, officers, employees, members, attorneys, consultants, advisors and agents (acting in such capacity), shall have or incur any liability to any Entity for any act taken or omitted to be taken in connection with and subsequent to the commencement of the Chapter 11 Cases, the formulation, preparation, dissemination, implementation, confirmation or approval of the Plan or any compromises or settlements contained therein, the Disclosure Statement related thereto or any contract, instrument, release or other agreement or document provided for or contemplated in connection with the consummation of the transactions set forth in the Plan; provided, however, that the foregoing provisions of this Section 42.7 shall not affect the liability of (a) any Entity that otherwise would result from any such act or omission to the extent that such act or omission is determined in a Final Order to have constituted gross negligence or willful misconduct or (b) the professionals of the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtors, the Creditors' Committee, the Employee Committee, the ENA Examiner or the Indenture Trustees to their respective clients pursuant to DR 6-102 of the New York Code of Professional Responsibility. Any of the foregoing parties in all respects shall be entitled to rely upon the advice of counsel with respect to their duties and responsibilities under the Plan.

42.8 Preservation of Rights of Action: Except as otherwise provided in the Plan, including, without limitation, Articles XXII and XXIII of the Plan, or in any contract, instrument, release or other agreement entered into in connection with the Plan, in accordance with section 1123(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Reorganized Debtors shall retain sole and exclusive authority to enforce any claims, rights or causes of action that the Debtors, the Debtors in Possession or their chapter 11 estates may hold against any Entity, including any claims, rights or causes of action arising under sections 541, 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551 and 553 of the Bankruptcy Code.

42.9 Injunction on Actions: Except as provided in the Plan, as of the Effective Date, all non-Debtor entities are permanently enjoined from commencing or continuing in any manner, any action or proceeding, whether directly, derivatively, on account of or respecting any claim, debt, right or cause of action of the Debtors, the Debtors in Possession or the Reorganized Debtors which the Debtors, the Debtors in Possession or the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, retain sole and exclusive authority to pursue in accordance with Section 28.1 of the Plan or which has been released pursuant to the Plan, including, without limitation, pursuant to Sections 2.1, 28.3 and 42.6 of the Plan; provided, however, that, except with regard to the Debtors, the Debtors in Possession and the Reorganized Debtors, such injunction is not intended, nor shall it be construed to, extend to the ongoing prosecution of the Class Actions.

42.10 Payment of Statutory Fees: All fees payable pursuant to section 1930 of title 28 of the United States Code, as determined by the Bankruptcy Court at the Confirmation Hearing, shall be paid on the Effective Date.

42.13 Post-Confirmation Date Fees and Expenses: From and after the Confirmation Date, the Reorganized Debtors shall, in the ordinary course of business and without the necessity for any approval by the Bankruptcy Court, (a) retain such professionals and (b) pay the reasonable professional fees and expenses incurred by the Reorganized Debtors, the Creditors' Committee and the ENA Examiner related to implementation and consummation of or consistent with the provisions of the Plan, including, without limitation, reasonable fees and expenses of the Indenture Trustees incurred in connection with the distributions to be made pursuant to the Plan.

42.14 Severability: If, prior to the Confirmation Date, any term or provision of the Plan shall be held by the Bankruptcy Court to be invalid, void or unenforceable, including, without limitation, the inclusion of one (1) or more of the Debtors in the Plan, the Bankruptcy Court shall, with the consent of the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee, have the power to alter and interpret such term or provision to make it valid or enforceable to the maximum extent practicable, consistent with the original purpose of the term or provision held to be invalid, void or unenforceable, and such term or provision shall then be applicable as altered or interpreted.

Notwithstanding any such holding, alteration or interpretation, the remainder of the terms and provisions of the Plan shall remain in full force and effect and shall in no way be affected, impaired or invalidated by such holding, alteration or interpretation. The Confirmation Order shall constitute a judicial determination and shall provide that each term and provision of the Plan, as it may have been altered or interpreted in accordance with the foregoing, is valid and enforceable pursuant to its terms.

42.15 Governing Law: Except to the extent that the Bankruptcy Code or other federal law is applicable, or to the extent that an exhibit hereto or document contained in the Plan Supplement provides otherwise, the rights, duties and obligations arising under this Plan shall be governed by, and construed and enforced in accordance with, the Bankruptcy Code and, to the extent not inconsistent therewith, the laws of the State of New York, without giving effect to principles of conflicts of laws.

SENIOR INDEBTEDNESS (Excerpts of Relevant Documentation)

I. Enron Subordinated Debentures:

“Senior Indebtedness” shall mean the principal of, and premium, if any, and interest on, any indebtedness of [ENE] (other than the Securities and Exchangeable Subordinated Debentures issued and to be issued pursuant to the indenture, dated as of June 1, 1983, between [ENE] and Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, as the same has been or may be amended from time to time) outstanding at any time, whether unsecured or secured by any mortgage, deed of trust, pledge, security interest or other lien, except indebtedness which by its terms is not superior in right of payment to the Securities. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, “Senior Indebtedness” (x) shall include all Senior Bank Debt (including all Obligations which constitute Senior Bank Debt) and (y) shall not include (a) indebtedness of or monies owed by [ENE] for compensation to employees or for goods or material purchased in the ordinary course of business or for services or (b) indebtedness of [ENE] to a Subsidiary for money borrowed or advanced from such Subsidiary.

“Indebtedness,” as applied to [ENE] or any Subsidiary, shall mean bonds, debentures, notes and other instruments representing obligations created or assumed by any such corporation for the repayment of money borrowed (other than unamortized debt discount or premium). All indebtedness secured by a lien upon property owned by [ENE] or any Subsidiary and upon which indebtedness any such corporation customarily pays interest, although any such corporation has not assumed or become liable for the payment of such indebtedness, shall for all purposes hereof be deemed to be indebtedness of any such corporation. All indebtedness for money borrowed incurred by other persons which is directly guaranteed as to payment of principal by [ENE] or any Subsidiary shall for all purposes hereof be deemed to be indebtedness of any such corporation, but no other contingent obligation of any such corporation in respect of indebtedness incurred by other persons shall for any purpose be deemed indebtedness of such corporation. Indebtedness of [ENE] or any Subsidiary shall not include (i) amounts which are payable only out of all or a portion of the oil, gas, natural gas, helium, coal, metals, minerals, steam, timber or other natural resources produced, derived or extracted from properties owned or developed by such corporation; (ii) any amount representing capitalized lease obligations; (iii) any indebtedness incurred to finance oil, gas, natural gas, helium, coal, metal, mineral, steam, timber, hydrocarbons, or geothermal or other natural resource or synthetic fuel exploration or development, payable, with respect to principal and interest, solely out of the proceeds of oil, gas, natural gas, helium, coal, metals, minerals, steam, timber, hydrocarbons, or geothermal or other natural resources or synthetic fuel to be produced, sold, and/or delivered by [ENE] or any Subsidiary; (iv) indirect guarantees or other contingent obligations in connection with the indebtedness of others, including agreements, contingent or otherwise, with such other persons or with third persons with respect to, or to permit or ensure the payment of, obligations of such other persons, including, without limitation, agreements to purchase or repurchase obligations of such other persons, agreements to advance or supply funds to or to invest in such other persons, or agreements to pay for property, products, or services of such other persons (whether or not conferred, delivered or rendered), and any demand charge, throughput, take-or-pay, keep-well, make-whole, cash deficiency, maintenance of working capital or earnings or similar agreements; and (v) any guarantees with respect to lease or other similar periodic payments to be made by other persons.

“Obligations” means any principal, interest, penalties, fees and other liabilities payable under the documentation governing any indebtedness, excluding fees and expenses payable to the Trustee.

“Senior Bank Debt” means any amounts outstanding from time to time under (i) the Loan Agreement dated as of November 19, 1986 among [ENE], the banks named therein, and Bankers Trust Company and Citibank, N.A., as Co-Agents, as the same may be from time to time amended, (ii) the Revolving Credit Agreement dated as of November 19, 1986 among [ENE], the banks named therein and Bankers Trust Company and Citibank, N.A., as Co-Agents, as the same may be from time to time amended, and (iii) the Credit Agreement dated as of November 19, 1986 among [ENE], the banks named therein and Bankers Trust Company and Citibank, N.A., as Co-Agents, as the same may be from time to time amended; provided that after each of the credit facilities listed in clauses (i) through (iii) have terminated and all amounts owing thereunder paid in full, the term “Senior Bank Debt” shall include any indebtedness of [ENE] incurred to refinance (including successive refinancings) such Senior Bank Debt unless under the terms of the agreements providing for any such refinancing it is provided that the indebtedness represented thereby shall not constitute Senior Bank Debt hereunder, and in any event Senior Bank Debt shall include any principal, interest, penalties, fees and other liabilities payable under any agreement described in clauses (i) through (iii) above or constituting Senior Bank Debt by virtue of the proceeding proviso.

“Subsidiary” means a corporation all of the voting shares (that is, shares entitled to vote for the election of directors, but excluding shares entitled so to vote only upon the happening of some contingency unless such contingency shall have occurred) of which shall be owned by [ENE] or by one or more Subsidiaries or by [ENE] and one or more Subsidiaries.

II. Enron TOPRS Debentures:

“Senior Indebtedness” means the principal of, premium, if any, interest on and any other payment due pursuant to any of the following, whether outstanding at the date hereof or hereafter incurred, created or assumed: (i) all indebtedness of [ENE] (other than any obligations to trade creditors) evidenced by notes, debentures, bonds or other securities sold by [ENE] for money borrowed and capitalized lease obligations; (ii) all indebtedness of others of the kinds described in the preceding clause (i) assumed or guaranteed in any manner by [ENE] or in effect guaranteed by [ENE]; and (iii) all renewals, extensions or refundings of indebtedness of the kinds described in either of the preceding clauses (i) or (ii), unless, in the case of any particular indebtedness, capitalized lease obligation, guarantee, renewal, extension or refunding, the instrument creating or evidencing the same or the assumption or guarantee of the same expressly provides that such indebtedness, renewal, extension or refunding is subordinated to or is pari passu with the Securities.

III. Enron Capital Resources, L.P., 9% Cumulative Preferred Securities, Series A (MIPS)

Loan Agreement

Section 4.01. Subordination. [ENE] and Resources covenant and agree, and the holders of the Series A Preferred Securities (and any trustee appointed by such holders) by their acceptance of such Series A Preferred Securities likewise agree, that the Loan is subordinate and junior in right of payment to all Senior Indebtedness as provided herein. The term "Senior Indebtedness" shall mean the principal, premium, if any, and interest on (i) all indebtedness of [ENE], whether outstanding on the date hereof or hereafter created, incurred or assumed, which is for money borrowed, or evidenced by a note or similar instrument given in connection with the acquisition of any business, properties or assets, including securities, (ii) any indebtedness of others of the kinds described in the preceding clause (i) for the payment of which [ENE] is responsible or liable (directly or indirectly, contingently or otherwise) as guarantor or otherwise, (iii) any indebtedness secured by a lien upon property owned by [ENE] and upon which indebtedness [ENE] customarily pays interest, even though [ENE] has not assumed or become liable for the payment of such indebtedness and (iv) amendments, renewals, extensions and refundings of any such indebtedness, unless in any instrument or instruments evidencing or securing such indebtedness or pursuant to which the same is outstanding, or in any such amendment, renewal, extension or refunding, it is expressly provided that such indebtedness is not superior in right of payment to the Loan and except that Senior Indebtedness shall not include the indebtedness pursuant to the Loan Agreement dated as of November 15, 1993 between [ENE] and Enron Capital LLC and any extensions or refundings thereof (the "Pari Passu Debt"). Senior Indebtedness shall continue to be Senior Indebtedness and entitled to the benefits of these subordination provisions irrespective of (i) any amendment, modification or waiver of any term of the Senior Indebtedness or extension or renewal of the Senior Indebtedness, (ii) any exchange or release of, or non-perfection of any lien on or security interest in, any collateral, or any release from, amendment or waiver of or consent to departure from any guaranty, for all or any of the Senior Indebtedness, (iii) any other circumstance which might otherwise constitute a defense available to or discharge of Resources to the holders of the Series A Preferred Securities (or any trustee appointed by such holders) in respect of the provisions of this Section 4.01, or (iv) any act or failure to act on the part of Enron or by any act or failure to act, in good faith, by any holder of Senior Indebtedness, or by any noncompliance by [ENE] with the terms of this Agreement, regardless of any knowledge thereof which any person may have or be otherwise charged with. (Remainder of section omitted).

Appendix C: Estimated Assets, Claims and Distributions

Appendix C: Estimated Assets, Claims and Distributions

A. Introduction

The schedules set forth below reflect the estimated assets and claims of each of the Debtors, as well as the estimated Creditor recoveries under the Plan. Among other things, this information is provided to facilitate parties in interest in their analysis and understanding of (i) the Debtors' estates, (ii) the global compromise incorporated into the Plan, and (iii) the distributions proposed to be made pursuant to the Plan. The estimates and the underlying projections and assumptions are highly speculative and based upon information available at the time that this analysis was prepared. Therefore, actual results may vary materially from those reflected herein. Further, the summary information reflected herein is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the Plan and Disclosure Statement.

More specifically, the schedules were derived from the Distribution Model, which is a complex and customized software program utilized to synthesize estimates and projections regarding assets and liabilities, as well as to calculate Creditor recoveries under the Plan depending upon numerous variables and assumptions. The Distribution Model was used to generate the schedules and to summarize therein, on a Debtor-by-Debtor basis, the estimated value of assets held by each Debtor, estimated Allowed Claims asserted against each Debtor, and the estimated Creditor recoveries under the Plan. Refer to Section I.D., "Assets, Claims and Distributions" for additional information on the Distribution Model.

In addition, the Board appointed a Disclosure Statement committee whose responsibilities included internal due diligence of the Disclosure Statement, including Appendix C. The Disclosure Statement committee appointed a due diligence team from the ENE accounting and control organization. The diligence team confirmed data inputs to the Distribution Model, including asset values, claims, and operating and administrative costs, and that the subsequent data outputs are correctly disclosed in this Disclosure Statement.

B. Variance

The Debtors have prepared the projections incorporated into the schedules based on certain assumptions that they believe are reasonable under the circumstances. These assumptions are described below. The projections have not been compiled or examined by independent accountants. The Debtors make no representations regarding the accuracy of the projections or any ability to achieve forecasted results. Many of the assumptions underlying the projections are subject to significant uncertainties. Inevitably, some assumptions will not materialize, and unanticipated events and circumstances may affect the ultimate financial results. Therefore, the actual results achieved may vary from the forecasts, and the variations may be material. In evaluating the Plan, Creditors are urged to examine carefully all of the assumptions underlying the financial projections.

It should be noted that a Debtor may appear solvent based on a review of the Debtor's Schedules, but a Debtor's solvency is impacted by many variables including (a) increased liabilities as a result of the claims process or litigation, (b) decreased assets as a result of the claims process or litigation, and/or (c) decreases in its assets due to the fact that Intercompany Claims were scheduled for the face amount of the obligation, but will be paid less in accordance with the Plan.

If the estimated value of assets (including, but not limited to, estimates of available Creditor Cash, recoveries on the Remaining Assets, and the valuation of the stock in PGE, CrossCountry and Prisma to be distributed to Creditors) set forth herein ultimately vary significantly from actual results, then actual Creditor recoveries will vary significantly as well. Similarly, as the estimated value of assets are forward-looking statements based upon information available to the Debtors, the actual results may vary significantly.

The recovery estimates set forth herein are based on various estimates and assumptions. These assumptions include assumptions regarding the allowance and disallowance of Claims. As a result, if the estimated amount of Allowed Claims relied upon to calculate the estimated recoveries ultimately varies significantly from the actual amount of Allowed Claims, then actual creditor recoveries will vary significantly as well. Similarly, as the estimated amount of Allowed Claims is a forward-looking statement based upon information available to the Debtors as of June 1, 2003, the actual results may vary significantly as Claims are Allowed or otherwise resolved over time. Refer to Section XIV.C., "Variance from Valuations, Estimates and Projections" for additional information.

a. Remaining Assets. With respect to the Remaining Assets, the estimated recoveries, valuations and projections are based, in part, on estimated proceeds generated by a sale or other disposition of substantially all of these assets. Many of these assets have been on the market or the subject of inquiries since the Initial Petition Date, but have not been sold for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to, (i) poor market conditions, and (ii) the need to resolve complex ownership issues, pending litigation or government investigations, tax issues, and consent issues. In some cases, the Reorganized Debtors will be attempting to sell non-controlling financial interests for which a limited market exists. Due to the inherent uncertainties associated with selling these assets as a result of the issues identified above, there can be no assurance that these assets will be sold at presently estimated prices or at presently estimated times, if at all. Similarly, the recoveries of the Debtors (or the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be) against counterparties on trading contracts are dependent on the creditworthiness and ability to pay of the counterparties.

b. Creditor Cash. The inability to sell or otherwise convert the Remaining Assets to cash may materially impact, among other things, the value of the Plan Currency. As a result of the foregoing, the Creditor Cash available for distribution as a result of liquidation of the Remaining Assets may be impacted.

c. Operating Entities Generally. Estimates of value do not purport to be appraisals nor do they necessarily reflect the values that may be realized if assets are sold. The estimates of value represent hypothetical equity values assuming the implementation of each of the Operating Entities' business plans, as well as other significant assumptions. Such estimates were developed solely for purposes of formulating and negotiating the Plan and analyzing the projected recoveries thereunder. Any estimated equity value is highly dependent upon achieving the future financial results set forth in the projections for each of the Operating Entities, as well as the realization of certain other assumptions that are not guaranteed.

The valuations of each of the Operating Entities set forth herein represent estimated values and do not necessarily reflect values that could be attainable in public or private markets for the Operating Entities or their constituent assets. The equity value ascribed in the analysis does not purport to be an estimate of the market value of stock to be distributed pursuant to the Plan. Such trading value, if any, may be materially different from the equity value associated with the valuation analysis.

d. PGE. As discussed in Section VIII.A.12., "Potential Sale of PGE" of the Disclosure Statement, ENE has entered into a purchase agreement to sell PGE to Oregon Electric. There can be no assurances that this sale will be approved by the Bankruptcy Court or that it will close. If the sale does in fact close or the common stock of PGE is sold pursuant to another purchase agreement, then the net proceeds will be distributed to Creditors in the form of Creditor Cash. If the sale does not close and PGE is not sold to another purchaser, then PGE Common Stock will be distributed to Creditors pursuant to the Plan. It should be noted that PGE operates in a heavily regulated industry and the valuation of PGE set forth herein assumes that the current regulatory environment remains unchanged. Changes to the current regulatory environment may have a material adverse impact on PGE's actual results. Refer to Section XIV., "Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered," as well as Section VIII., "Portland General Electric Company," for further discussion on these and other risks attendant with PGE and the electric utility industry.

e. CrossCountry. The valuation of CrossCountry set forth herein assumes certain levels of rates for the transportation of natural gas as set by FERC. Such rates are highly regulated and subject to periodic changes. There is no guarantee that the current rate levels will not change materially in the future or will provide adequate reimbursement for the services provided by CrossCountry and its subsidiaries. Any such changes are entirely beyond CrossCountry's control and may have a material adverse impact on actual results. Further, CrossCountry operates in a heavily regulated industry. In the ordinary course of its business, CrossCountry is subject regularly to inquiries, investigations and audits by federal and state agencies that oversee various natural gas pipeline regulations. Changes to the current regulatory environment may have a material adverse impact on CrossCountry's actual results. Refer to Section XIV., "Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered," as well as Section IX., "CrossCountry," for further discussion on these and other risks attendant with CrossCountry and the natural gas pipeline industry.

f. Prisma. The valuation of Prisma set forth herein assumes that all assets contemplated for transfer to Prisma are in fact transferred. The valuation further assumes that, subject to appropriate offsets, the assets to be transferred to Prisma do not include any material prepetition intercompany obligations of the Debtors. If for any reason one or more assets are not transferred to Prisma, or one or more additional assets are transferred to Prisma, then the value could fluctuate materially. In addition, the valuation of Prisma set forth herein assumes certain levels of tariffs or rates of return for the constituent assets. Such rates are highly regulated, subject to periodic changes, and in certain circumstances are the outcome of political processes in the subject jurisdictions. There is no guarantee that the current rate levels will not change materially in the future or will provide adequate reimbursement for the services provided by Prisma and its subsidiaries. Any such changes are entirely beyond Prisma's control and may have a material adverse impact on actual results. Further, as Prisma operates primarily in foreign jurisdictions, such political processes often lead to greater volatility in regulatory outcomes than might occur in the United States. Additionally, operations in the emerging markets are generally subject to greater risk of global economic slowdown, political uncertainty, currency devaluation, exchange controls and the ability to enforce and defend legal and contractual rights than are domestic companies. Such risk factors may also have a material adverse impact on Prisma's actual results. Refer to Section XIV., "Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered," as well as Section X., "Prisma Energy International Inc.," for further discussion on these and other risks attendant with Prisma and the industries in which it is involved.

C. Assumptions.

The following are the significant assumptions and limiting conditions utilized in preparation of the estimates:

1. Under the global compromise embodied in the Plan, except with respect to the Portland Debtors and as modified with respect to guaranty claims, subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions contained in the Plan regarding acceptance of the Plan, distributions of Plan Currency are calculated based upon 70% of the recovery that Allowed General Unsecured Claims would receive on a separate Debtor-by-Debtor basis (i.e., on a stand-alone basis) and 30% of the recovery Allowed General Unsecured Claims would receive if all of the Debtors, other than the Portland Debtors, were substantively consolidated (i.e., on a substantive consolidation basis). Assuming the holders of allowed claims in a class of guaranty claims affirmatively vote on the Plan such that the class would be deemed to accept the Plan in accordance with section 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code, for purposes of the 30% or substantive consolidation scenario, claims against Debtors for guaranties of the liabilities of other Debtors are calculated assuming that 50% of each guaranty Claim were allowed. The Portland Debtors are excluded from the 30/70 compromise incorporated into the Plan and, thus, neither their assets nor their claims are included in the calculation of claims using the 30/70 formula. Refer to Section I.B.2., “Global Compromise Embodied in the Plan,” for additional information regarding the global compromise.

2. Under the global compromise, except with respect to the Portland Debtors, Debtors holding Allowed Intercompany Claims (i.e., accounts and notes owed by one Debtor to another Debtor) will receive 70% of the distribution such Debtor would receive if the Debtors were not substantively consolidated. As the 30% scenario is based on the hypothetical substantive consolidation of all Debtors, no distribution is made on Intercompany Claims, other than with respect to the Portland Debtors, under this scenario. All other potential inter-Debtor remedies, such as the potential disallowance, subordination, or re-characterization of Intercompany Claims, and certain affirmative claims or causes of action against any other Debtor, will be waived. These waivers were negotiated as an integral part of the global compromise in order to ensure that the efficient resolution of these Chapter 11 Cases would not be jeopardized by ongoing inter-estate disputes. These waivers will not affect, however, the Debtors’ ability to pursue third parties (including non-Debtor affiliates) on any claims, causes of action, or challenges available to any of the Debtors in the absence of substantive consolidation. Refer to Section I.B.2.c., “Intercompany Claims,” for additional information regarding the global compromise as it relates to intercompany claims.
3. As noted above, the Plan embodies a compromise establishing a 30/70 weighted average reflecting the likelihood of substantive consolidation. For illustrative purposes and to facilitate parties in interest in their analysis and understanding of the Debtors’ estates and the global compromise, the schedules set forth below reflect assets, claims and value allocations calculated assuming various substantive consolidation scenarios. Specifically, Appendix C-I details the assets, claims and value allocations for each of the 180 Debtors on a stand-alone basis if there were no substantive consolidation. Appendix C-II reflects the assets, claims and value allocations if all of the Debtors (other than the Portland Debtors) were 100% substantively consolidated, all classes of guaranty claims accept the Plan in accordance with section 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code, and the compromise regarding guaranty claims were recognized. Appendix C-III shows 100% substantive consolidation of all of the Debtors (other than the Portland Debtors) assuming that no class of guaranty claims votes to accept the Plan and all classes of guaranty claims are deemed to reject the Plan in accordance with section 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code and the compromise on guaranty claims is not recognized.
4. Third-party recoveries under the Plan’s 30/70 global compromise can be calculated by multiplying the distributions in Appendix C-I by 70% and adding to such amount the distributions in Schedule C-II multiplied by 30%. The amounts reflected in C-II for Guaranty Obligations will equal approximately 50% of the sum of the amounts reflected in C-I for Guaranty Obligations. However, due to the treatment of Intercompany Claims and the difference in the netting of intercompany balances between the Stand-Alone Scenario and the Modified Substantive Consolidation Scenario, such amounts may not equal to exactly 50%.

5. Appendix C-I includes a chart at the top of each schedule comparing the estimated recovery percentages under the Plan for general unsecured claims and guaranty claims to both (a) the estimated recovery percentages in the event the Debtors (excluding the Portland Debtors) are substantively consolidated, all classes of guaranty claims accept the Plan in accordance with section 1126 of the Bankruptcy Code, and the compromise regarding guaranty claims is recognized and (b) the estimated recovery percentages in the event that none of the Debtors is substantively consolidated.
6. In the Modified Substantive Consolidation Scenario, the consolidated Debtors have a number of payables to non-Debtor affiliates. In Appendix C-II these amounts are reflected on the line captioned "Intercompany Payables Pre-Petition." In many such instances, some or all of the value that the consolidated Debtors distribute will return to the consolidated estate through intercompany equity or debt interests. As a result, the amounts reflected as "Debtors' Assets" and "Claims Against and Equity in Debtors" in Appendix C-II are "grossed up" by the distribution and recovery of such amounts. Such amounts reflect the redistribution of value throughout the Debtors' capital structure, but are not new value available for third-party creditors.
7. On each of the schedules, the column for "Face" represents the full face amount of claims against the Debtor, including intercompany claims. Refer to Appendix N for more information regarding intercompany value flow analysis in the stand-alone scenario.
8. On Appendix C-I, the column for "Stand-Alone Value" represents the amount the Debtor would pay on those claims if there were no substantive consolidation.
9. On Appendix C-II, the column for "Mod. SubCon Value" represents the amount Debtors would pay on those claims if all Debtors (excluding the Portland Debtors) were substantively consolidated, and the compromise regarding guaranty claims were recognized.
10. On Appendix C-III, the column for "Appendix C-III Value" represents the amount Debtors would pay on those claims if all Debtors (excluding the Portland Debtors) were substantively consolidated, the compromise regarding guaranty claims were not recognized and guaranty claims were extinguished as a result of the substantive consolidation.

11. On Appendix C-I, all intercompany claims (debtor to debtor and debtor to non-debtor) are reflected at the full estimated amount and are assumed to be pari passu with third-party general unsecured claims except where otherwise specified by applicable transaction documents. For a complete listing of Allowed Intercompany Claims (debtor to debtor only) pursuant to the Plan, refer to Exhibit F to the Plan. It should be noted that Exhibit F aggregates Intercompany Claims whereas the line item entries on Appendix C-I are not always aggregated. Moreover, Intercompany Claims reflected on Appendix C-I may include estimates as a result of rejection damages, third-party settlements involving two or more Debtors, and related matters. Such estimates are subject to change. Accordingly, there are differences between Appendix C-I and Exhibit F to the Plan.
12. On Appendices C-II and C-III, where intercompany claims existed between substantively consolidated Debtors, such claims were assumed to be eliminated as a result of the substantive consolidation. Further, in Appendices C-II and C-III, where there existed both prepetition receivables and prepetition payables between a single non-substantively consolidated affiliate and two or more consolidated Debtors, such receivables and payables are presented on a net basis with the consolidated Debtors as a whole. In contrast, debtor to non-debtor obligations are assumed to be pari passu with third-party general unsecured claims except where otherwise specified by applicable transaction documents.
13. On Appendix C-I, it is assumed that Allowed Guaranty Claims are treated pari passu with other third-party general unsecured claims of Enron Corp.
14. On Appendix C-II, it is assumed that each class has voted to accept the Plan and thus is entitled to payment under the global compromise of 50% of each Allowed Guaranty Claim.
15. With the exception of Intercompany Claims (including, but not limited to, Claims for rejection damages (if any)), an additional feature of the global compromise is the waiver and release of intercompany causes of action between Debtors. Accordingly, Appendices C-II and C-III do not reflect these causes of actions (if any) held by one Debtor against one or more of the other Debtors.
16. The stand-alone figures on Appendix C-I reflect the settlement of issues regarding the ownership of certain assets by ENE and ENA, which are currently embodied in the global compromise.
17. Estimated recoveries are set forth below for different classifications and types of claims. As noted elsewhere, the estimated assets do not include any recovery on pending or anticipated litigation. Consistent with this approach, the amounts reflected assume the right of setoff for prepetition mutual debts between counterparties or intercompany accounts. In cases where master netting agreements existed addressing setoff rights, the amounts reflect the impact of those agreements. This is done for presentation purposes only. The Debtors reserve all rights to challenge the enforceability and effectiveness of such agreements. If Debtors are successful in any litigation challenging such agreements, this could have a material impact on actual amounts recovered. To the extent that an individual Creditor is entitled to satisfy all or a portion of such Creditors' Claim through any additional setoff, offset or recoupment approved by the Court, such Creditor's recovery may be higher than reflected herein.

18. Since the Initial Petition Date, the Debtors have and will continue to allocate overhead expenses pursuant to the Overhead Allocation Formula Order up to the Confirmation Date. As provided for in the Plan, it is anticipated that after the Confirmation Date, the Debtors will modify the methodology in order to allocate overhead based upon post-confirmation activities. The Debtors anticipate that the primary post-confirmation activities will be (i) evaluation and resolution of Claims; (ii) liquidation and disposal of Remaining Assets; and (iii) litigation and investigations. The proposed post-confirmation overhead allocation methodology will use number of Claims, value of Claims, and expected proceeds from asset dispositions as the primary allocation factors. The estimates set forth below allocate overhead expenses pursuant to the Overhead Allocation Formula Order up to the Confirmation Date and allocate post-confirmation overhead expenses based on the Debtors' currently contemplated preliminary post-confirmation allocation formula.

The Debtors intend to provide a detailed description of the proposed post-confirmation overhead allocation methodology to the Creditors' Committee and the ENA Examiner prior to seeking Bankruptcy Court approval of the methodology. On or before the Ballot Date, the Debtors will file a motion with the Bankruptcy Court with respect to the proposed methodology. It is expected that the Bankruptcy Court will enter an order with respect to the overhead allocation in connection with the entry of the Confirmation Order. Except as provided in such order, all other provisions of the Bankruptcy Court's orders, dated February 25, 2002, November 21, 2002 and November 25, 2002, will remain in full force and effect.

19. Except with respect to the Portland Debtors, the Plan General Unsecured Recovery Percentage set forth in Appendices C-I through C-III is the weighted average of recoveries based on the global compromise (i.e., 70% of the unsecured recovery percentage calculated for each Debtor on a stand-alone basis and 30% of the unsecured recovery percentage calculated on a basis of the Debtors being substantively consolidated). In the stand-alone scenario in Appendix C-I, unfunded Estimated Administrative Costs at administratively insolvent Debtors related to third-party liabilities including overhead and professional fees were included in the Estimated Administrative Costs of administratively solvent Debtors. It should be noted that the actual allocation of these unfunded Estimated Administrative costs may be different based on the post-confirmation overhead allocation methodologies ultimately approved by the Court.

20. In conjunction with formulating the Plan, Blackstone and the Debtors derived the valuations set forth in the Disclosure Statement for PGE, CrossCountry and Prisma. There can be no assurance that the stock or other equity (if distributed) of PGE, CrossCountry or Prisma will trade at the value estimated or that the stock or other equity (if sold) of PGE, CrossCountry or Prisma will sell for the values reflected. However, distributions will be calculated and made under the Plan as though the values assigned herein are the actual values of the underlying assets. Refer to Section VIII.B., “Historical Financials, Projections and Valuation,” Section IX.C., “Historical Financials, Projections and Valuation,” Section X., “Prisma Energy International Inc.,” and Section XIV., “Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered” for additional information regarding the valuations.
21. The value of other assets, excluding receivables from Debtor and non-Debtor affiliates and investments in subsidiaries, is based upon a combination of (a) offers received from third parties and (b) internal valuations. Internal valuations are based upon discounted cash flow and comparable company analyses and utilize operating projections developed by the Debtors, their Affiliates, and their advisors. These internal valuations have been compared against offers received from third parties, if available. Discount rates and other assumptions pertaining to the valuation methodologies were developed by the Debtors, their Affiliates, and their advisors. Assets are included as such for particular Debtors based solely on the books and records of the Debtors and their Affiliates, unless otherwise modified by order of the Bankruptcy Court or the Plan. Certain assets reflected on the books and records of Debtors and their Affiliates are subject to significant uncertainty and, potentially, litigation, and recoveries may change dramatically depending on the resolution of such issues. Actual distributions under the Plan will be made based upon the values actually realized from the liquidation of assets owned by the applicable Debtor and not the values currently reflected herein.
22. For purposes of Appendix C, “Directly Held Trading Book Assets” were estimated using book values that are based upon accounts receivable and accounts payable records for liquidated positions. Book value also includes, if applicable, contract termination values relating to forward (“mark-to-market”) positions. These book values have been adjusted for various recovery risks, when applicable. The potential recovery risks include, but are not limited to, asserted setoffs, counterparty credit risk, litigation/documentation risk, and historical collection experience.

23. Intercompany account balances are derived from the Debtors' Schedules and the books and records of the Debtors and their affiliates, as both have been or may be updated or amended from time to time. During the course of these Chapter 11 Cases, as a result of the Debtors' ongoing review and reconciliation of intercompany account balances, as well as the diligence of the Creditors' Committee, the ENA Examiner and the internal Disclosure Statement committee, Intercompany Claims have undergone various adjustments. These adjustments have included, among other things, increases and decreases in the amount of Intercompany Claims and reallocation of certain Intercompany Claims from one Debtor to another Debtor. As an example, in E Power's Schedules, E Power scheduled a net receivable from ENE of $33.5 million and a net payable of $32,000 to ENA. However, it was subsequently determined that a $9.6 million payable had been inadvertently recorded as an obligation of E Power owed to ENE, rather than ENA. The relevant intercompany accounts were adjusted resulting in the Intercompany Claims reflected on Exhibit F to the Plan – E Power owes ENA $9.6 million and ENE owes E Power $43 million.
24. Results are based on certain assumptions associated with the Tax Sharing Agreement, based upon the present status of negotiations with the IRS in respect of its tax claim. Should such assumptions change, there may be an impact to certain Debtors, but the Debtors do not believe such impact will be material. The Debtors and their non-Debtor affiliates continue to review these balances and the amounts reflected in these schedules are subject to change.
25. Amounts realized from intercompany receivables are estimated by the Distribution Model and are based upon the estimated assets, liabilities and claims of the obligated affiliate.
26. In connection with determination of Creditor recoveries under the Plan, accounts receivable and accounts payable balances between the Enron Companies were first segregated into prepetition balances. For intercompany balances between two Debtors, the Petition Date of the Debtor with the payable was used to determine the prepetition or postpetition nature of the debt. Additionally, certain adjustments to the prepetition balances were made for taxes for tax years 2000 and 2001. The postpetition intercompany activity does not include amounts related to taxes. Intercompany account balances also do not reflect any estimates of potential rejection damage claims for non-trading contracts that may result if a Debtor rejects an executory contract or unexpired lease with another Debtor or Enron Company. The adjusted prepetition balances were then compared to amounts originally filed in each Debtor's Schedules. Any changes were analyzed to ensure the accuracy of the changes. The postpetition activity was reviewed for reasonableness and detailed reconciliations were performed on key balances.

27. The value of investments in subsidiaries is estimated based upon the estimated values of the assets and liabilities of those subsidiaries and the Debtors' corresponding ownership records.
28. The value of assets excludes any value that may be realized from the Litigation Trust, the Special Litigation Trust or from any avoidance actions commenced by the Debtors. Any value that may be realized from these litigation trusts or avoidance actions may be material, but highly speculative, and thus predictions regarding these amounts are not included.
29. Administrative Claims include estimated costs and expenses associated with preserving the Debtors' estates and operating the Debtors' businesses. In some instances, creditors or other parties in interest have alleged significant potential Administrative Expense Claims. Examples include an alleged Administrative Expense Claim in excess of $100 million asserted by Citrus Trading against ENA and an alleged Administrative Expense Claim in the approximate amount of $168 million asserted against BAM for unpaid rent to ENA Asset Holdings. With respect to this latter claim, Oaktree Capital Management, LLC and others have asked the Debtors to assert such claim. The Debtors reserve their rights with respect to these alleged Claims, which are not reflected in the estimates included on this Appendix C. It should be noted that, in connection with determination of Allowed Administrative Expense Claims, it is anticipated that the Confirmation Order will establish a deadline or bar date for creditors and parties in interest to assert Administrative Expense Claims against one or more of the Debtors. The Confirmation Order will also establish the procedures for filing, resolving and reserving for such Administrative Expense Claims.
30. Refer to Section 42.2 of the Plan, "Distribution of Reserved Funds," for information regarding the proposed procedures for allocation of proceeds from Sale/Settlement Orders. For purposes of calculating estimated recoveries, certain assumptions have been made as to the ultimate distribution of such funds and the funds were included in the assets for certain Debtors. Nothing herein constitutes an admission by any of the Debtors or other Enron Companies as to the appropriate allocation.
31. Claims have been estimated by using a combination of the Enron Companies' books and records, scheduled claims, filed claims, and professional judgment. Such estimates are subject to change and any such changes could have a material effect on Creditor recoveries.
32. Amounts shown for Claims reflect the Debtors' best estimates, including estimates pertaining to unliquidated Claims. These estimates may be lower than filed Claim amounts in instances where the Debtors' analysis indicated that the filed Claim exceeded what is permissible under the applicable documents.

33. Amounts shown for Claims do not make any assumption of benefits that may inure to the estate from affirmative litigation recoveries or disallowance of claims.
34. All Claims listed are prepetition claims, except for Administrative Claims and postpetition Intercompany Payables noted on the schedules.
35. All trading contracts between or among two or more Debtors or between or among Debtor and non-Debtor Affiliates (non-Debtors that are directly or indirectly 100% owned by one or more Debtors) are assumed to have been rejected and valued at the Initial Petition Date.
36. Recoveries to third-party unsecured creditors of Wind do not reflect the amounts they are anticipated to recover from the funds set aside in accordance with the Wind Reserve Fund Order.
37. On the schedules below, the line item entitled "SPE Obligations" represents all known direct potential claims against Debtors arising out of the Debtors' financing transactions involving SPEs, as described in the Disclosure Statement. Refer to Section III.F., "Debtors' Financing Transactions" for additional information regarding these transactions. This line item includes, but is not limited to, obligations under total return swaps and share settlement agreements, but excludes guarantee agreements entered into by one Debtor for the benefit of creditors of another Debtor (such amounts are included in the "Guarantee Obligations" line). The schedules do not assume that Debtors will succeed in recovering any assets associated with the SPEs, nor do they assume any settlements that may be negotiated and approved by the Court in the future. The Debtors reserve their rights in both of these regards. However, due to the nature of certain SPE financing transactions, amounts distributed on "SPE Obligations" may return to the Debtors through intercompany equity or debt interests. In these instances the assets and liabilities of the Debtors have been "grossed up" to reflect the distribution and recovery of such amounts.
38. The line item entitled "Guarantee Obligations" includes only those unsecured claims, other than an intercompany claim, against a Debtor arising from or relating to an agreement by such Debtor to guarantee or otherwise satisfy the obligations of another Debtor. Not included in this line item are guarantees issued by a Debtor for the benefit of creditors of a non-Debtor or intercompany guaranties issued by a Debtor to an affiliate to guaranty the obligations of another affiliate. With this limitation, the line item "Guarantee Obligations" includes all items denominated "guarantees," including guarantees of total return swaps, guarantees of share settlement agreements, as well as guarantees of claims arising under the financing transactions.

39. The line item entitled, "Trading Liabilities" reflects liabilities resulting from wholesale and retail commodities contracts.
40. The line item entitled, "Other Liabilities" includes employee claims, lease-rejection claims, non-lease contract damage claims, and litigation reserves.
41. The "Subordinated Claims" line item includes those claims against Debtors that are contractually subordinated. This line item includes claims subordinated to the benefit of senior indebtedness (or similar such terms as defined in applicable transaction documents), but not claims subordinate to all unsecured claimants and ranking pari passu with common or preferred equity. Any value shown on this line will ultimately inure to the beneficiaries of the subordination agreements, not to the subordinated creditors themselves. The schedules do not give effect to any subordination of penalty claims (including, but not limited to, the court approved subordination of the Public Utility Commission of Texas' $6.5 million claim against EPMI) or claims under section 510(b) of the Bankruptcy Code nor do the schedules give effect to any equitable subordination litigation under section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code that has already been brought or may be brought in the future by the Debtors or other creditors. Refer to Section IV,C.2., "Government Investigations" for information regarding government investigations and Appendix Q: "Subordinated Claims," for information regarding subordinated claims.
42. Certain of the government investigations may result in, among other things, assessment of fines and penalties and/or criminal charges against all or some of the Enron Companies and their current or former employees. The Debtors assert that, in accordance with the priority scheme under the Bankruptcy Code, all such claims are subordinate to General Unsecured Claims. Although this is the Debtors' contention, the Bankruptcy Court may ultimately conclude that one or more of these claims should not be subordinated. It should be noted that the Debtors have negotiated and are in the process of negotiating agreements with certain government agencies regarding the subordination of all or part of their claims. Nonetheless, there can be no assurances that the Debtors will be able to resolve all of these issues consensually.
43. For additional information, refer to the Debtors' Schedules of Assets and Liabilities, which are available at <http://www.enron.com/corp/por/>, and to Claims filed against the Debtors, which are available for viewing at <http://www.bsillc.com>. Asset values reflected in the Schedules are based upon the books of the Debtors and do not reflect the fair market value of the assets.

44. Amounts of Claims shown on the Debtors' Schedules of Assets may appear higher than the amounts reflected on Appendix G-I because the Debtors' Schedules reflect the full face amount of intercompany claims.
45. The Debtors, as well as their nondebtor affiliates, had numerous intercompany contracts, including, but not limited to, trading contracts, operations and maintenance agreements, and Tax Sharing Agreements. To the extent any of these contracts are rejected, the rejection or the resulting rejection damages claim could have a material impact on either party to the contract. In conjunction with confirmation, the Debtors intend to file a schedule of stipulated rejection damages arising from the Debtors' rejection of intercompany trading contracts and other intercompany contracts, including contracts between two Debtors or between a Debtor and any wholly owned affiliate.

D. Schedules of Estimated Assets, Claims and Distributions

($'s in millions)

Unsecured Recovery %
Plan General Unsecured	17.8%
Plan Guarantee	0.0%
Stand-Alone General Unsecured	17.3%
Modified Consolidated General Unsecured	19.1%

As noted in the assumptions set forth above, the Plan embodies a compromise establishing a 30/70 weighted average reflecting the likelihood of substantive consolidation. This schedule reflects the assets, claims and value allocations for this Debtor on a stand-alone basis, as well as the estimated recovery percentages under the Plan for general unsecured claims and guaranty claims, the estimated recovery percentages in the event the Debtors (excluding the Portland Debtors) are substantively consolidated and the compromise regarding guaranty claims is recognized, and the estimated recovery percentages in the event that none of the Debtors are substantively consolidated. Refer to Appendix C-II for information regarding the assets, claims and value allocations if all of the Debtors (other than the Portland Debtors) were substantively consolidated and the compromise regarding guaranty claims were recognized.

Appendix G: Reorganized Debtors' Budget

Appendix G: Reorganized Debtors' Budget

A. Introduction

The Budget for the Reorganized Debtors set forth below reflects (a) actual financial information from December 2, 2001 through June 30, 2003 and (b) estimated financial information for July 1, 2003 through December 31, 2003 and for each of calendar years 2004, 2005 and 2006. Listed below are certain significant assumptions utilized in preparing the Budget. The projected receipts and expenses included in the attached Budget, both in terms of amounts and timing, are management's best estimates. Unlike most operating budget projections, the attached budget is associated with a liquidation and cannot be fully based on historical events and assumptions.

B. Variance

Estimating a budget for the Reorganized Debtors is an uncertain process because of the number of unknown variables, such as business and economic contingencies beyond the Reorganized Debtors' control. This uncertainty is further aggravated by the complexities of these Chapter 11 Cases. The projections contained in the Reorganized Debtors' Budget have not been compiled or examined by independent accountants. The Debtors make no representation regarding the accuracy of the projections or the Reorganized Debtors' ability to achieve forecasted results. Many of the assumptions underlying the projections are subject to significant uncertainties. Inevitably, some assumptions will not materialize, and unanticipated events and circumstances may affect the ultimate financial results. Therefore, the actual results achieved will vary from the forecasts, and the variations may be material.

C. Assumptions

1. The projected receipts and expenses included in the attached Budget are for the Reorganized Debtors and their subsidiaries collectively, and are not specific to any particular legal entities.
2. Net Cash Receipts are gross cash receipts from third parties related to contract performance, contract settlements, accounts receivable collections, gross receipts of project operations where a Debtor is the project manager, and asset sales less, as applicable, cost of sales for contract performance, amounts held in escrow pending final resolution of specific transaction items (i.e., purchase price adjustments), auction, and marketing fees and collection agency fees and disbursements related to project operations where a Debtor is the project manager (including, without limitation, operations and maintenance costs, taxes, debt repayments, and investor distributions).
 - a. Estimated receipts from Trading Contracts & Receivables: The settlements of trading contracts are based on the Debtors' review of their positions with each counterparty, the current status of negotiations for settlement with each counterparty and the Debtors' settlement history. Additionally, certain trading contracts are subject to arbitration and litigation that has also been considered in determining the Debtors' estimate of their receipts from trading contracts. The collection of trading accounts receivable is based upon the Debtors' review of their outstanding accounts receivable balances by counterparty and also recent collection history.

- b. Estimated Receipts from Asset Sales & Other: (i) Asset sales projected receipts are based upon valuation and market analysis for each asset to be sold and current discussions with potential purchasers. These amounts include anticipated settlement and litigation proceeds related to the assets, but only to the extent a projected settlement or recovery amount is reasonably known and the timing of receipt can be reasonably predicted. However, the Reorganized Debtors do believe that certain of the expected settlement and litigation recoveries that are not included in the Budget are material. The amounts included in the Budget are net of expected disbursements related to the assets, such as taxes and dividends; (ii) Asset Sales & Other also includes projections of material recoveries from certain financing transactions that have settled or are projected to settle, to the extent known or anticipated. However, no receipts have been projected from financing transactions that are the subjects of current settlement negotiations because of the uncertainty of the ultimate recoveries. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Asset Sales & Other for the year 2005 does include the potential release from escrow of proceeds from the anticipated sale of a newsprint and directory paper mill business that is associated with a financing structure, and these proceeds have also been included in the Distribution Model.
3. Both the Net Cash Receipts and Expenses are dependent on headcount necessary to liquidate and/or settle the Remaining Assets in an efficient manner. As of December 31, 2003, the Reorganized Debtors are projected to have a headcount of 1,038 with the numbers declining significantly over the 2004 through 2006 period. The projected headcount numbers for the Reorganized Debtors at each of December 31 of 2004, 2005, and 2006 are 535, 189, and 156, respectively.
4. G&A Expenses include, among other items, expenses related to the commercial and support groups involved in liquidating the Remaining Assets and pursuing and resolving claims. They also include functional support areas such as Accounting, Tax, Legal and Human Resources. While the majority of the costs for these expenses will be associated with employees and contract labor employed by the Reorganized Debtors, certain of the costs will be outsourced from Stephen Forbes Cooper LLC, which has been retained by the Reorganized Debtors with Bankruptcy Court approval. The costs associated with this outsourcing are approximately: $14 million for July 1 – December 31, 2003 (out of total expenses of $305 million, net of Cash Balance Plan Funding); $31 million for 2004 (out of total expenses of $474 million); $33 million for 2005 (out of total expenses of $209 million); and $36 million for 2006 (out of total expenses of $168 million).

5. As described in Section VII of the Disclosure Statement, the Reorganized Debtors anticipate providing and receiving transition services to and from CrossCountry and Prisma and providing transition services to PGE (including administrative and other support services) through December 31, 2004. While an extension of these services beyond 2004 could be negotiated in the future, no services or related headcount, reimbursements or expenses are included in the attached Budget for beyond 2004. The expenses listed in the attached Budget are net of reimbursements to the Reorganized Debtors from the Operating Entities with respect to such transition services.
6. Other Expenses includes anticipated expenses related to IT systems and support, accounting systems and support, insurance, employee retention programs and financing costs related primarily to obligations pursuant to the Reorganized Debtors' exit financing facility.
7. Professional Fees do not include any success fee to Stephen Forbes Cooper LLC, which will be negotiated with the Creditors' Committee and submitted to the Bankruptcy Court for approval.
8. The anticipated funding of the amount reflected in the Cash Balance Plan Funding is currently under discussion (both as to exact amount and timing) and will be the subject of a motion and hearing in the Bankruptcy Court.
9. Total Expenses of approximately $1.6 billion for the period December 2, 2001 through June 30, 2003 includes approximately $502 million for professional fees, plus approximately $30 million to Stephen Forbes Cooper LLC for outsourcing costs of the type described in Assumption 4 above.
10. In accordance with the Litigation Trust Agreement and the Special Litigation Trust Agreement and any agreements entered into in connection therewith, on the Effective Date, the Debtors shall transfer such amounts of Cash as jointly determined by the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee as necessary to fund the operations of the Litigation Trust and the Special Litigation Trust. The Debtors and the Reorganized Debtors shall have no further obligation to provide any funding with respect to the Litigation Trust or the Special Litigation Trust. The estimated professional fees include estimated funding of the operations of the Litigation Trust and Special Litigation Trust.

11. Interest Income is projected based on available cash of approximately $5 billion, plus anticipated cash receipts less expenses reflected in the attached Budget. It is assumed that approximately 15% of cash available for distribution at the time of such distribution will be distributed initially in the second quarter of 2004, 25% in the fourth quarter of 2004, 15% in the second quarter of 2005, and the remainder will be distributed in the following quarters: Q4 2005, Q2 2006, Q4 2006, Q2 2007 and Q4 2007. It should be noted that this hypothetical scenario is for assumption purposes only, and the actual timing and amount of the distributions may vary materially from the assumptions used herein.
12. The Reorganized Debtors' Budget contains projections for the three-year period following the anticipated confirmation of the Plan. For purposes of the Budget, it is assumed that the Plan will be confirmed on January 1, 2004. Although the Debtors anticipate completing the wind-down of the Reorganized Debtors' businesses by year-end 2006, conclusion of this process may be delayed by, among other things, completion of the claims process, resolution of pending litigation, and issues associated with obtaining relevant consents and approvals associated with the liquidation of the Remaining Assets and dissolution of the Reorganized Debtors. As it is impossible to predict this timing with any certainty, it is anticipated that the Reorganized Debtors will conduct periodic and, at a minimum, annual reviews of the budgets for the Reorganized Debtors, Litigation Trust, and Special Litigation Trust and review the budgets and seek approval, as appropriate, with the board of directors and/or trustees of the Reorganized Debtors, Litigation Trust, and Special Litigation Trust. In reviewing and analyzing these budgets, the Reorganized Debtors will endeavor to maximize the ultimate recoveries to Creditors.
13. The projected receipts included in the Budget include anticipated asset sales, as well as projected recoveries from litigation, if a settlement or other recovery is reasonably known and the timing of receipt can be reasonably predicted. Nonetheless, the Debtors believe that other settlement and litigation recoveries not included in the Budget are material. Consequently, although the budget estimate for 2006 reflects a substantial loss, the Debtors anticipate that the Reorganized Debtors will have sufficient receipts to satisfy their operating requirements in 2006 and, should there be a delay in the conclusion of the wind down of these estates thereafter.
14. The Reorganized Debtors' Budget reflects the Reorganized Debtors' projections regarding the funds that will be brought in and the funds that will be expended in connection with the winding down of the Reorganized Debtors' businesses. The Reorganized Debtors' Budget does not reflect anticipated distributions or disputed claims reserves to be made pursuant to the Plan. Allowed Administrative Expense Claims will be paid in full, in accordance with the Plan, and a reserve will be established for disputed Administrative Expense Claims.

Appendix H: PGE Financial Projections – 2003-2006

Appendix H: PGE Financial Projections – 2003-2006

Basis of Presentation

Financial projections for PGE (the “Projections”) have been prepared for the four years ending December 31, 2006. The projections for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2003, include actual results through September 30, 2003. The projections are based on a number of assumptions made with respect to the future operations and performance of PGE. The Projections should be reviewed in conjunction with a review of the principal assumptions set forth herein. While the Projections were prepared in good faith and the assumptions, when considered on an overall basis are believed to be reasonable in light of the current circumstances, it is important to note that there can be no assurance that such assumptions will be realized and Creditors must make their own determinations as to the reasonableness of such assumptions and the reliability of the Projections. As outlined in Section XIV of the Disclosure Statement, a variety of risk factors could affect PGE’s financial results and must be considered.

Assumptions

Information relating to certain assumptions used in preparing the Projections is set forth below.

A. General

- 1. Plan Consummation. The expense forecasts assume the Plan will be confirmed and become effective in 2004.
- 2. Economic and Industry Environment. The Projections assume an economic environment based on prevailing analyst forecasts for the region, including the State of Oregon’s September 2003 Economic (and Revenue) Forecast and Global Insight’s (WEFA - DRI) U.S. Economic Outlook. In addition, the Projections assume no significant change in the regulatory and competitive conditions under which PGE currently operates.
- 3. Temporary Tax Regulations. The Projections assume that temporary regulations T.D. 9089 issued by the Treasury Department effective August 29, 2003, will not require any reduction of tax attributes of PGE as the result of any exclusion of discharge of indebtedness income from the gross income of the Debtors.
- 4. Basis. The financial projections assume a predecessor carryover basis rather than either utilizing fresh-start reporting as described by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants Statement of Position 90-7 “Financial Reporting by Entities in Reorganization Under the Bankruptcy Code,” or assuming any change in bases as a result of transfer of assets (whether between companies, to trusts or to creditors). Accordingly, the projections only reflect adjustments directly related to the Plan. It is uncertain whether a change in basis resulting from the implementation of the Plan will occur and if it does occur, when it may occur. Therefore, although the projections assume a predecessor carryover basis, it may ultimately be determined that PGE either has the option or is required to use a new basis of accounting at some point in the future following implementation of the Plan.

B. Other

1. Retail Load Forecast. The 2004 retail load forecasts are consistent with PGE's November 13, 2003 filing with the OPUC in its Resource Valuation Mechanism ("RVM") proceeding (UE-149), consistent with the State of Oregon's September 2003 Economic (and Revenue) Forecast and Global Insight's (WEFA-DRI) February 2003 U.S. Economic Outlook. The retail forecasts for 2005 and 2006 assume economic recovery in PGE's service territory. Retail load forecasts incorporate separate forecasts developed for PGE's largest 21 customers to take into account information that is given to PGE from these customers. The growth rates for commercial and industrial customers in 2005 also reflects recovery of two large customers who reduced operations in 2003 and 2004. Normalizing for this, the total 2005 load growth would be 5.5%. The Projections assume the following annual changes to retail load:

Year	Residential	Commercial	Industrial	Total
2004	4.2%	2.7%	-7.6%	0.8%
2005	2.8%	7.3%	12.2%	6.6%
2006	2.0%	3.4%	4.6%	3.1%

2. Rate Filings. The Projections assume PGE will obtain annual updates to power costs through the RVM process and an adjustment in rates through a general rate case providing an allowed return on equity of 10.5% effective January 1, 2006. The RVM process adjusts PGE's retail energy rates annually to reflect changes in PGE's cost of power and is designed to hold PGE and its customers neutral if a customer decided to purchase energy from PGE or a new electricity service provider. The Projections also assume PGE will obtain OPUC approval to amortize the following deferrals beginning in 2004:

- Pelton/Round Butte Transition Costs - $2.5 million for two years
- Excess "Category A" Advertising Expenses - $1.4 million for two years
- SB 1149 Incremental Implementation Costs - $6.4 million for five years.

In 2003 PGE filed (with the OPUC) for deferral of excess 2003 power costs caused by poor hydro conditions. The OPUC has not yet ruled on PGE's request. This forecast assumes PGE is authorized to defer $24.3 million (pre-tax) in 2003 and recover it in 2005 (including interest at 9.08%).

3. Net Variable Power Costs ("NVPC"). The 2004 NVPC are based on PGE's November 13, 2003 filing and settlement with the OPUC in its RVM proceeding (UE-149). Revenues for 2005 and 2006 assume full recovery of the 2005 NVPC and 2006 NVPC at forecasted levels without adjustments. The projected NVPC assume average hydro conditions and scheduled maintenance outages for the various generating plants. Forward market curves for gas and electric power purchases and sales are based on relevant indices of monthly on-peak and off-peak power prices as of October 10, 2003. The forward trading curves for gas prices extend through October 2005. Beyond this point, gas prices are based on the fundamentals of supply and demand, which forecast a decline in 2006 forward trading curve prices.

4. Fixed Operation and Maintenance (“O&M”) Costs. The 2003 O&M costs are based on actuals through September 30, 2003, and projected O&M costs for the remainder of the year. The 2004 costs represent PGE’s detailed 2004 budget. O&M costs for 2005 and 2006 are based on the 2004 budget, escalated at rates of inflation of 2.2% and 2.4%, for 2005 and 2006, respectively, adjusted for known or expected changes (such as pension and health benefit expenses).

5. New Resources. The Projections assume that new resources will be obtained by PGE consistent with PGE’s IRP and IRP Supplement and use the Port Westward Project, a combined-cycle gas combustion turbine facility, as the placeholder. It is assumed a nominal 400 MW unit of the Port Westward Project will be brought on-line in July 2006. The estimated capital expenditures are $261 million ($99 million in 2004 and $129 million in 2005 and $33 million in 2006), excluding allowance for funds used during construction (AFUDC).

6. Capital Expenditures. Capital Expenditures are based on normal system improvements increased by the cost of new resources (using the construction costs of the Port Westward Project as the placeholder) and improvements in 2006 for hydro facilities potentially required through the relicensing process. These expenditures are projected as:

2003	$177 million
2004	$279
2005	$294
2006	$215

7. Financings. The Projections assume that PGE will undertake the following financings:

- 2004 – Refinance $45 million First Mortgage Bonds (“FMB”) 7.60%-7.61% Series, at 6.0% due 7/14/2019;
- 2005 – Issue $130 million new FMB at 6.5% due 11/1/2020;
- 2005 – Refinance $18 million FMB 9.07% Series, at 6.5% due 8/15/2020;
- 2003-2006 – Redeem $3 million (30,000 shares) annually of the 7.75% Preferred stock;
- 2005 – Issue $25 million new FMB at 7.0% due 10/1/2020; and
- 2006 – Issue $65 million new FMB at 7.0% due 3/1/2021.

8. Common Dividends. It is assumed that PGE will declare and pay common dividends in 2005 and 2006 to reach and maintain an equity ratio between 48%-52%.

9. Bankruptcy Claims. The Projections reflect that 100% of the value of PGE’s Claim against ENE will accrue in 2003 in the amount of $12.7 million. It is assumed that distributions in the form of cash and stock will be made on this Claim over time based on estimates as to the timing and amount of distributions. These estimates were utilized for purposes of preparing these projections only and the actual timing and amount of the distributions and recognition of income may vary materially from the assumptions used herein.

10. Other Factors

- Income from Trust Owned Life Insurance investments is expected to earn a 7% annual return.
- Interest income and expense on certain regulatory assets and liabilities are calculated based on PGE's weighted cost of capital of 9.08%.
- PGE's federal income tax rate is projected at 35%; its state and local income tax rate is projected at 7.07%, yielding a combined income tax rate at 39.59%.
- The projections assume that no IRC Section 338(h)(10) election (which potentially could generate future income tax benefits) will be made for PGE in respect of the transactions contemplated by the Plan because both the ability to make such election and the value of potential income tax benefits resulting therefrom are uncertain.

11. Reclassification. Certain Balance Sheet line items have not been reclassified to reflect the implementation of SFAS 143, Accounting for Asset Retirement Obligations. These reclassifications have no effect on PGE's income or cash flow projections.

12. Tax. For purposes of federal and state income taxes, PGE is treated as a stand-alone company, not part of a group of corporations filing federal or state consolidated returns. In addition, the tax allocation agreement between PGE and ENE is not taken into account.

13. NOL Carryforwards. The projections do not take into account a net operating loss carryforward approximately equal to $11 million dollars for the period during which PGE was deconsolidated from the ENE Tax Group, ending December 23, 2002.

14. Equity Incentive Plan. The PGE projections do not include any expenses associated with the anticipated equity incentive plan. Refer to Section VIII.E of the Disclosure Statement for more information.

Citrus Corp. and Subsidiaries -- Results of Operations

The following discussion and analysis of the financial condition and results of operations of Citrus are based on the Financial Statements of Citrus, which were prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, and should be read in conjunction with the Financial Statements included herein. The discussion of the results of operations contained herein was not prepared in connection with the original audit of Citrus, and has not been reviewed by outside auditors.

Year Ended December 31, 2001 Compared to Year Ended December 31, 2000

Income Statement

Net Income decreased by $19.7 million from $100.0 million in 2000 to $80.3 million in 2001.

Revenues decreased by $124.4 million, from $476.0 million in 2000 compared to $351.6 million in 2001. A decrease of $168.1 million reflects reporting changes for Citrus Trading as a result of early adoption of SFAS 133, "Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities." In 2000, Citrus Trading revenues and costs were shown separately on the income statement. In 2001, the Citrus Trading results were netted in other income (expense). Partially offsetting the revenue reduction described above is an increase in gas transportation revenues of $43.7 million resulting primarily from significantly higher transport margins from the in-service of the Florida Gas Phase IV Expansion project (May 2001).

Operating costs and expenses decreased $153.7 million, from $311.5 million in 2000 to $157.8 million in 2001. As mentioned above in the revenues discussion, due to the change in income statement presentation associated with the adoption of SFAS 133 in 2000, Citrus Trading stopped presenting natural gas purchased costs in operating expenses, resulting in a reduction in natural gas purchased costs of $162.3 million between the years. Operations and maintenance expenses were $79.0 million in 2000 compared to $77.4 million in 2001. The reduction is due primarily to lower Gas Research Institute and Annual Charge Adjustment amortization and compressor overhauls expenses, partially offset by a gas gain in 2000 that was transferred to Florida Gas's fuel tracker in 2001. Depreciation and amortization increased due primarily to the in-service of the Florida Gas Phase IV Expansion project in May 2001. Taxes other than income increased due primarily to accrual adjustments in 2000 to reflect estimated assessments associated with pipeline expansions.

Other expense was $58.6 million in 2000 compared to $62.8 million in 2001, resulting in a $4.2 million increase. Other expense includes three components: interest expense, net, allowance for funds used during construction ("AFUDC") and other, net.

Interest expense, net increased due to higher average debt balances throughout 2001 compared to 2000 resulting primarily from a Florida Gas $325 million long-term debt borrowing in December 2000 to fund the Florida Gas expansion projects.

AFUDC decreased primarily due to the in-service of Florida Gas's Phase IV Expansion in May 2001.

Other, net income increased by $5.3 million from $8.3 million in 2000 to $13.6 million in 2001. Florida Gas other, net income improved due to a number of favorable regulatory related entries and an increase in regulatory income related to the in-service of Florida Gas's expansion projects partially offset by lower asset sale gains. Citrus Energy Services other, net improved primarily reflecting nonrecurring income in 2001 associated with arranging a Florida Gas shipper transportation contract and a net expense in 2000 associated with fiber optic expenses. These increases were partially offset by a Citrus Trading other, net income decrease due primarily to the impact of changes in the value of its price risk management portfolio.

The Cumulative Effect of Accounting Changes, Net of Tax recognized a $35.2 million after-tax reduction from 2000 to 2001 resulting from the early adoption of SFAS 133 in 2000 by Citrus Trading and Florida Gas. Citrus Trading determined its gas sales and purchases contracts to be derivatives and recognized their fair value, and Florida Gas recognized interest rate swap gains. There were no comparable transactions in 2001.

Cash Flows

Cash Flow increased by $27.2 million, from $19.8 million of cash expended in 2000 to $7.4 million of cash generated in 2001.

Net cash provided by operating activities increased by $186.3 million, from $37.9 million in 2000 to $224.2 million in 2001, primarily due to a Citrus Trading $80 million gas purchase, sales and exchange arrangement with an ENE affiliate involving three agreements, each dated December 1, 2000. Under the first agreement, Citrus Trading contracted to purchase approximately 12 million MMBTU of gas from the ENE affiliate at $6.65 per MMBTU with payment due by Citrus Trading in December 2000. In the second agreement, Citrus Trading contracted to sell 12 million MMBTU of gas to the same ENE affiliate in December 2000 at $6.67536 per MMBTU, with payment due in January 2001. In the third agreement, Citrus Trading and the same ENE affiliate exchanged the two 12 million MMBTU gas delivery obligations under the prior two agreements; Citrus Trading was paid an exchange fee of $.01051 per MMBTU. This third exchange agreement had the effect of canceling obligations for physical delivery of gas by Citrus Trading and the ENE affiliate to each other under the prior two agreements, with only the financial obligations remaining. As a result of these related transactions, Citrus Trading paid the ENE affiliate $80 million in December 2000 and received $80.4 million in January 2001, resulting in a $160.4 million net cash provided by operations variance between the two years. In addition, in December 2000 Citrus Trading agreed to pay the same ENE affiliate $20 million in December 2000 instead of January 2001 on an existing gas contract and Citrus was paid a fee for this early payment, which fee was included in the total cost of funds to Citrus (both for the $80 million arrangement and the $20 million early payment) that was recovered through the margin the ENE affiliate agreed to pay Citrus under the second agreement and the exchange fee the ENE affiliate agreed to pay Citrus under the third agreement described above. Citrus's favorable cash flow variance in 2001 resulting from these transactions with the ENE affiliate was partially offset by higher interest payments and increased income tax payments in 2001. Refer to Section XIV.H.1.k, "Related Party Transactions" for more information.

Net cash flows used in investing activities decreased by $47.5 million, from $233.2 million used in 2000 to $185.7 million used in 2001. Capital expenditures, net of AFUDC, decreased primarily due to the in-service of the Florida Gas Phase IV expansion project in May 2001 partially offset by the initial expenditures for the Phase V and VI expansion projects. Cash inflow from the disposition of property, plant and equipment, net decreased between the years due to lower net salvage receipts, casualty loss insurance proceeds and lower asset sales proceeds.

Net cash flows used in financing activities increased by $206.6 million, from $175.5 million provided in 2000 to $31.1 million used in 2001. Citrus and Florida Gas's cash flow from borrowing activities was $225.3 million lower in 2001 as compared to 2000. Additional borrowings were incurred in 2000 to finance the Florida Gas expansions and for general corporate needs. In 2001, there were net repayments of debt. Included in the net borrowings difference above was $80 million in borrowings utilized in December 2000 to enable Citrus Trading to pay $80 million to an ENE affiliate pursuant to the gas purchase, sale and exchange arrangement discussed in the preceding paragraphs. Additionally, Florida Gas settled an interest rate lock with a $18.7 million payment in 2000.

Total cash and equivalents balances increased by $7.4 million from $3.7 million at the end of the year 2000 to $11.1 million at the end of the year 2001.

2002 vs. 2001

Citrus Corp. and Subsidiaries -- Results of Operations

The following discussion and analysis of the financial condition and results of operations of Citrus are based on the Financial Statements of Citrus, which were prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, and should be read in conjunction with the Financial Statements included herein. The discussion of the results of operations contained herein was not prepared in connection with the original audit of Citrus, and has not been reviewed by outside auditors.

Year Ended December 31, 2002 Compared to Year Ended December 31, 2001

Income Statement

Net Income increased by $16.3 million from $80.3 million in 2001 compared to $96.6 million in 2002.

Revenues increased $170.2 million, from $351.6 million in 2001 compared to $521.8 million in 2002, due in part to the in-service of the Florida Gas Phase IV Expansion project in May 2001 and the partial in-service of the Phase V Expansion project in April 2002. Approximately $42 million of 2001 revenues are attributable to Phase IV contracts and $54 million in 2002. Phase V revenues were minimal in 2001 but provided approximately $54 million of revenues in 2002. Florida Gas short-term firm revenues were higher in 2002, reflecting stronger demand driven partially by favorable pricing of natural gas to residual fuel oil and additional gas-fired electric generation units being placed into service in Florida. The gas sales revenue increase of $102.2 million is primarily due to a change in presentation of Citrus Trading revenues. Certain trading revenues are separately reflected in 2002 that were netted with gas purchase expense and other related expenses in other income (expense) in 2001. This change in presentation was prompted by the bankruptcy of ENA, a significant Citrus Trading gas swap counter-party. Citrus Trading's loss of performance by ENA of the gas swap agreements required Citrus Trading to actively manage and become the primary obligor beginning in 2002 of these agreements.

Operating costs and expenses increased $104.1 million, from $157.8 million in 2001 compared to $261.9 million in 2002. As explained above in the revenues discussion, Citrus Trading separately reported natural gas purchased costs of $91.9 million in 2002 and they were netted with revenues and transportation expenses in other income (expense) in 2001. Operations and maintenance expenses were $90.0 million for 2002 compared to $77.4 million for 2001. The increase is due primarily to the following items: Citrus Trading's pipeline transportation expenses were included in 2002 but not recognized in this category in 2001 due to the reporting presentation discussed above; operation and maintenance costs were higher primarily resulting from the in-service of the Florida Gas Phase IV Expansion in 2001 and the partial in-service of the Phase V Expansion project in 2002; and compensation costs, ENE, service company and support group allocated expenses were higher in 2002, partially offset by reductions to several regulatory expenses that were lower in 2002. Depreciation and amortization expenses were $51.8 million in 2001 compared to $58.1 million in 2002. The increase was primarily due to the in-service of the Florida Gas Phase IV Expansion in 2001 and the in-service of portions of the Phase V Expansion project in 2002. Taxes other than income taxes were $28.6 million in 2001 compared to $21.9 million in 2002. The decrease reflects an accrual adjustment in 2002 to more closely match the accrual to the final assessed ad valorem taxes.

Other expense was $62.8 million in 2001 compared to $103.6 million in 2002, resulting in a $40.8 million increase. Other expense includes three components: interest expense, net, AFUDC and other, net.

Interest expense, net increased due to an increase in interest expense resulting primarily from Florida Gas debt financing of $250 million in July 2002, partially offset by Florida Gas and Citrus long-term debt payments. The Florida Gas debt was used primarily to fund the Florida Gas Phase V and VI expansion projects. Partially offsetting this increase is Citrus Trading's deferred interest income in 2002 relating to realization of its price risk management net asset valuations in accordance with SFAS 133. As mentioned earlier, due to the change in reporting Citrus Trading results in 2002, this item was recognized in this category in 2002 but included along with revenues and all related costs in other income (expense) for 2001.

AFUDC increased as a result of the substantial capital expenditures on the Florida Gas Phase V and VI Expansion projects, partially offset by lower AFUDC due to the in-service of the Phase IV project in May 2001.

Other, net expense increased $43.3 million from net income of $13.6 million in 2001 to a net expense of $29.7 million in 2002. Citrus Trading other, net expense increased, primarily due to changes in valuation of its net price risk management asset. Florida Gas other net expense increased due primarily to a reduction in regulatory income related to the in-service of Florida Gas's expansion projects and reduced income from minor customer construction projects. These increases were partially offset by Citrus Energy Services' other net income decrease due to the realization in 2001 of nonrecurring income associated with arranging gas transportation services for a shipper on Florida Gas.

Cash Flows

Cash Flow increased by $91.4 million, from $7.4 million of cash generated in 2001 to $98.8 million in 2002.

Net cash provided by operating activities decreased by $38.9 million, from $224.2 million in 2001 to $185.3 million in 2002, primarily due to a non-recurring receipt of cash in 2001 from a Citrus Trading $80 million gas purchase, sales and exchange arrangement with an ENE affiliate involving three agreements, each dated December 1, 2000. Under the first agreement, Citrus Trading contracted to purchase approximately 12 million MMBTU of gas from the ENE affiliate at $6.65 per MMBTU with payment due by Citrus Trading in December 2000. In the second agreement, Citrus Trading contracted to sell 12 million MMBTU of gas to the same ENE affiliate in December 2000 at $6.67536 per MMBTU, with payment due in January 2001. In the third agreement, Citrus Trading and the same ENE affiliate exchanged the two 12 million MMBTU gas delivery obligations under the prior two agreements; Citrus Trading was paid an exchange fee of $.01051 per MMBTU. This third exchange agreement had the effect of canceling obligations for physical delivery of gas by Citrus Trading and the ENE affiliate to each other under the prior two agreements, with only the financial obligations remaining. As a result of these related transactions, Citrus Trading paid the ENE affiliate $80 million in December 2000 and received $80.4 million in January 2001. In addition, in December 2000 Citrus Trading agreed to pay the same ENE affiliate $20 million in December 2000 instead of January 2001 on an existing gas contract and Citrus was paid a fee for this early payment, which fee was included in the total cost of funds to Citrus (both for the $80 million arrangement and the $20 million early payment) that was recovered through the margin the ENE affiliate agreed to pay Citrus under the second agreement and the exchange fee the ENE affiliate agreed to pay Citrus under the third agreement described above. The financial effect of these transactions with the ENE affiliate was to increase net cash provided by operating activities in 2001 by $100.4 million, resulting, thereby, in a negative variance from 2002 to 2001. Citrus Trading's cash flow in 2002 also decreased reflecting lower cash margins and a collateralized letter of credit initiated in 2002. These decreases were partially offset by a Citrus cash flow increase of $9.4 million due to lower interest payments and lower income tax payments and Florida Gas's cash flow increase of $57.8 million due primarily to the in-service of the Phase IV and V expansions. Refer to Section XIV.H.1.k, "Related Party Transactions" for more information.

Net cash flows used in investing activities increased by $37.5 million, from $185.7 million used in 2001 to $223.2 million used in 2002. Capital expenditures, net of AFUDC, increased primarily due to substantial spending for the Florida Gas Phase IV, V and VI Expansion projects in both years. Cash flow from the disposition of property, plant and equipment, net increased in 2002 primarily due to Florida Gas asset sale cash proceeds.

Net cash flows from financing activities increased by $167.8 million, from $31.1 million of cash used in 2001 to $136.7 million of cash provided in 2002. The financed amount of $80 million associated with the referenced gas purchase, sale and exchange arrangement was repaid in January 2001 upon receipt by Citrus Trading of $80.4 million from the mentioned ENE affiliate at the conclusion of the referenced gas purchase, sale and exchange arrangement. Furthermore, Florida Gas borrowed $250 million under a 144A debt financing in July 2002 and paid down $74.7 million of long-term debt in 2002 it had borrowed in 2001. Florida Gas's long-term borrowing was utilized primarily to fund the Phase V and VI Expansion projects and for general corporate purposes. Florida Gas paid $12.3 million in 2002 to settle an interest rate hedge related to its July 2002 debt financing.

Total cash and equivalents balances increased by $98.8 million from $11.1 million at the end of 2001 to $109.9 million at the end of 2002.

CITRUS CORP. AND SUBSIDIARIES
NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

(1) Reporting Entity

Citrus Corp. (the Company), a holding company formed in 1986, owns 100% of the stock of Florida Gas Transmission Company (Transmission), Citrus Trading Corp. (Trading) and Citrus Energy Services, Inc. (CESI). The stock of the Company is owned 50% by Southern Natural Gas Company (Southern), as contributed by its parent, El Paso Corporation (El Paso) in March 2003 and 50% by Enron Corporation (Enron). Enron filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy on December 2, 2001. Enron is currently soliciting bids for the sale of its 50% ownership interest in the Company. Southern has a right of first refusal in connection with any bona fide offer received by Enron for the purchase of its ownership interest in Citrus.

In October 2002 Transmission and Trading filed several claims with the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York against Enron and other affiliated bankrupt companies, aggregating $186 million. Of these claims, $150 million pertain to contracts that were rejected by Enron North America (ENA). Transmission is revising its claim filing against ENA downward due to another shipper acquiring ENA's pipeline capacity and transportation service contract obligations.

Transmission, an interstate gas pipeline extending from South Texas to South Florida, is engaged in the interstate transmission of natural gas and is subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC).

Trading ceased all trading activities effective October 1, 1997, but continues to fulfill its obligations under the remaining gas purchase and gas sale contracts. Trading buys natural gas primarily from Duke Energy LNG Sales, Inc. (Duke) and sells to Auburndale Power Partners, LP and Progress Energy Florida, Inc. Trading also buys and sells gas through an affiliate of Southern, El Paso Merchant Energy.

CESI is primarily in the business of providing operations, maintenance and financial services primarily to affiliates and customers of Transmission and Trading. Due to increased insurance costs and pipeline integrity legislation that affects operators, CESI is considering exiting this business if it cannot negotiate substantially revised agreements.

(2) Significant Accounting Policies

Regulatory Accounting - Transmission is subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). Transmission's accounting policies generally conform to Statement of Financial Standards (SFAS) No. 71, Accounting for the Effects of Certain Types of Regulation. Accordingly, certain assets that result from the regulated ratemaking process are recorded that would not be recorded under accounting principles generally accepted in the United States for nonregulated entities.

Principles of Consolidation - The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and its subsidiaries. All significant intercompany transactions and accounts have been eliminated in consolidation.

Cash and Cash Equivalents - The Company considers as cash equivalents all highly liquid short-term investments with maturities of three months or less at the time of purchase. These investments are accounted for at cost, which approximates estimated fair value.

Materials and Supplies - Materials and supplies are valued at actual cost. Materials transferred out of warehouses are priced out at average cost.

Revenue Recognition - Gas transportation and sales revenue are recognized when the services are provided.

CITRUS CORP. AND SUBSIDIARIES

Accounting for Derivative Instruments – The Company engages in price risk management activities for both trading and non-trading activities. The Company adopted SFAS No. 133, Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities during 2000 (see Note 4). Instruments utilized in connection with trading activities are accounted for using the mark-to-market method and are reflected at fair value as Assets and Liabilities from Price Risk Management Activities in the Consolidated Balance Sheets. Earnings from revaluation of price risk management assets and liabilities are included in Other Income (Expense). Cash flow hedge accounting is utilized for non-trading purposes to hedge the impact of interest rate fluctuations. Unrealized gains and losses from cash flow hedges are recognized according to SFAS No. 133 as other comprehensive income, and subsequently recognized in earnings in the same periods as the hedged forecasted transaction affects earnings. In instances where the hedge no longer qualifies as effective, hedge accounting is terminated prospectively and the accumulated gain or loss is recognized in earnings in the same periods during which the hedged forecasted transaction affects earnings. Where fair value hedge accounting is appropriate, the offset that is attributed to the risk being hedged is recorded as an adjustment to the hedged item.

Property, Plant and Equipment (See Note 10) - Property, Plant and Equipment consists primarily of natural gas pipeline. The Company amortizes that portion of its investment in Transmission and other subsidiaries which is in excess of historical cost (acquisition adjustment) on a straight-line basis at an annual rate of 1.6% based upon the estimated remaining useful life of the pipeline system. Transmission has provided for depreciation of assets net of estimated salvage value on a straight-line basis at an annual composite rate of 1.52%, 1.53%, and 1.49% for 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively. Depreciation rates are based on the estimated useful lives of the individual assets. The overall remaining useful life for Transmission's assets at December 31, 2002, is 42 years.

Property, Plant and Equipment is recorded at its original cost. Transmission capitalizes direct costs, such as labor and materials, and indirect costs, such as overhead, interest and an equity return component (see following paragraph). Costs of replacements and renewals of units of property are capitalized. The original costs of units of property retired are charged to the depreciation reserves, net of salvage and removal costs. Transmission charges to maintenance the costs of repairs and renewal of items determined to be less than units of property.

The allowance for funds used during construction consists, in general, of the net cost of borrowed funds used for construction purposes and a reasonable rate on other funds when so used (the AFUDC rate). The allowance is determined by applying the AFUDC rate to the amount of construction work-in-progress. Capitalization begins at the time the Company begins the continuous accumulation of costs in a construction work order on a planned progressive basis and ends when the facilities are placed in service.

Income Taxes (See Note 5) - The Company accounts for income taxes under the provisions of SFAS No. 109, Accounting for Income Taxes. SFAS No. 109 provides for an asset and liability approach to accounting for income taxes. Under this approach, deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized based on anticipated future tax consequences attributable to differences between financial statement carrying amounts of assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases.

Trade Receivables - The Company establishes an allowance for doubtful accounts on trade receivables based on the expected ultimate recovery of these receivables. The Company considers many factors including historical customer collection experience, general and specific economic trends and known specific issues related to individual customers, sectors and transactions that might impact collectibility. Unrecovered trade accounts receivable charged against the allowance for doubtful accounts were $22.2, $0.3, and $0 million in 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively.

Use of Estimates - The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Reclassifications - Certain amounts in the consolidated financial statements have been reclassified in 2001 and 2000 to conform with the 2002 presentation with no impact on net income or stockholders' equity.

(3) Long-Term Debt and Other Financing Arrangements (continued)

The Company has note agreements that contain certain restrictions which, among other things, limit the incurrence of additional debt, the sale of assets and the payment of dividends. The agreements relating to Transmission's promissory notes include, among other things, restrictions as to the payment of dividends. At this date, the Company is in compliance with both affirmative and restrictive covenants of the note agreements, including tests on limitation of indebtedness, limitation of funded debt, and revenue tests.

The Company had a committed line of credit of $120 million which was terminated in August 2001. The Company also had a line of credit of $30 million, of which none was outstanding at December 31, 2001. The Company terminated this line of credit in 2002. The Company had also entered into a loan sales facility agreement in 2000 with a capacity of $40 million, of which none was outstanding at December 31, 2001. The Company terminated this line of credit in 2002. Transmission had absolutely and unconditionally guaranteed the obligations of the Company under these facilities.

Transmission has a committed revolving credit agreement of $100 million, of which $74.7 million was outstanding with a rate of 3.15% at December 31, 2001. The committed amount under this agreement was increased to $210 million in April 2002, and reduced to $70 million in July 2002, of which none was outstanding at December 31, 2002. The Company absolutely and unconditionally guaranteed the obligations of Transmission under the line of credit agreement.

Transmission sold $250 million of 144A bonds without registration rights in July 2002. These notes pay interest of 7% biannually on August 1 and February 1 of each year. The entire principal amount is due July 17, 2012.

Cash collateral deposits of $2.6 million in October 2002 from Transmission and deposits totaling $13.8 million in October and December 2002 from Trading were required by Credit Lyonnais to support fully collateralized letters of credit. See Note 11.

(4) Derivative Instruments

The Company elected to early adopt SFAS No. 133 during 2000. The Company determined its gas purchase contracts for resale and related gas sales contracts to be derivative instruments and recorded these at fair value as price risk management assets and liabilities. The valuation is calculated using a discount rate adjusted for the Company's borrowing premium of 250 basis points, which creates an implied reserve for credit and other related risks. The income from the adoption of SFAS No. 133, net of the write-offs of the contract-related deferred expenses was $46.0 million, recognized net of $17.1 million in taxes as a cumulative effect change in accounting principle. See Note 5. The fair value at December 31, 2002, for the price risk management assets and liabilities is $684.7 million and $627.5 million, respectively. The Company performs a quarterly revaluation on the carrying balances that is reflected in current earnings. The impact to earnings from revaluation in 2002, mostly due to price fluctuations, was a $22.9 million loss.

ENA ceased performing under the Company's purchase and sales contracts in December 2001. Subsequent to such date, the Company assumed responsibility for the performance under the respective contracts and performed necessary procedures throughout 2002. As a result of the foregoing, the Company has reported revenues and expenses under such contracts on a gross basis for the year ended December 31, 2002, due to the Company becoming the primary obligor under such contracts. Prior to 2002, such revenues and costs were reported net, as a component of Other Income (Expense) on statement of income due to ENA bearing the primary obligations of such contracts.

(4) Derivative Instruments (continued)

Prior to the Enron bankruptcy, the principal counterparty to these contracts was ENA. ENA has rejected these contracts in bankruptcy. The Company fully reserved and has written off all contract receivables from ENA. Pursuant to an existing operating agreement, an affiliate of El Paso is required to buy gas purchased from third parties under the contracts (primarily based on formula prices) at variable prices. As a result, the cash flow stream is now dependent on variable pricing, whereas before the bankruptcy, the cash flow stream was fixed. The quarterly valuations are based on management's best estimate of future cash flows from the underlying contracts. Changes in the future pricing projections could lead to material differences in the valuation of the derivative instruments.

Transmission entered into a series of interest rate swap transactions in 1999 designed to hedge any interest rate changes between the initiation date of the swaps and the date of a long-term debt financing. The aggregate notional amount of the swaps was $285 million. The swaps were terminated and the deferred gain of $10.2 million was reflected net of $3.9 in taxes as a cumulative effect of change in accounting principle upon adoption of SFAS No. 133 in 2000. See note 5.

During 2000 Transmission initiated a new swap and extended an existing swap to hedge interest rate changes which could occur between the initiation date of the swaps and the date of a completed December 2000 long-term debt financing of $325 million. The aggregate notional amount of these swaps was also $325 million. The $18.6 million fair value loss at the termination of the swap agreements was recognized as other comprehensive income and will be amortized over the life of the debt issued as an adjustment to interest expense.

During 2001, Transmission entered into a swap transaction in order to change a fixed interest rate for a floating interest rate on $135 million of existing long-term debt. A quarterly fair value calculation as required by SFAS No. 133 resulted in $3.2 million recorded to price risk management liabilities with an offset to long-term debt at December 31, 2001. This instrument was terminated in May 2002 with a fair value loss of $2.6 million recorded in long term debt, which will be amortized over the life of the debt issued as an adjustment to interest expense.

During 2002 Transmission initiated a new swap to hedge interest rate changes which could occur between the initiation date of the swap and the date of a completed July 2002 long-term debt financing of $250 million. The aggregate notional amount of this swap was also $250 million. The $12.3 million fair value loss at the termination of the swap agreement was recognized as other comprehensive income and will be amortized over the life of the debt issue as an adjustment to interest expense.

(5) Income Taxes (continued)

The differences between taxes computed at the U.S. federal statutory rate and the Company's effective tax rate for the years ended December 31, 2002, 2001, and 2000 are as follows (in thousands):

	2002	2001	2000
Statutory federal income tax provision	$ 54,709	$ 45,872	$ 56,765
State income taxes, net of federal benefit	4,960	4,719	5,331

Effective Tax Rate	38.2%	38.7%	38.2%
Federal Tax Rate	35.0%	35.0%	35.0%

The Company has an alternative minimum tax (AMT) credit which can be used to offset regular income taxes payable in future years. The AMT credit has an indefinite carry-forward period. For financial statement purposes, the Company has recognized the benefit of the AMT credit carry-forward as a reduction of deferred tax liabilities.

The Company files a consolidated federal income tax return separate from Southern and Enron.

(6) Employee Benefit Plans

The employees of the Company and its subsidiaries are covered under Enron's employee benefit plans. Enron maintains the Enron Corp. Cash Balance Plan (Cash Balance Plan), which is a noncontributory defined benefit pension plan to provide retirement income for employees of Enron and its subsidiaries. Through December 31, 1994, participants in the Enron Corp. Retirement Plan with five years or more of service were entitled to retirement benefits in the form of an annuity based on a formula that used a percentage of final average pay and years of service. In 1995 Enron's Board of Directors adopted an amendment to and restatement of the Retirement Plan changing the plan's name from the Enron Corp. Retirement Plan to the Enron Corp. Cash Balance Plan. In connection with a change to the retirement benefit formula, all employees became fully vested in retirement benefits earned through December 31, 1994. The formula in place prior to January 1, 1995 was suspended and replaced with a benefit accrual in the form of a cash balance of 5% of eligible annual base pay beginning in January 1, 1996. Pension expenses charged to the Company by Enron were $1.7, $.7, and $.9 million for 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively.

Enron has initiated steps to terminate the Cash Balance Plan in 2003. Effective January 1, 2003, Enron suspended future 5% benefit accruals under the Cash Balance Plan. Each employee's accrued benefit will continue to be credited with interest based on ten-year Treasury Bond yields. Because the Company is not part of an Enron "controlled group" as provided by Section 414(b) and (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, if the plan were to be terminated or if the Company were to withdraw from participation in the plan, the Company would be liable for only its proportionate share of any underfunding that may exist in the plan at the time of such termination or withdrawal. This liability would be minimal and not have any adverse impact on operating results, financial position or cash flow.

The Company's net periodic post-retirement benefit costs charged to the Company by Enron were $1.3, $1.2, and $1.1 million for 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively, substantially all of which relates to Transmission and are being recovered through rates.

Certain retirees of Transmission were covered under a deferred compensation plan managed and funded by Enron subsidiaries, one previously sold and the other now in bankruptcy. This matter has been included as part of the claim filed by Transmission in bankruptcy against Enron (with an amendment to be filed covering its subsidiary, Enron Management Inc., as well.) At this time, Transmission cannot determine what, if any, legal responsibility it has to these certain retirees. If such obligation were deemed to be a liability to Transmission, the range of exposure is $0 to approximately $6.0 million. Transmission does not believe that the ultimate resolution of this matter will have a material adverse effect on operating results, financial position or cash flow.

(7) Major Customers

Revenues from individual third party and affiliate customers exceeding 10% of total revenues for the years ended December 31, 2002, 2001, and 2000 were approximately as listed below (in millions). Due to the early adoption of SFAS No. 133 in 2000, Trading's gas sales transactions for the period July 2000 through December 2001 were not reported as revenues to the Company. All amounts had been reported net in Other Income (Expense). In 2002 the revenues are reported separately. See note 4.

Customers	2002	2001	2000
Florida Power & Light Company	$ 171.2	$ 144.2	$ 114.5
Enron North America (affiliate)	0.3	346.8	506.3
El Paso Merchant Energy (affiliate)	55.2	14.5	6.8

At December 31, 2002, and 2001, the Company's subsidiaries had receivables of approximately $15.4 and $13.9 million from Florida Power & Light Company. At December 31, 2002, and 2001, the Company had receivables of approximately $7.8 and $5.0 million from El Paso Merchant Energy.

(8) Related Party Transactions

In December 2001, Enron and certain of its subsidiaries filed voluntary petitions for Chapter 11 reorganization with the U.S. Bankruptcy court. The Company was not included in the bankruptcy filing and management believes that the Company will continue to be able to meet its operational and administrative service obligations under the existing operating agreements.

The Company incurs certain corporate administrative expenses from Enron and its affiliates pursuant to an informal administrative services agreement. These services include administrative, legal, compliance, and pipeline operations emergency services. The arrangement was originally governed by the provisions of an operating agreement between an Enron affiliate and the Company. The term of the operating agreement expired on June 30, 2001, and has not been extended. However, an Enron entity has continued to provide services under an informal arrangement based on the provisions of the original operating agreement. Under the arrangement, the Company reimburses the Enron entities for costs attributable to the operations of the Company. The Company expensed approximately $14.9, $13.8, and $15.8 million for these charges for the years ended December 31, 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively.

CITRUS CORP. AND SUBSIDIARIES

Pursuant to the Enron Bankruptcy, the Company has continued to accrue expenses related to management fees charged by Enron. As of December 31, 2002, the Company had not received 2002 invoices for these services. The Company has estimated the 2002 charges based on the 2001 actual allocations from Enron plus quantifiable adjustments. Enron has neither agreed nor disagreed to the valuation method used by The Company. The Company feels Enron will accept its methodology, but if it is refuted, additional liabilities would be incurred. At this time, management is unable to estimate the potential additional liability, if any.

The Company's subsidiaries provide natural gas sales and transportation services to Enron and El Paso affiliates at rates equal to rates charged to non-affiliated customers in the same class of service. Revenues related to these transportation services amounted to approximately $0.4, $3.4 and $4.4 million to Enron affiliates and $5.7, $3.6 and $4.7 million to El Paso affiliates for the years ended December 31, 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively. The Company's subsidiaries' gas sales amounted to approximately $0.0 (due to bankruptcy), $343.7 and $363.5 million to Enron affiliates and $55.2, $14.5 and $6.8 million to El Paso affiliates for the years ended December 31, 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively. The Company's subsidiaries also purchased gas from affiliates of Enron of approximately $0.0 (due to bankruptcy), $216.9 and $208.3 million and from affiliates of El Paso of approximately $19.9, $100.5 and $102.5 million for the years ended December 31, 2002, 2001, and 2000, respectively.

Effective November 1, 1997, the operations of the contracts held by Trading were divided between affiliates of Enron and El Paso. The fee charged, for services such as scheduling, billing, and other back office support, is based on a volumetric payment of $.005/MMBtu, or approximately 50% of the prior arrangement. During 2002 Trading accrued and paid $.014 million to El Paso Merchant Energy and accrued $.149 million for ENA for administrative fees. Under this agreement, Trading was guaranteed an earnings stream based on all firm long-term contracts in place at November 1, 1997. The earnings stream now fluctuates due to the variable pricing currently in effect, the result of Enron rejecting all aspects of certain agreements in bankruptcy court. An Enron affiliate continues to operate Trading's daily business of scheduling of volumes. See Note 4 for additional details.

The Company either jointly owns or licenses with other Enron affiliates certain computer and telecommunications equipment and software that is critical to the conduct of their business. In other cases, such equipment or software is wholly-owned by such affiliates, and the Company has no ownership interest or license in or to such equipment or software. Transmission participated in business applications that are shared among the Enron pipelines. All participating pipelines use the same common base system and then have a custom pipeline-specific component. Each pipeline pays for its custom development component and shares in the common base system development costs. There are specific software licenses that were entered into by an Enron affiliate that entitle Transmission to usage of the software licenses.

Transmission is a party to a Participation Agreement, dated effective as of November 1, 2002, with Enron and Enron Net Works to provide Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) services through an outsourcing arrangement with EC Outlook. Enron renegotiated an existing agreement with EC Outlook that lowered the cost of EDI services and that also provided the means for Transmission to be compliant with the most recent Gas Industry Standards Board (GISB) EDI standards. The contract has a termination date of November 30, 2005.

Transmission has construction reimbursement agreements with ENA under which payments are delinquent. These obligations totaled approximately $7.2 million and are included in Transmission's filed bankruptcy claims. These receivables are fully reserved by Transmission. The Company has filed proofs of claims regarding the amount of damages for breach of contract and other claims in the bankruptcy proceeding. However, the Company cannot predict the amounts, if any, that it will collect of the timing of collection.

Transmission entered into a compression service agreement with Enron Compression Services Company (ECS) in April 2002 that continues to perform under the terms of this agreement. This agreement requires Transmission to pay ECS to provide electric horsepower capacity and related horsepower hours to be used to operate Station 13A Electric Compressor Station. Amounts paid to ECS in 2002 totaled $1.5 million. Under related agreements, ECS is required to pay Transmission an annual lease fee and a monthly operating and maintenance fee to operate and maintain the facilities. Amounts received from ECS in 2002 for these services were $0.3 million. A Netting Agreement, dated effective November 1, 2002, was executed with ECS, providing for the netting of payments due under each of the O&M, lease, and compression service agreements with ECS.

(9) Regulatory Matters

Transmission's currently effective rates were established pursuant to a Stipulation and Agreement (Rate Case Settlement) which resolved all issues in Transmission's Natural Gas Act (NGA) Section 4 rate filing in FERC Docket No. RP96-366. The Rate Case Settlement, approved by FERC Order issued September 24, 1997, provided that Transmission cannot file a general rate case to increase its base tariff rates prior to October 1, 2000 (except in certain limited circumstances) and must file no later than October 1, 2001, since extended to October 1, 2003 pursuant to the Phase IV settlement discussed below. The Rate Case Settlement also provided that the rate charged pursuant to Transmission's rate schedule FTS-2 would decrease effective March 1, 1999 and March 1, 2000.

On December 1, 1998, Transmission filed an NGA Section 7 certificate application with the FERC in Docket No. CP99-94-000 to construct 205 miles of pipeline in order to extend the pipeline to Ft. Myers, Florida and to expand capacity by 272,000 MMBtu/day (Phase IV Expansion). Expansion costs were estimated at $351 million. Transmission requested that expansion costs be rolled into the rates applicable to FTS-2 (Incremental Expansion) service. On June 2, 1999, Transmission filed a Stipulation and Agreement (Phase IV Settlement) which resolved all non-environmental issues raised in the certificate proceeding and modified the Rate Case Settlement to provide that Transmission cannot file a general rate case to increase its base tariff rates prior to October 1, 2001 (except in certain limited circumstances), and must file no later than October 1, 2003. The Phase IV Settlement was approved by the FERC by order issued July 30, 1999, and became effective thirty days after the date that Transmission accepted an order issued by the FERC approving the Phase IV Expansion project. On August 23, 1999, Transmission amended its application on file with the FERC to eliminate a portion of the proposed facilities (that would be delayed until the Phase V Expansion). The amended application reflected the construction of 139.5 miles of pipeline and an expansion of capacity in order to provide incremental firm service of 196,405 MMBtu on an average annual day, with estimated project costs of $262 million. The Phase IV Expansion was approved by FERC order issued February 28, 2000, and accepted by Transmission on March 29, 2000. The Phase IV Expansion was placed in service on April 30, 2001. Total costs through December 31, 2002, were $244 million.

On December 1, 1999, Transmission filed an NGA Section 7 certificate application with the FERC in Docket No. CP00-40-000 to construct 215 miles of pipeline and 90,000 horsepower of compression and to acquire an undivided interest in the existing Mobile Bay Lateral owned by Koch Gateway Pipeline Company (now Gulf South Pipeline Company, LP), in order to expand the system capacity to provide incremental firm service to several new and existing customers of 270,000 MMBtu on an average annual day (Phase V Expansion). Expansion and acquisition costs were estimated at $437 million. Transmission requested that expansion costs be rolled into the rates applicable to FTS-2 (Incremental Expansion) service. On August 1, 2000, and September 29, 2000, Transmission amended its application on file with the FERC to reflect the withdrawal of two customers, the addition of a new customer and to modify the facilities to be constructed. The amended application reflected the construction of 167 miles of pipeline and 133,000 horsepower of compression to create additional capacity to provide 306,000 MMBtu of incremental firm service on an average annual day. The estimated cost of the revised project is $462 million. The Phase V Expansion was approved by FERC Order issued July 27, 2001, and accepted by Transmission on August 7, 2001. Portions of the project were placed in service in December 2001, March 2002, and December 2002, respectively. Total costs through December 31, 2002, were $370 million. The remainder of the Phase V expansion is scheduled to be placed in service on or before May 1, 2003.

On November 15, 2001, Transmission filed an NGA Section 7 certificate application with the FERC in Docket No. CP02-27-000 to construct 33 miles of pipeline and 18,600 horsepower of compression in order to expand the system to provide incremental firm service to several new and existing customers of 85,000 MMBtu on an average day (Phase VI Expansion). Expansion costs were estimated at $105 million. Transmission requested the expansion costs be rolled into rates applicable to FTS-2 (Incremental Expansion) service. The application was approved by FERC Order issued on June 13, 2002, and accepted by Transmission on July 19, 2002. Clarification was granted and a rehearing request of a landowner was denied by FERC Order of September 3, 2002. Construction is underway and the Phase VI expansion is anticipated to be placed in service on schedule by the end of 2003.

In July 2002, the FERC issued a Notice of Inquiry (NOI) that seeks comments regarding its 1996 policy of permitting pipelines to enter into negotiated rate transactions. The FERC is now reviewing whether negotiated rates should be capped, whether or not a pipeline's "recourse rate" (a cost-of-service based rate) continues to safeguard against a pipeline exercising market power, as well as other issues related to negotiated rate programs. Transmission has only two negotiated rate agreements, and both of these are at or below Transmission's currently effective maximum tariff rates. Thus, Transmission does not anticipate its negotiated rate transactions being impacted by this rulemaking. At this time, Transmission cannot predict the outcome of this NOI.

On August 1, 2002, the FERC issued a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NOPR) requiring that all cash management or money pool arrangements between a FERC regulated subsidiary and a non-FERC regulated parent must be in writing, and set forth: the duties and responsibilities of cash management participants and administrators; the methods of calculating interest and for allocating interest income and expenses; and the restrictions on deposits or borrowings by money pool members. The NOPR also requires specified documentation for all deposits into, borrowings from, interest income from, and interest expenses related to these arrangements. Finally, the NOPR proposed that as a condition of participating in a cash management or money pool arrangement, the FERC regulated entity maintain a minimum proprietary capital balance of 30 percent, and the FERC regulated entity and its parent maintain investment grade credit ratings. The FERC held a public conference on September 25, 2002, to discuss the issues raised in comments. Representatives of companies from the gas and electric industries participated on a panel and uniformly agreed that the proposed regulations should be revised substantially and that the proposed capital balance and investment grade credit rating requirements would be excessive. At this time, Transmission cannot predict the outcome of this NOPR as no final rule has been issued.

Also on August 1, 2002, the FERC's Chief Accountant issued an Accounting Release, to be effective immediately, providing guidance on how companies should account for money pool arrangements and the types of documentation that should be maintained for these arrangements. However, the Accounting Release did not address the proposed requirement that the FERC regulated entity maintain a minimum proprietary capital balance of 30 percent and that the entity and its parent have investment grade credit ratings. Comments were filed on or about August 28, 2002. The FERC has not yet issued a final rule. The Company no longer pools money with Transmission.

Transmission is currently subject to an industry wide nonpublic investigation of the FERC Form 2 (FERC's annual report) focusing on cash management or transfers between Transmission and Enron or affiliated companies. At this time, there are no outstanding data requests and the results of this investigation are unknown.

In Order No. 637, et. seq. ("Order No. 637"), the FERC revised its regulations relating to scheduling procedures, capacity segmentation, and pipeline penalties, with the stated purpose of improving the competitiveness and efficiency of the interstate pipeline grid. Among the provisions of Order No. 637 are requirements that pipelines give nominations at alternate points within a shipper's primary path scheduling priority over nominations at alternate points outside of a shipper's primary path, unless the pipeline could demonstrate such practice was operationally infeasible or would lead to anticompetitive results. Transmission and several of its shippers filed for rehearing of this requirement of Order No. 637, but these requests for rehearing were denied by the FERC, the order stating that such issues could be addressed in Transmission's individual compliance proceedings. In its compliance filing, Transmission, supported by a number of shippers, again argued that this requirement was inappropriate because it would lead to anticompetitive results, was contrary to an existing settlement, and was not consistent with Transmission's rate design. By Order issued February 26, 2003, ("February 26 Order") the FERC determined that Transmission must revise its Tariff to afford within-the-path alternate nominations a higher scheduling priority, but allowed Transmission to delay such filing until its NGA Section 4 Rate Case which must be filed on or before October 1, 2003. The February 26 Order also required Transmission to file tariff revisions within 15 days to permit shippers to release capacity outside of the shippers primary capacity paths. On March 6, 2003, Transmission filed a Motion for Extension of Time ("Motion") requesting that Transmission be allowed to delay the tariff filing until its next NGA Section 4 rate case so that these changes, as well as the within-the-path scheduling priorities, could be considered in the overall context of cost allocation and rate design. The Motion is pending FERC action. Implementation of the FERC's required changes would require changes to several of Transmission's business systems, the cost of which is currently being estimated.

In April 2002, FERC and the Department of Transportation, Office of Pipeline Safety convened a technical conference to discuss how to clarify, expedite, and streamline permitting and approvals for interstate pipeline reconstruction in the event of natural or other disaster. On January 17, 2003, FERC issued a NOPR proposing to (1) expand the scope of construction activities authorized under a pipeline's blanket certificate to allow replacement of mainline facilities; (2) authorize a pipeline to commence reconstruction of the affected system without a waiting period; and (3) authorize automatic approval of construction that would be above the normal cost ceiling. Comments on the NOPR were due on February 27, 2003. At this time we cannot predict the outcome of this rulemaking.

On January 28, 2003, the U.S. Department of Transportation issued a NOPR proposing to establish a rule requiring pipeline operators to develop integrity management programs to comprehensively evaluate their pipelines, and take measures to protect pipeline segments located in what the notice refers to as "high consequence areas." The proposed rule resulted from the enactment of the Pipeline Safety Improvement Act of 2002, a new bill signed into law in December 2002. At this time, we cannot predict the outcome of this rulemaking.

(13) Commitments and Contingencies

From time to time, in the normal course of business, the Company is involved in litigation, claims or assessments that may result in future economic detriment. The Company evaluates each of these matters and determines if loss accruals are necessary as required by SFAS No. 5, Accounting for Contingencies. The Company does not expect to experience losses that would be materially in excess of the amount accrued at December 31, 2002.

In 1999, Transmission entered into an agreement which obligated it to various natural gas and construction projects includable in its rate base. This obligation ends July 1, 2004.

Pursuant to recent pipeline safety legislation passed by the United States Congress, the Department of Transportation, Office of Pipeline Safety is in the process of creating new regulations regarding pipeline integrity. It is unclear what the cost of these regulations will be for Transmission's pipelines.

The Florida Turnpike Authority (FTA) has several turnpike widening projects in the planning state, which may, over the next ten years, impact one or more of Transmission's mainlines co-located in FTA right-of-way. The most immediate projects are five Sunshine State Parkway projects, which are proposed to overlap Transmission's pipelines, for a total of approximately 25 miles. Under certain conditions, the existing agreement between Transmission and the FTA calls for the FTA to pay for any new right-of-way needed for the relocation projects and for Transmission to pay for construction costs. The actual amount of miles of pipe to be impacted ultimately, and the relocation cost and/or right-of-way cost, recoverable through rates, is undefined at this time due to the preliminary stage of FTA's planning process.

(14) Concentrations of Credit Risk and Other Financial Instruments

The Company and its subsidiaries have a concentration of customers in the electric and gas utility industries. These concentrations of customers may impact the Company's overall exposure to credit risk, either positively or negatively, in that the customers may be similarly affected by changes in economic or other conditions. Credit losses incurred on receivables in these industries compare favorably to losses experienced in the Company's receivable portfolio as a whole. The Company and its subsidiaries also have a concentration of customers located in the southeastern United States, primarily within the State of Florida. Receivables are generally not collateralized. From time to time, specifically identified customers having perceived credit risk are required to provide prepayments, deposits, or other forms of security to the Company. In 2002, Transmission sought additional security from customers due to credit concerns, and received customer deposits of $8.2 million and prepayments of $3.9 million. The Company's management believes that the portfolio of receivables, which includes regulated electric utilities, regulated local distribution companies and municipalities, is of minimal credit risk.

The carrying amounts and fair value of the Company's financial instruments at December 31, 2002, and 2001 are as follows (in thousands):

	2002		2001
	Carrying Amount	Estimated Fair Value	Carrying Amount	Estimated Fair Value
Cash and cash equivalents	$ 109,916	$ 109,916	$ 11,098	$ 11,098
Long-term debt	1,249,989	1,398,291	1,099,957	1,224,076

The carrying amount of cash and cash equivalents and long-term debt reasonably approximate their fair value. The fair value of long-term debt is based upon market quotations of similar debt at interest rates currently available.

(16) Accounting Pronouncements

In August 2001 the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued SFAS No. 143, "Accounting for Asset Retirement Obligations." This statement requires companies to record a liability for the estimated removal costs of assets used in their business where there is a legal obligation associated with the removal. The liability is recorded at its fair value, with a corresponding asset which is depreciated over the remaining useful life of the long-lived asset to which the liability relates. An on going expense will also be recognized for changes in the value of the liability as a result of the passage of time. The provisions of SFAS No. 143 are effective for fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2002. The Company will adopt SFAS 143, beginning January 1, 2003, and does not believe that it will have any material impact on its results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

In July 2002 the FASB issued SFAS No. 146, "Accounting for Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities". This statement will require recognition of costs associated with exit or disposal activities when they are incurred rather than when a commitment is made to an exit or disposal plan. Examples of costs covered by this guidance include lease termination costs, employee severance costs associated with a restructuring, discontinued operations, plant closings or other exit or disposal activities. This statement is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 31, 2002, and will impact any exit or disposal activities initiated after January 1, 2003.

In November 2002, the FASB issued FIN No. 45, Guarantor's Accounting and Disclosure Requirements for Guarantees, including Indirect Guarantees of Indebtedness of Others. This interpretation requires that companies record a liability for all guarantees issued after January 31, 2003, including financial, performance, and fair value guarantees. This liability is recorded at its fair value upon issuance, and does not affect any existing guarantees issued before December 31, 2002. While the Company does not believe there will be any initial impact of adopting this standard, it will impact any guarantees the Company issues in the future.

(17) Subsequent Events

On February 20, 2003, Transmission received a demand from ENA for a refund of $260,000 in reservation charges. Transmission collected such charges from third party shippers to whom ENA released its capacity during the period May 1 through September 30, 2002. It is Transmission's position that it has complied with its tariff and has credited the charges collected to ENA's account, as required, leaving a balance owed by ENA to Transmission. Transmission also believes it is entitled, under bankruptcy recoupment theory, to refuse to pay any sums to ENA while still owed funds under the same contacts under which ENA is claiming refunds. Transmission so advised ENA on March 6, 2003, and will defend this claim, if necessary, in the Bankruptcy Court.

(17) Subsequent Events (continued)

Duke notified Trading on January 3, 2003, that it had "suffered a loss of LNG supply" within the meaning of the December 22, 1998 agreement between the parties. With a follow-up letter dated January 16, 2003, Duke claimed that it had suffered the loss of LNG supply starting January 15, 2002. Duke's obligations to supply replacement gas would cease after 730 consecutive days or if the "seller's replacement cost limitation" is reached, whichever comes first. The agreement defines the "replacement cost limitation" amount as $60 million escalated by the GNP implicit price deflator. The replacement cost limitation is approximately $79.2 million as of December 31, 2002. Unable to resolve the above contentions with Duke, Trading filed a petition against Duke on March 7, 2003, in the District Court of Harris County, Texas. Trading is asking the court to declare the following: 1) that no loss of LNG supply under the agreement has occurred, 2) that Duke is obligated to supply the "optional volumes" as defined by the agreement, 3) that Duke is in default under the agreement, 4) award Trading its actual damages against Duke and 5) award Trading such other and further relief to which Trading may be justly entitled. The outcome of this petition is not known at this time, however, the impact to Trading's mark-to-market portfolio using December 31, 2002, forward pricing would be a reduction in value of approximately $54.3 million.

On March 26, 2003, the FERC issued an order directing Trading to show cause, in a proceeding initiated by the order, why the FERC should not terminate Citrus' blanket marketing certificates by which Citrus is authorized to make sales for resale, at negotiated rates in interstate commerce of natural gas, subject to the NGA. Trading believes that it has not posted packages of gas on the Enron On Line platform, and that it has never made any gas sales into the California market, which is the subject of the FERC staff's investigation that lead to the issuance of the order. The Company plans to file a "show cause" document in response to the order no later than April 16, 2003. FERC intends to reach a final decision by July 31, 2003. An adverse ruling would terminate the blanket marketing certificates. The Company does not believe this order will have an adverse effect on its operating results, financial position or cash flows.

After reviewing bids received, and thoroughly reviewing the options, the Enron Board of Directors voted on March 19, 2003 to move forward with the creation of a new operating entity rather than selling its ownership interest in the Company. The formation of the new entity will require various board, bankruptcy court and regulatory approvals and is expected to be well underway by the end 2003.

Transwestern Pipeline Company -- Results of Operations

The following discussion and analysis of the financial condition and results of operations of Transwestern are based on the Financial Statements of Transwestern, which were prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, and should be read in conjunction with the Financial Statements included herein. The discussion of the results of operations contained herein was not prepared in connection with the original audit of Transwestern, and has not been reviewed by outside auditors.

Income Statement

Net income decreased by $496.2 million, from $69.7 million in 2000 to a loss of $426.5 million of net income in 2001. The loss in 2001 primarily reflects establishment of reserves of $820.2 million (for a $500.4 million impact on 2001 net income after tax effect) for receivables due from ENE and its Affiliates as a result of ENE's and certain of its Affiliates' bankruptcies in December 2001.

Operating revenues increased $26.8 million from $176.8 million in 2000 to $203.6 million in 2001. Transportation revenues accounted for $15.6 million of the increase. The increase in transportation revenues was from new contracts and higher rates attributable to higher demand in the California market and a full year of revenues from the Gallup Expansion. The State of California experienced high natural gas demands in 2001 as a result of low hydroelectric generation and unusually warm temperatures requiring higher electric generation. Interruptible revenues increased also due to higher demand in California. These increases were partially offset by lower rate surcharges due to the termination of the shared cost surcharge provision of Transwestern's Global Tariff Settlement on October 31, 2001. Gas and Liquids Sold revenues increased $11.0 million, from $26.3 million in 2000 to $37.3 million in 2001 due to higher retained fuel available to sell from higher deliveries to California and higher gas prices.

Operating and Maintenance Expenses increased $40.8 million, from $39.6 million in 2000 to $80.4 million in 2001. This increase is primarily due to bad debt expense. During 2001, Transwestern was a party to natural gas commodity price swaps with an ENA Affiliate, RMTC. ENA and certain Affiliates subsequently filed for bankruptcy and informed Transwestern that price swap agreements with Transwestern would not be performed. Transwestern closed out all outstanding financial instruments with ENA and fully reserved for their value as of December 31, 2001. Also, fuel used in operations increased as a result of the higher throughput volumes associated with higher demand in Transwestern's California market area mentioned above.

Other income decreased by $787.5 million from $23.8 million in 2000 to a loss of $763.7 million in 2001. On December 2, 2001, ENE and certain of its Affiliates filed for bankruptcy protection. As a result, a $784.7 million note receivable from ENE was fully reserved due to the uncertainty regarding the ability of ENE to repay the note receivable. Interest income decreased $1.5 million from $21.7 million in 2000 to $20.2 million in 2001. This decrease was due to the loss of intercompany interest income on the note receivable with ENE.

Interest expense increased $10.3 million from $11.1 million in 2000 to $21.4 million in 2001. On November 19, 2001, Transwestern closed on a $550.0 million, 364 days, secured revolving credit facility with two financial institutions. The additional interest expense and debt cost was associated with the secured revolver. The remaining interest expense is primarily associated with a reserve for intercompany interest income for November and December 2001, as a result of ENE's bankruptcy and its ability to pay the interest on notes payable.

Income taxes decreased $226.2 million from an expense of $44.7 million in 2000 to a benefit of $270.9 million in 2001 primarily as a result of a reserve set up due to the uncertainty regarding the ability of ENE and RMTC to repay its notes or pay its payables as discussed above.

Cash Flows

Cash Flow increased by $8.1 million, from $0.0 million in 2000 to $8.1 million in 2001.

Net Cash Provided by Operating Activities decreased by $762.2 million, from a cash inflow of $88.4 million in 2000 to a cash outflow of $673.8 million in 2001. This significant cash decline was significantly affected by transactions in 2001 unrelated to Transwestern's operations. In 2001, Transwestern had a total of $820.2 million in short-term notes and receivables defaulted on and reserved against due to ENE's and its Affiliates' bankruptcies. Excluding the establishment of these reserves, Transwestern's 2001 cash provided from operating activities was approximately $146.4 million. Comparable cash flow from operations in 2000 was $97.0 million. The year to year improvement primarily reflects the impact of improved revenues in 2001.

Net Cash Flow Used in Investing Activities decreased $56.0 million from funds used of $111.6 million in 2000 to funds used of $55.6 million in 2001. Capital expenditures were higher as a result of Transwestern's Red Rock Expansion. This was offset by an increase of $82.0 million in a note receivable from ENE that was classified as an investing activity in 2000.

Net Cash Flow from Financing Activities increased by $714.2 million from a cash inflow of $23.2 million in 2000 to a cash inflow of $737.4 million in 2001. In 2001, Transwestern entered into the $550.0 million revolving credit facility. Of that amount, Transwestern assumed an ENE obligation of $137.5 million and paid fees of $25.1 million, resulting in net proceeds of $387.4 million, which was loaned to ENE.

$365.5 million was reclassified in 2001 from intercompany receivables in working capital to note receivable from ENE in financing activities. $15.5 million of existing debt was retired in 2001. Therefore, without considering the ENE loans above, Transwestern used $82.7 million of cash in financing-related activities in 2001. In 2000, Transwestern refinanced long-term debt realizing net proceeds of $23.2 million, essentially used in investing activities.

At the end of 2001, Transwestern had $8.1 million of cash compared to a $4,000 balance at the end of 2000. Prior to ENE's bankruptcy, all of Transwestern's cash was advanced to ENE.

Report of Independent Auditors

The Board of Directors
Transwestern Pipeline Company

We have audited the balance sheet of Transwestern Pipeline Company (Transwestern) as of December 31, 2001, and the related statements of income, stockholder's equity and cash flows for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of Transwestern's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit. The financial statements of Transwestern for the year ended December 31, 2000 were audited by other auditors whose report dated February 23, 2001, except for Note 10, as to which the date is April 6, 2001, expressed an unqualified opinion on those statements.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the 2001 financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Transwestern at December 31, 2001, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the year then ended, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States.

As more fully described in Note 1, Transwestern is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Enron Corp. Enron Corp., along with certain other subsidiaries and affiliates, filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in December 2001. Transwestern was not a part of these bankruptcy proceedings and has continued its operations in the normal course of business since the bankruptcy filing. Management believes that Transwestern will not be placed in bankruptcy; that no actions on the part of its' federal regulators, the bankruptcy court or its creditors will cause Transwestern to significantly alter its operations or prevent it from operating as it does now for the "public convenience and necessity"; or, that will have a significant effect on its financial position, results of operations or cash flows, or that will prevent it from meeting all of its obligations as they become due. In addition, as more fully described in Note 3, in November 2001 Transwestern borrowed $550,000,000 under a note maturing in November 2002. Although Transwestern is not in violation of any debt covenants, has generated sufficient cash flows from operations to service the debt, and management believes Transwestern has sufficient collateral and borrowing capacity to renew or refinance this debt on a timely basis, management has not yet sought, or received, a commitment from any lender. Because of the uncertainties surrounding the Enron Corp. bankruptcy proceedings and what effect, if any, they might ultimately have on Transwestern, and because Transwestern does not yet have a firm commitment from a lender to ensure that it is able to repay the $550,000,000 of debt when it becomes due during 2002, there exists substantial doubt about whether Transwestern can obtain such financing and, thus, whether it will continue as a going concern. The accompanying financial statements have been prepared assuming that Transwestern will continue as a going concern and, therefore, do not include any adjustments to reflect the possible future effects on the recoverability and classification of assets.

As discussed in Note 5 to the financial statements, in 2001 Transwestern changed its method for accounting for derivative instruments.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

December 31, 2001 and 2000

(1) Nature of Operations and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Transwestern Pipeline Company (Transwestern) is a subsidiary of Transwestern Holding Company, Inc. (TW Holdings) a wholly-owned subsidiary of Enron Transportation Services Company (ETS), formerly Enron Pipeline Company, which is a majority-owned subsidiary of Enron Corp. (Enron). ETS and its subsidiaries are members of an operating group which engages in transactions characteristic of group administration and operations with other members of the group. Transwestern owns and operates an interstate natural gas pipeline system stretching from Texas, Oklahoma and the San Juan Basin to the California border. Transwestern is a major natural gas transporter to the California border and Mid-Continent markets and aggressively markets off the east end of its system to Texas intrastate and midwest markets.

On December 2, 2001, Enron filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, and since that date has been engaged in restructuring its business and financial operations and in preparing a plan of reorganization. It is not known when, or if, such plan will receive approval of the Bankruptcy Court or what affect such plan might have on Transwestern. As part of Transwestern's November 2001 debt offering (see Note 3), TW Holdings was created as an entity to hold the stock of Transwestern, separate from Enron. Some of the common stock of TW Holdings is held in a voting trust that was created to protect the lenders by preventing Enron from forcing Transwestern to file for bankruptcy protection.

On November 13, 2001 Transwestern closed on a $550 million 364 day, secured, revolving credit facility (the "Revolver") with two financial institutions (the "Banks"), as further described in Note 3. Transwestern's management plans to extend or refinance the Revolver at or before its scheduled maturity in November 2002. This plan is supported by Transwestern's ability to service its debt with cash flows from current operations, and its plans for current and future expansion of capacity to serve growing markets in the Southwestern United States.

If the Revolver is not extended or refinanced, the Banks have the right to assume ownership of Transwestern by foreclosing on the common stock that was pledged to them to secure the repayment of the Revolver. Although substantially all of the pipeline assets are also pledged for the repayment of the Revolver, the Banks would not be able to foreclose on the physical facilities in order to liquidate the assets without first obtaining authority to do so from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). The FERC is highly unlikely to deem a wholesale liquidation of Transwestern's pipeline system to be in the "public convenience and necessity." Transwestern's outside counsel has advised that there is no precedent for the U.S. Bankruptcy Court to circumvent the FERC's authority over disposition of jurisdictional facilities by interstate natural gas pipelines.

(1) Nature of Operations and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

Other potential impacts of the Enron bankruptcy proceedings have also been considered by management. The Banks are also providing Enron's debtor-in-possession financing and had initially determined to use a portion of such financing to repay the Revolver and include Transwestern in the bankruptcy process, thereby improving their secured lender status. That proposal was rejected by the committee of Enron's unsecured creditors because Transwestern had more value to the creditors as a viable, non-bankrupt business. The terms of the Revolver provide that Transwestern's cash accounts and transactions are totally segregated from those of Enron and its debtor subsidiaries. In addition, all dividends, distributions and loans to Enron and its affiliates are strictly prohibited. This provides the Banks and potential lenders with further assurance that Transwestern's cash flows will be available for debt service. During the term of the agreement Transwestern is prohibited from loaning funds or making distributions to Enron, as well as being required to do business separately from Enron in a manner that will not cause confusion as to the separate distinct identity and legal existence of Transwestern. Transwestern, by the terms of the notes, is not allowed to refer to itself as a department or division of Enron as well.

In the unlikely event that Transwestern would be placed in bankruptcy, the FERC's past precedent in dealing with regulated utilities in bankruptcy is to allow them to continue to operate in the public convenience and necessity rather than to force the liquidation of the jurisdictional facilities. Precedents include the Columbia Gas System and United Gas Pipeline.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Property, Plant and Equipment

The provision for depreciation and amortization is computed using the straight-line method based on estimated economic or Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) mandated lives. Composite depreciation rates ranging from 1.2% to 10.0% are applied to functional groups of property having similar economic characteristics.

Transwestern charges the cost of repairs to operating and maintenance expense. Costs of replacements and renewals of units of property are capitalized. The original cost of property retired is charged to accumulated depreciation and amortization, net of salvage and removal costs. No retirement gain or loss is included in the results of operations except in the case of sales or exceptional retirements of operating units.

The accrual of allowance for funds used during construction (AFUDC) is a utility accounting practice calculated under guidelines prescribed by the FERC and capitalized as part of the cost of utility plant. It represents the cost of servicing the capital invested in construction work-in-progress. Such AFUDC has been segregated into two component parts – borrowed and equity funds. The allowance for borrowed and equity funds used during construction totaled $.6 million and $.1 million for 2001 and 2000, respectively, and is included in "Other Income" and "Interest expense and related charges, net", respectively, in the Statement of Operations.

Included in gross property, plant and equipment is an aggregate plant acquisition adjustment of $438.8 million which represents costs allocated to Transwestern's transmission plant as a result of its acquisition by Enron in 1984. Currently, this adjustment amount is not considered by the FERC in determining the tariff rates Transwestern may charge to its regulated customers. At December 31, 2001 and 2000, $144.6 million and $138.6 million, respectively, was included in accumulated depreciation and amortization related to the plant acquisition adjustment.

System Gas

Transwestern accounts for system balancing gas using the fixed asset accounting model established under FERC Order No. 581. Under this approach, system gas volumes are classified as fixed assets and valued at historical cost. Encroachments upon system gas are valued at current market.

Income Taxes

Transwestern is included in the consolidated federal and state income tax returns filed by Enron. Pursuant to tax allocation arrangements, Enron will pay to each subsidiary an amount equal to the tax benefits realized in Enron's consolidated federal income tax return resulting from the utilization of the subsidiary's net operating losses and/or tax credits, or each subsidiary will pay to Enron an amount equal to the federal income tax computed on its separate company taxable income less the tax benefits associated with net operating losses and/or tax credits generated by the subsidiary which are utilized in Enron's consolidated federal income tax return. To the extent a state requires or permits a consolidated, combined or unitary tax return to be filed, and such return includes any of Enron's subsidiaries, the principles expressed with respect to the consolidated federal income tax allocation apply for settlement of state taxes.

Transwestern accounts for income taxes under the provisions of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 109, "Accounting for Income Taxes," which provides for an asset and liability approach to accounting for income taxes. Under this approach, deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized based on anticipated future tax consequences attributable to differences between financial statement carrying amounts of assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases (see Note 2).

Computer Software

Transwestern's accounting policy for the costs of computer software (all of which is for internal use only) is to capitalize direct costs of materials and services consumed in developing or obtaining software, including payroll and payroll-related costs for employees who are directly associated with and who devote time to the software project. Costs may begin to be capitalized once the application development stage has begun. All other costs are expensed as incurred. Transwestern amortizes the costs at a rate of 10% per year. Impairment is evaluated based on changes in the expected usefulness of the software. Transwestern has capitalized software costs, net of amortization, of $5.5 million and $6.4 million at December 31, 2001 and 2000, respectively.

Environmental Expenditures

Expenditures that relate to an existing condition caused by past operations, and do not contribute to current or future revenue generation, are expensed. Environmental expenditures relating to current or future revenues are expensed or capitalized as appropriate based on the nature of the costs incurred. Liabilities are recorded when environmental assessments and/or clean ups are probable and the costs can be reasonably estimated.

Recently Issued Accounting Pronouncements

In July 2001, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued SFAS No. 142, "Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets." SFAS No. 142, which must be applied to fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2001, modifies the accounting and reporting of goodwill and intangible assets. Management does not expect that Transwestern's adoption of Statement No. 142 will have any material impact on its financial condition or results of operations.

In August 2001, the FASB issued SFAS No. 143, "Accounting for Asset Retirement Obligations." SFAS No. 143, which must be applied to fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2002, addresses financial accounting and reporting for obligations associated with the retirement of tangible long-lived assets and the associated asset retirement costs. Management is in the process of evaluating the impact that adoption of SFAS No. 143 will have on its financial condition or results of operations.

In October 2001, the FASB issued SFAS No. 144, "Accounting for the Impairment or Disposal of Long-Lived Assets." SFAS No. 144 addresses the financial accounting and reporting for the impairment or disposal of long-lived assets. Management does not expect that Transwestern's adoption of Statement No. 144 will have any material impact on its financial condition or results of operations.

Certain reclassifications have been made to the prior year's financial statements to conform with the current year presentation.

(3) Short-Term Debt

On November 19, 2001, Transwestern entered into a revolving credit facility agreement (Revolver) of $550.0 million. The Revolver is secured by all of the common stock of Transwestern and, subject to certain exceptions, all other assets of Transwestern. $412.5 million of the proceeds of the Revolver were used for loans to Enron. Another $137.5 million of the proceeds were used to pay an Enron obligation to Citibank and was recorded as an additional advance to Enron. The term of the Revolver is 364 days. The interest rate in effect at December 31, 2001 was 4.656%. The estimated fair value of Transwestern's short-term debt at December 31, 2001 was $550.0 million.

At December 31, 2001, Transwestern was in default of certain debt covenants contained in the Revolver, the most significant of which required Transwestern to maintain a tangible net worth of no less than $750.0 million. Subsequent to Enron's bankruptcy filing on December 2, 2001, Transwestern provided reserves on 100% of all intercompany balances due to it from Enron, thus significantly reducing its tangible net worth. Transwestern has obtained a waiver from the lenders for this event of default. The First Amendment and Waiver to the Revolver, dated April 30, 2002, amended the amount of the tangible net worth test to $400 million and waived the event of default which occurred as a result of the bankruptcy of Enron and revised certain other terms of the Revolver.

In connection with the November 19, 2001 financing transaction mentioned above, Enron completed a corporate restructuring of Transwestern designed to further separate a subsidiary from its parent and affiliates, which may allow Transwestern to retain its own credit rating based on its own creditworthiness. This restructuring transaction involved creating a new company (TW Holdings), between Enron and Transwestern, to hold all of the stock of Transwestern. TW Holdings' Articles of Incorporation require the unanimous approval of its Board of Directors and stockholders to a) merge or consolidate with any entity; b) sell, lease or transfer all, or substantially all, of its assets to any entity; c) acquire all, or substantially all, of the assets or capital stock or other ownership interest of any other entity; d) institute, or consent to, bankruptcy, insolvency or similar proceedings or actions; e) make any assignment for the benefit of others; f) issue any additional shares of common stock or any security convertible into share of common stock; or, g) make any change to its Articles of Incorporation. In addition, Transwestern has ended its intercompany borrowing and cash management program, and is restricted from making dividends or advancing any funds to Enron or its affiliates.

Because of the nature of the transaction described above, management of Transwestern believes that the other parties to the Revolver are fully secured, and that Transwestern would not be substantively consolidated with Enron in any insolvency or bankruptcy proceeding.

Management plans to secure a credit rating for Transwestern based upon its own creditworthiness, separate and apart from Enron. Management believes this will allow Transwestern to refinance amounts due under the Revolver when such amounts become due in November 2002, or to obtain new financing that will enable Transwestern to repay the debt on a timely basis. Management believes that Transwestern has sufficient collateral and borrowing capacity to allow it to successfully complete such a transaction, to remain current on its debt obligation and to continue as a going concern.

(5) Derivative Instruments

The FASB issued, and subsequently amended, Statement No. 133, "Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities" (Statement No. 133), which was adopted by the Company January 1, 2001. Provisions in Statement No. 133, as amended, affect the accounting and disclosure of certain contractual arrangements and operations of the Company. Under Statement No. 133, as amended, all derivative instruments are recognized in the balance sheet at their fair values and changes in fair value are recognized immediately in earnings, unless the derivatives qualify and are designated as hedges of future cash flows, fair values, net investments or qualify and are designated as normal purchases and sales. For derivatives treated as hedges of future cash flows, the effective portion of changes in fair value is recorded in other comprehensive income until the related hedged items impact earnings. Any ineffective portion of a hedge is reported in earnings immediately. Derivatives treated as normal purchases or sales are recorded and recognized in income using accrual accounting. The market prices used to value these transactions reflected management's best estimate considering various factors including closing exchange and over-the-counter quotations, time value and volatility factors underlying the commitments.

On January 1, 2001, Transwestern recorded the impact of the adoption of Statement No. 133, as amended, as a cumulative effect adjustment of $21.2 million loss in "Accumulated Other Comprehensive Income (Loss)" (OCI), a component of stockholders' equity.

Transwestern enters into derivative instruments, such as forwards, swaps and other contracts, in order to hedge certain non-trading risks, including interest rate risk and commodity price risk. Transwestern primarily uses cash flow hedges, for which the objective is to provide protection against variability in cash flows due to commodity price risk and interest rate risk. Transwestern accounts for such hedging activity by initially deferring the gain or loss related to the fair value changes in derivative instruments in OCI. The deferred change in fair value is then reclassified into income concurrently with the recognition in income of the cash flow item hedged. The balance in other comprehensive income (loss) at December 31, 2001 is expected to be reclassified to future earnings, contemporaneously with the recognition in income of the cash flow item being hedged. The cash flow impact of financial instruments is reflected as cash flows from operating activities in the accompanying Statement of Cash Flows.

During the year ended December 31, 2001, there was no material ineffectiveness from changes in fair value of hedge positions, and no amounts were excluded from the assessment of hedge effectiveness related to the hedge of future cash flows. Additionally, no amounts were reclassified to earnings in connection with forecasted transactions that were no longer considered probable of occurring.

During the year ended December 31, 2001, Transwestern was a party to natural gas commodity price swaps that qualified as cash flow hedges. The swaps covered a notional volume of 68 TBtu of natural gas. The maximum amount of time over which cash flow exposure in forecasted transactions is hedged is approximately two years. As a matter of practice, derivative contracts are entered into with counterparties with credit ratings equivalent to investment grade securities. However, no cash flows are expected from these hedges for 2002 and 2003 because Transwestern's counterparty on all of its hedges, also a subsidiary of Enron, filed for bankruptcy protection in December 2001. Accordingly, Transwestern terminated all its hedge instruments and has fully reserved its claim as a result of nonperformance by the related party on derivative instruments. See Note 11 for recent events concerning related party credit rating changes of Enron. The remaining balance in OCI will be reclassified into earnings contemporaneously with the recognition in income of the item being hedged. Of this amount, approximately $17.5 million of income is estimated to be reclassified into earnings during the year ending December 31, 2002.

Notional amounts reflect the volumes of transactions but do not represent the amounts exchanged by the parties to the financial instruments. Accordingly, notional amounts do not accurately measure Transwestern's exposure to market or credit risks. The maximum terms in years are not indicative of likely cash flows as these positions may be offset in the markets at any time in response to Transwestern's price risk management needs to the extent available in the market.

(6) Comprehensive Income (Loss)

Comprehensive income (loss) includes the following components (in thousands):

	December 31,
	2001	2000
Net income (loss)	$ (426,499)	$ 69,666
Other comprehensive income (loss):

Recognition in earnings of previously deferred (gains) and losses related to derivative instruments used as cash flow hedges	4,671	-
 Total comprehensive income (loss)	 $ (394,411)	 $ 69,666

No deferred income tax provision for the OCI components above was recorded because Transwestern anticipates the related derivative instruments will not be realized (see Note 11).

(7) Accounts Receivable and Related Activity

Transwestern has a concentration of customers in the electric and gas utility industries. These concentrations of customers may impact Transwestern's overall exposure to credit risk, either positively or negatively, in that the customers may be similarly affected by changes in economic or other conditions. However, management believes that the portfolio of receivables, which is primarily local distribution companies (LDC), is well diversified and that such diversification minimizes any potential credit risk.

The following customers accounted for 10% or more of Transwestern's transportation revenues for the year ended December 31, 2001: Southern California Gas Company (SoCalGas), 32%; and Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E), 10%. SoCalGas has exercised its contractual right to release a total of 457 million British thermal units per day (MMBtu/d) of firm capacity as of November 1, 1996, while retaining 306 MMBtu/d of firm capacity through October 31, 2005. The agreement regarding cost allocation for this capacity is discussed in Note 10.

During 2000 and 2001, the California power market was significantly impacted by the increase in wholesale power prices. On April 6, 2001, PG&E filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. This event had no material impact on the financial position or results of operations of Transwestern for the year ended December 31, 2001. Transwestern continues to provide transportation services to PG&E on a basis that addresses credit risk. Due to the uncertainties surrounding the California power situation, management cannot predict the ultimate outcome, but believes these matters will not have a material adverse impact on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations (see Note 10).

(8) Employee Benefit Plans

The employees of the Company are covered under Enron's employee benefit plans. During the years ended December 31, 2001 and 2000, Transwestern was charged $4.4 million and $4.3 million, respectively, for all such benefits.

Enron maintains a retirement plan which is a noncontributory defined benefit plan covering substantially all employees in the United States and certain employees in foreign countries. The benefit accrual is in the form of a cash balance of 5% of annual base pay. The cost of the plan charged by Enron to Transwestern was not significant for 2001 and 2000.

Transwestern's net periodic post-retirement benefit cost charged by Enron was $.5 million and $.3 million in 2001 and 2000, respectively.

(9) Rate Matters and Regulatory Issues

Rate matters and regulatory issues are regulated by the FERC. As a result, these operations are subject to the provisions of SFAS No. 71, "Accounting for the Effects of Certain Types of Regulation," which recognizes the economic effects of regulation and, accordingly, Transwestern has recorded regulatory assets and liabilities related to such operations. Transwestern evaluates the applicability of regulatory accounting and the recoverability of these assets and liabilities through rates or other contractual mechanisms on an ongoing basis.

(9) Rate Matters and Regulatory Issues (continued)

The principal components of Transwestern's regulatory assets at December 31, 2001 and 2000 are as follows (in thousands):

	2001	2000

Other	9,374	11,034
	$ 73,782	$ 79,053

At December 31, 2001, substantially all of Transwestern's regulatory assets and liabilities are recoverable in rates.

The accumulated reserve adjustment included in the table above resulted from the May 2, 1995 settlement agreement (May 2, 1995 Settlement) further described below. The settlement approved Transwestern's proposal to refunctionalize certain facilities from production and gathering to transmission, and from transmission to production and gathering. As directed by the FERC Order issued upon approval of the settlement, Transwestern established a regulatory asset for an accumulated reserve adjustment of $50.1 million which represents the difference between recorded amounts of accumulated depreciation (determined on a vintage basis) and approved amounts of accumulated depreciation based on remaining reserves related to the gathering facilities. The accumulated reserve adjustment is being amortized at a 1.2 % annual rate.

(9) Rate Matters and Regulatory Issues (continued)

Transwestern is involved in several rate matters and regulatory issues, the significant items of which are discussed below.

Since 1988, Transwestern has filed approximately $278.7 million in transition costs (deferred contract reformation costs) with the FERC under FERC Order Nos. 500 and 528 providing for recovery from customers of approximately $215.5 million. Of total transition costs incurred, $6.5 million remains to be collected as of December 31, 2001 over the period ending October 31, 2006.

Anticipating a turnback by SoCalGas of approximately 457 MMBtu/d of firm capacity on November 1, 1996, Transwestern entered into the May 2, 1995 Settlement with its customers whereby the costs associated with the turnback capacity will be shared by Transwestern and its current firm customers. This cost sharing mechanism ended October 31, 2001. Transwestern is at risk for 100% of its unsubscribed capacity. In addition to this cost sharing mechanism, Transwestern and its current firm customers also agreed to contract settlement rates through 2006, and agreed that Transwestern would not be required to file a new rate case to become effective prior to November 1, 2006. The settlement was approved on July 27, 1995.

On May 21, 1996, Transwestern entered into a settlement (May 21, 1996 Settlement) with its customers amending the May 2, 1995 Settlement and resolving numerous regulatory issues on Transwestern's system. The May 21, 1996 Settlement resolved all issues involving recovery of unrecovered purchased gas costs and all costs included in Transwestern's alternate recovery mechanism (PGAR costs) filed in Docket No. RP94-227-000. In that regard, the settlement provided that: (i) Transwestern's collection of PGAR costs through the surcharge mechanism would total $5,368,940, reflecting fifty percent (50%) of the principal and interest as filed in Docket No. RP94-227-000; and (ii) all pending pleadings including all court appeals would be withdrawn. On October 16, 1996 the FERC approved the May 21, 1996 Settlement.

On July 16, 2001, Transwestern was authorized to abandon and replace certain compressor facilities located at four compressor stations in Arizona (Red Rock Expansion). The four new compressor units will create 150,000 Mcf per day of incremental firm capacity on the western portion of Transwestern's system, which terminates at the Arizona/California border. Transwestern estimated the cost to abandon the existing units to be approximately $.4 million, and the cost to install the new units to be approximately $92.9 million. Transwestern expects to utilize funds from operations to finance this expansion. Pursuant to an open season held by Transwestern late in 2000, a total of 106.7 Mcf per day has currently been subscribed under firm contracts. Because the total incremental capacity has not yet been fully subscribed, Transwestern has elected to delay the installation of one of the new units until 2003. Construction activities have commenced at the remaining three stations, which will provide incremental capacity of 120,000 Mcf per day. Project completion is expected in the summer of 2002 for these three units.

(9) Rate Matters and Regulatory Issues (continued)

Transwestern believes, based on its experience to-date that the ultimate resolution of Transwestern's regulatory matters will not have a material adverse effect on its financial position or results of operations.

(10) Litigation and Other Contingencies

Transwestern is party to various claims, litigation and other contingent issues, the significant items of which are discussed below.

Grynberg v. Enron, et al. (97D-1421 Dist. Colo.). The plaintiff has filed actions against a number of Enron companies, including Transwestern, in the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado, for damages for mis-measurement of gas volumes and Btu content, resulting in lower royalties to mineral interest owners. Transwestern believes that its measurement practices conformed to the terms of its FERC Gas Tariff, which is filed with and approved by FERC. As a result, Transwestern believes that it has meritorious defenses (including FERC-related affirmative defenses, such as the filed rate/tariff doctrine, the primary/exclusive jurisdiction of FERC, and the defense that Transwestern complied with the terms of its tariff) to the complaint and is defending the suit vigorously.

Quinque Operating Company (Ditto) v. PG&E, et al., Cause No. 99CV30; Dist. Ct. Stevens Co., Kansas. The plaintiff has filed actions against a number of parties, including Transwestern, in a Kansas state district court for damages for mis-measurement of gas volumes and Btu content, resulting in lower royalties. Transwestern believes that its measurement practices conformed to the terms of its FERC Gas Tariff, which is filed with and approved by FERC. As a result, Transwestern believes that it has meritorious defenses (including FERC-related affirmative defenses, such as the filed rate/tariff doctrine, the primary/exclusive jurisdiction of FERC, and the defense that Transwestern complied with the terms of its tariff) to the complaint and is defending the suit vigorously.

FERC Docket Nos. RP97-288-009, -010, -011, and 012. For the month of February 2001, Transwestern filed negotiated rate transactions in the above-referenced proceedings with Sempra Energy Trading and Richardson Products Company containing index based rates. On March 2, 2001, the Commission issued an order accepting Transwestern's negotiated rates transactions in the above-referenced proceedings, subject to refund and subject to a further Commission order on the merits. On July 26, 2001, the Commission issued an order setting these proceedings for an expedited hearing. The hearing was held on August 29, 2001, and this matter is currently pending before the Commission. Transwestern estimates that its aggregate exposure for rate refunds in these proceedings is approximately $10 million.

Transwestern is subject to extensive federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations. These laws and regulations require expenditures in connection with the construction of new facilities, the operation of existing facilities and for remediation at various operating sites. The implementation of the Clean Air Act Amendments is expected to result in increased operating expenses. These increased operating expenses are not expected to have a material impact on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations.

Transwestern conducts soil and groundwater remediation at a number of its facilities. In 2001 and 2000 these expenses were not material. Transwestern does not expect to incur material expenditures in connection with soil and groundwater remediation.

Transwestern incurred, and continues to incur, certain costs related to polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) that migrated into one of its customer's facilities. These PCBs were originally introduced into the Transwestern system through use of a PCB-based lubricant in the late 1960's and 1970's. Because of the continued detection of PCBs in the customer's facilities downstream of Transwestern's Topock station, Transwestern continues to take measures to contain and remove the PCBs. The cost of these remedial activities were not material in 2001 and not estimated to be material in 2002.

As discussed in Note 7, in 2000 and 2001 the California power market was significantly impacted by the increase in wholesale prices. On April 6, 2001, PG&E filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11 of the U. S. Bankruptcy Code. (PG&E has historically been a significant customer of Transwestern.) This event had no material impact on the financial position or results of operations of Transwestern for the year ended December 31, 2001. Transwestern continues to provide transportation services to PG&E on a basis that addresses credit risk. Management cannot predict the final outcome of this situation or the uncertainties surrounding the California power situation.

However, as a result of the basis on which Transwestern is providing transportation services to PG&E and the significant demand for capacity on Transwestern's pipeline system to the California border, management continues to believe these matters will not have a material adverse impact on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations.

While it is not possible to predict with certainty the final outcome of the aforementioned litigation and other contingencies, management believes that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations.

(11) Related Party Transactions

Transwestern recorded sales, transportation and other revenue from affiliates approximating $7.2 million and $7.8 million in 2001 and 2000, respectively.

During 2001, Transwestern was a party to natural gas commodity price swaps with an affiliate covering a notional volume of 68.0 TBtu with a maximum term of two years. The estimated fair value and carrying value of $32.2 million as of December 14, 2001 was used in computing the liquidated value of the contract. In December 2001, as a result of Enron's bankruptcy (see further discussion below), Transwestern closed out all outstanding financial instruments with its affiliate and issued a demand letter totaling $33.6 million. This amount was fully reserved as of December 31, 2001.

Until December 2, 2001, Transwestern was included in Enron's cash management program. Based on Transwestern's cash availability or requirements, advances were made either to or from Enron. The net result of all of Transwestern's cash flows, including reimbursements to Enron for income tax liabilities, employee benefit plans and various administrative expenses described below, was reflected as "Note receivable from parent company" (Note Receivable) on the accompanying Balance Sheets. Transwestern received (or paid) interest on its note receivable with Enron, which for 2000 was 6% on the note balance at December 31, 1997 and 9.5% on the note balance accumulated after 1997. Beginning January 1, 2001, the interest rate was calculated on a daily basis at a rate per annum equal to the daily corresponding Fed Funds Rate, less .05%, as published in the Federal Reserve Statistical Release H.15, which ranged from 1.14% to 6.62% for the year ended December 31, 2001. These rates were determined solely by Enron management. Interest income of $20.2 and $21.7 was recorded in 2001 and 2000, respectively. No interest expense was recorded in 2001 or 2000.

On December 2, 2001, Enron and certain of its subsidiaries filed voluntary petitions under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code. As a result, the $785 million note receivable was reserved due to the uncertainty regarding Enron's ability to repay.

Transwestern incurred administrative expenses from Enron and affiliated service companies of approximately $10.8 million and $13.0 million in 2001 and 2000, respectively. These costs are based on usage, or where no direct method is reasonable, Transwestern's components of gross property, plant and equipment, gross margin and annualized payroll as a percentage of all Enron companies.

Non-Cash Transaction with Enron

In June 2001, Transwestern exercised its option to prepay its $150 million promissory note to Enron due March 31, 2004. The payment of the note was accomplished by netting the $150 million balance against the note receivable from Enron.

2002 vs. 2001

Transwestern Pipeline Company -- Results of Operations

The following discussion and analysis of the financial condition and results of operations of Transwestern are based on the Financial Statements of Transwestern, which were prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, and should be read in conjunction with the Financial Statements included herein. The discussion of the results of operations contained herein was not prepared in connection with the original audit of Transwestern, and has not been reviewed by outside auditors.

Income Statement

Net income increased by $447.2 million, from a $426.5 million loss in 2001 to $20.7 million of net income in 2002. The loss in 2001 primarily reflects the establishment of reserves of $820.2 million (for a $500.4 million impact on 2001 net income after tax effect) for receivables due from ENE and its Affiliates as a result of ENE's and certain of its Affiliates' bankruptcies in December 2001.

Transwestern's operating revenues increased $14.0 million from $203.6 million in 2001 to $217.6 million in 2002. Transportation revenues increased $21.2 million, from $165.9 million in 2001 to $187.1 million in 2002, due partly to higher revenues from Transwestern's Red Rock Expansion Project partially offset by a decline in interruptible revenues in 2002 due to lower total demand in California and to a shift of throughput to firm transportation agreements. Demand in California was lower in 2002 compared to 2001 due partially to that state's unusually high natural gas demand in 2001 as a result of low hydroelectric generation and unusually warm temperatures requiring higher electric generation. Additionally, surcharges decreased in 2002 primarily due to the termination of the shared cost surcharge provision of Transwestern's Global Tariff Settlement in 2001. Finally, Transwestern made a hedge accounting adjustment in 2002, increasing transportation revenues by $32.1 million (see below). Gas and Liquids Sold revenues declined $7.2 million, from $37.3 million in 2001 to $30.1 million in 2002 due to lower volumes of retained fuel available for sale as a result of lower deliveries to California and lower gas prices.

During 2001, Transwestern entered into financial swaps to hedge the value of certain negotiated transportation agreements that had a transportation rate dependent on the difference between the market price of gas at the delivery and receipt points. On December 2, 2001, ENA, the parent of RMTC, Transwestern's hedge counterparty, filed for bankruptcy. Prior to the ENA bankruptcy, the value of the financial swap contracts was $32.1 million. On December 31, 2001, unrealized gains of $32.1 million on the financial swaps were recorded in Other Comprehensive Income ("OCI"), a balance sheet equity account, and $32.1 million of losses were recorded in Operating Expenses due to the default under the swap contracts. During 2002, the underlying transactions that had been hedged with the financial swaps were terminated. The entire $32.1 million in OCI was reclassified to revenues in 2002.

Operating and Maintenance Expenses decreased $17.2 million, from $80.4 million in 2001 to $63.2 million in 2002. This decrease is primarily due to a bad debt expense recorded in 2001, which included the default under the financial swaps discussed above. This decrease was partially offset by the following items: establishment of reserves in 2002 to cover future costs for soil and groundwater remediation; PCB remediation, pipeline integrity, and insurance cost increases in 2002; and an increase in fuel used in operations primarily as a result of the Red Rock Expansion Project.

Depreciation and Amortization Expenses were $19.9 million in 2001 compared to $15.4 million in 2002. The primary reason for the decrease is that amortization expense was reduced due to Transwestern's adoption of SFAS 142 "Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets," which discontinues the amortization of goodwill and requires periodic valuation tests of recorded goodwill.

Other income increased by $765.6 million from a $763.7 million loss in 2001 to $1.9 million in 2002. On December 2, 2001, ENE filed for bankruptcy protection, defaulting on $784.7 million of accounts receivable and promissory notes. The full amount was reserved by Transwestern due to uncertainty over ENE's ability to repay the receivables and the notes. Interest income decreased primarily due to reduced intercompany interest income as a result of ENE's default.

Interest expense increased $31.6 million from $21.5 million in 2001 to $53.1 million in 2002, due to borrowing costs of the $550.0 million revolving credit facility entered into during November 2001.

Income taxes decreased by $322.3 million, from an expense of $51.4 million in 2001 to a benefit of $270.9 million in 2002, primarily as a result of the establishment of a reserve in 2001 due to the uncertainty regarding the ability of ENE and RMTC to repay its notes and pay its payables as discussed above.

Cash Flows

Cash Flow increased by $23.8 million, from $8.1 million in 2001 to $31.9 million in 2002.

Net Cash Provided by Operating Activities increased by $781.2 million, from a use of cash of $673.8 million in 2001 to cash provided of $107.4 million in 2002. These figures were significantly affected by transactions that were not related to Transwestern's operations in both years. During 2001, Transwestern had a total of $820.2 million in short-term notes and receivables defaulted on and reserved against due to ENE's and its Affiliates' bankruptcies. Excluding the establishment of these reserves, Transwestern's 2001 cash provided from operating activities would have been approximately $146.4 million, for a decrease of $39.0 million in 2002 over 2001, with most of the decrease attributable to lost interest income on the defaulted intercompany note with ENE.

Net Cash Flow Used in Investing Activities increased $3.0 million from $55.6 million in 2001 to $58.6 million in 2002. Capital expenditures to complete the Red Rock Expansion Project were the primary expenditure during these periods.

Cash Flows from Financing Activities decreased $754.4 million from a source of cash of $737.4 million in 2001 to a use of cash of $17.0 million in 2002. In 2001 Transwestern entered into the $550.0 million revolving credit facility. Of that amount, Transwestern assumed an ENE obligation of $137.5 million and paid fees of $25.1 million, resulting in net proceeds of $387.4 million, which was loaned to ENE. Also in 2001, $365.5 million was reclassified from intercompany receivables in working capital to a note receivable from ENE in financing activities. $15.5 million of existing debt was retired in 2001. Therefore, without considering the above loans to ENE, Transwestern used $82.7 million of cash in financing-related activities in 2001.

At the end of 2002, Transwestern had $39.9 million of cash compared to $8.1 million at the end of 2001.

Report of Independent Auditors

The Board of Directors
Transwestern Pipeline Company

We have audited the accompanying balance sheets of Transwestern Pipeline Company (Transwestern) as of December 31, 2002 and 2001, and the related statements of operations, stockholders' equity and cash flows for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of Transwestern's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Transwestern Pipeline Company at December 31, 2002 and 2001, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States.

As more fully described in Note 1, Transwestern is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Enron Corp. Enron Corp., along with certain other subsidiaries and affiliates, filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in December 2001. Transwestern was not a part of these bankruptcy proceedings and has continued its operations in the normal course of business since the bankruptcy filing. Management believes that Transwestern will not be placed in bankruptcy; that no actions on the part of its federal regulators, the bankruptcy court or its creditors will cause Transwestern to significantly alter its operations or prevent it from operating as it does now for the "public convenience and necessity;" or, that will have significant effect on its financial position, results of operations or cash flows, or that will prevent it from meeting all of its obligations as they become due. In addition, as more fully described in Note 3, in November 2002, Transwestern amended its $550 million 364-day revolving credit facility to extend the term of this facility to November 2003. Although Transwestern is not in violation of any debt covenants, has generated sufficient cash flows from operations to service the debt, and management believes Transwestern has sufficient collateral and borrowing capacity to renew or refinance this debt on a timely basis, management has not yet sought or received a commitment from any lender. Because of the uncertainties surrounding the Enron Corp. bankruptcy proceedings and what effect, if any, they might ultimately have on Transwestern, and because Transwestern does not yet have a firm commitment from a lender to ensure that it is able to refinance the debt when it becomes due during 2003, there exists substantial doubt about whether Transwestern can obtain such financing and, thus, whether it will continue as a going concern. The accompanying financial statements have been prepared assuming that Transwestern will continue as a going concern and, therefore, do not include any adjustments to reflect the possible future effects on the recoverability and classification of assets.

As discussed in Note 1 to the financial statements, in 2002 Transwestern changed its method for accounting for goodwill; and, as discussed in Note 4 to the financial statements, in 2001 Transwestern changed its method for accounting for derivative instruments.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

December 31, 2002 and 2001

1) Nature of Operations and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Transwestern Pipeline Company (Transwestern) is a subsidiary of Transwestern Holding Company, Inc. (TW Holdings) a wholly-owned subsidiary of Enron Transportation Services Company (ETS), formerly Enron Pipeline Company, which is a majority-owned subsidiary of Enron Corp. (Enron). Transwestern owns and operates an interstate natural gas pipeline system stretching from Texas, Oklahoma and the San Juan Basin to the California border. Transwestern is a major natural gas transporter to the California border and Mid-Continent markets, and markets off the east end of its system to Texas intrastate and midwest markets.

On December 2, 2001, Enron filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, and since that date has been engaged in restructuring its business and financial operations and in preparing a plan of reorganization. It is not known when, or if, such plan will receive approval of the Bankruptcy Court or what effect the plan might have on Transwestern. Enron has also solicited bids for the sale of its 100% interest in Transwestern, although the board of directors of Enron and the committee of unsecured creditors in Enron's Chapter 11 proceeding have determined not to accept any of the bids at this time (see Note 11). As part of Transwestern's November 2001 debt offering (see Note 3), TW Holdings was created as an entity to hold the stock of Transwestern, separate from Enron. Some of the common stock of TW Holdings is held in a voting trust that was created to protect the lenders by preventing Enron from forcing Transwestern to file for bankruptcy protection.

In October 2002, Transwestern filed a Standard Proof of Claim with the United States Bankruptcy Court in the Southern District of New York against Enron and other associated bankrupt companies for $785.5 million.

On November 8, 2002, Transwestern amended its $550 million 364-day, secured, revolving credit facility (the "Credit Agreement") to extend the term of this facility and to convert the revolving credit facility to an amortizing term facility with two financial institutions (the "Banks"), as further described in Note 3. Transwestern's management plans to extend or refinance the Credit Agreement at or before its scheduled maturity in November 2003. This plan is supported by Transwestern's ability to service its debt with cash flows from current operations.

If the Credit Agreement is not extended or refinanced, the Banks have the right to assume ownership of Transwestern by foreclosing on the common stock that was pledged to them to secure the repayment of the Credit Agreement. Although substantially all of the pipeline assets are pledged for the repayment of the Credit Agreement, the Banks would not be able to foreclose on the physical facilities in order to liquidate the assets without first obtaining authority to do so from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). The FERC is highly unlikely to deem a wholesale liquidation of Transwestern's pipeline system to be in the "public convenience and necessity." Transwestern's outside counsel has advised that there is no precedent for the U.S. Bankruptcy Court to circumvent the FERC's authority over disposition of jurisdictional facilities by interstate natural gas pipelines.

(1) Nature of Operations and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

Other potential impacts of the Enron bankruptcy proceedings have also been considered by management. The Banks are also providing Enron's debtor-in-possession financing and had initially determined to use a portion of such financing to repay the Credit Agreement and include Transwestern in the bankruptcy process, thereby improving their secured lender status. That proposal was rejected by the committee of Enron's unsecured creditors because Transwestern had more value to the creditors as a viable, non-bankrupt business. The terms of the Credit Agreement provide that Transwestern's cash accounts and transactions are totally segregated from those of Enron and its debtor subsidiaries. In addition, all dividends, distributions and loans to Enron and its affiliates are strictly prohibited. This provides the Banks and potential lenders with further assurance that Transwestern's cash flows will be available for debt service. During the term of the Credit Agreement Transwestern is prohibited from loaning funds or making distributions to Enron, as well as being required to do business separately from Enron in a manner that will not cause confusion as to the separate and distinct identity and legal existence of Transwestern. Transwestern, under the terms of the Credit Agreement, is not allowed to refer to itself as a department or division of Enron as well.

Regulatory Accounting

Transwestern is subject to the jurisdiction of the FERC. Transwestern's accounting policies generally conform to Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 71, "Accounting for the Effects of Certain Types of Regulation." Accordingly, certain assets and liabilities that result from the regulated ratemaking process are recorded that would not be recorded under accounting principles generally accepted in the United States for nonregulated entities.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

Transwestern considers as cash equivalents all highly liquid short-term investments with maturities of three months or less at the time of purchase. These investments are accounted for at cost, which approximates estimated fair value.

Revenue Recognition

Gas transportation and sales revenue are recognized when the services are provided.

Property, Plant and Equipment

The provision for depreciation and amortization is computed using the straight-line method based on estimated economic or FERC mandated lives. Composite depreciation rates, ranging from 1.2% to 10.0%, are applied to functional groups of property having similar economic characteristics.

(1) Nature of Operations and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

Transwestern charges the cost of repairs to operating and maintenance expense. Costs of replacements and renewals of units of property are capitalized. The original cost of property retired is charged to accumulated depreciation and amortization, net of salvage and removal costs. No retirement gain or loss is included in the results of operations except in the case of sales or exceptional retirements of operating units.

The accrual of allowance for funds used during construction (AFUDC) is a utility accounting practice calculated under guidelines prescribed by the FERC and capitalized as part of the cost of utility plant. It represents the cost of servicing the capital invested in construction work-in-progress. Such AFUDC has been segregated into two component parts – borrowed and equity funds. The allowance for borrowed and equity funds used during construction totaled $2.0 million and $.6 million for 2002 and 2001, respectively, and is included in "Other Income" and "Interest expense and related charges, net", respectively, in the Statements of Operations.

Goodwill

Transwestern adopted SFAS No. 142, "Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets," effective January 1, 2002. Transwestern considers the amount categorized by the FERC as an "acquisition adjustment" to be goodwill as defined in SFAS No. 142 and ceased amortization of such amount upon the adoption of SFAS No. 142. As a result of the adoption of SFAS No. 142, Transwestern has reclassified $294.2 million from property, plant and equipment and $103.0 million from deferred income taxes to goodwill. Transwestern performed a transition impairment test upon adoption and recognized no adjustment to the intangible asset. Transwestern has no other intangible assets subject to amortization as provided in SFAS No. 142. In the prior year, Transwestern recognized $6.0 million in amortization expense related to this asset.

System Gas

Transwestern accounts for system balancing gas using the fixed asset accounting model established under FERC Order No. 581. Under this approach, system gas volumes are classified as fixed assets and valued at historical cost. Encroachments upon system gas are valued at current market.

Income Taxes

Transwestern is included in the consolidated federal and state income tax returns filed by Enron. Pursuant to a tax allocation arrangement, Enron will pay to each subsidiary an amount equal to the tax benefits realized in Enron's consolidated federal income tax return resulting from the utilization of the subsidiary's net operating losses and / or tax credits, or each subsidiary will pay to Enron an amount equal to the federal income tax computed on its separate company taxable income less the tax benefits associated with net operating losses and/or tax credits generated by the subsidiary which are utilized in Enron's consolidated federal income tax return (see Note 2). To the extent a state requires or permits a consolidated, combined or unitary tax return to be filed and such return includes any of Enron's subsidiaries, the principles expressed with respect to the consolidated federal income tax allocation apply for settlement of state taxes.

(1) Nature of Operations and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

Transwestern accounts for income taxes under the provisions of SFAS No. 109, "Accounting for Income Taxes," which provides for an asset and liability approach to accounting for income taxes. Under this approach, deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized based on anticipated future tax consequences attributable to differences between financial statement carrying amounts of assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases (see Note 2).

Computer Software

Transwestern's accounting policy for the costs of computer software (all of which is for internal use only) is to capitalize direct costs of materials and services consumed in developing or obtaining software, including payroll and payroll-related costs for employees who are directly associated with and who devote time to the software project. Costs may begin to be capitalized once the application development stage has begun. All other costs are expensed as incurred. Transwestern amortizes the costs at a rate of 10% per year. Impairment is evaluated based on changes in the expected usefulness of the software. Transwestern has capitalized software costs, net of amortization, of $4.9 million and $5.5 million at December 31, 2002 and 2001, respectively.

Materials and Supplies

Materials and supplies are valued at actual cost. Materials transferred from the warehouse are priced at average cost. Transwestern took a charge of $2.8 million for obsolete compression inventory at December 31, 2002.

Environmental Expenditures

Expenditures that relate to an existing condition caused by past operations, and do not contribute to current or future revenue generation, are expensed. Environmental expenditures relating to current or future revenues are expensed or capitalized as appropriate based on the nature of the costs incurred. Liabilities are recorded when environmental assessments and/or clean ups are probable and the costs can be reasonably estimated.

Recently Issued Accounting Pronouncements

In August 2001, the FASB issued SFAS No. 143, "Accounting for Asset Retirement Obligations." SFAS No. 143, which must be applied to fiscal years beginning after June 15, 2002, addresses financial accounting and reporting for obligations associated with the retirement of tangible long-lived assets and the associated asset retirement costs. Management does not expect that Transwestern's adoption of SFAS No. 143 will have any material impact on its financial condition or results of operations.

(1) Nature of Operations and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

In July 2002, the FASB issued SFAS No. 146, "Accounting for Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities." This statement will require recognition of costs associated with exit or disposal activities when they are incurred, rather than when a commitment is made to an exit or disposal plan. Examples of costs covered by this guidance include lease termination costs, employee severance costs associated with a restructuring, discontinued operations, plant closings or other exit or disposal activities. This statement is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 31, 2002, and will impact any exit or disposal activities initiated after January 1, 2003.

Reclassifications

Certain reclassifications have been made to the prior year's financial statements to conform to the current year presentation.

(3) Short-Term Debt

On November 8, 2002, Transwestern entered into an amendment of its November 19, 2001 $550.0 million revolving credit facility agreement. The Credit Agreement is secured by all of the common stock of Transwestern and, subject to certain exceptions, all other assets of Transwestern. $412.5 million of the proceeds of the Credit Agreement were loaned to Enron. In addition, Transwestern assumed an Enron obligation to Citibank of $137.5 million, which was recorded as an additional advance to Enron. This November 8, 2002 amendment and waiver (the "Second Amendment"), described in more detail below, converted the Credit Agreement from a revolving credit agreement to a term loan, extended the maturity date to November 6, 2003, and reduced aggregate commitments under the facility to $545.0 million. The interest rate in effect under the Credit Agreement at December 31, 2002 was 5.42%. The estimated fair value of Transwestern's short-term debt at December 31, 2002 was $545.0 million.

(3) Short-Term Debt (continued)

As a condition precedent to the Credit Agreement, Enron completed a corporate restructuring of Transwestern designed to further separate Transwestern from Enron and its other affiliates, which has allowed Transwestern to obtain an Issuer's Credit Rating from Standard & Poor's based on its own creditworthiness. This restructuring involved formation of a new stock holding company, TW Holdings, and a voting trust, TPC Voting Trust (the "Trust"), with Wilmington Trust Co. ("Wilmington") as the voting trustee. ETS contributed all of the stock of Transwestern to TW Holdings, in exchange for all of the stock of TW Holdings. TW Holdings then contributed 20% of the stock of Transwestern to the Trust in exchange for all of the beneficial interests of the Trust. Both the shares of Transwestern and the beneficial interests of the Trust were pledged to the lenders. Transwestern's Articles of Incorporation were amended to require the unanimous approval of its Board of Directors and stockholders to: a) merge or consolidate with any entity; b) sell, lease or transfer all, or substantially all, of its assets to any entity; c) acquire all, or substantially all, of the assets or capital stock or other ownership interest of any other entity; d) institute, or consent to, bankruptcy, insolvency or similar proceedings or actions; e) make any assignment for the benefit of others; f) issue any additional shares of common stock or any security convertible into share of common stock; or, g) make any change to its Articles of Incorporation. The Trust's Voting Trust Agreement names Wilmington as the Voting Trustee, and empowers Wilmington to exercise all voting rights and powers granted under the shares of Transwestern contributed to the Trust. Wilmington is directed to disapprove or otherwise reject any of the following actions, each of which require a unanimous vote of approval of stockholders as described above: a) any amendment or modification to Transwestern's articles of incorporation; b) merger or consolidation with any other corporation or entity, or sale, lease or other transfer of substantially all of Transwestern's assets to another corporation or entity; c) any action by Transwestern to dissolve, liquidate, seek a proceeding of bankruptcy or insolvency, or admit in writing its inability to pay debts when due; or d) the authorization of additional common shares, or securities convertible into common shares, or any other action that would result in the Trust holding less than 20% of the voting power of Transwestern. In addition, Transwestern has ended its intercompany borrowing and cash management program, and is restricted from making dividends or advancing any funds to Enron or its affiliates.

Subsequent to Enron's bankruptcy filing on December 2, 2001, Transwestern established reserves on 100% of all intercompany balances due to it from Enron, thus significantly reducing its tangible net worth. At December 31, 2001, Transwestern was in default of certain debt covenants contained in the Credit Agreement as a result of such developments. The most significant of those covenants required Transwestern to maintain a tangible net worth of no less than $750.0 million. Transwestern obtained a waiver from the lenders for this event of default. The First Amendment and Waiver to the Credit Agreement, dated April 30, 2002, amended the amount of the tangible net worth test to $400 million and waived the event of default, which occurred as a result of the bankruptcy of Enron and revised certain other terms of the Credit Agreement.

The Second Amendment and Waiver to the Credit Agreement, dated November 8, 2002, converted the Credit Agreement to a term loan, extended the maturity date to November 6, 2003, reduced the maximum aggregate advances under the facility to $545.0 million, increased the margins payable for base rate and LIBOR advances, automatically reduced the aggregate commitments when voluntary early payments are made on the loan facility, and incorporated new provisions for required amortization of the facility. These provisions require a ratable reduction of outstanding commitments based on: i) minimum quarterly commitment reductions of $10.0 million, ii) quarterly commitment reductions of 50% of excess cash flow, as defined in the amendment, and iii) mandatory commitment reductions for any asset sale, equity issuance, extraordinary receipts or capital markets debt refinancing. The Second Amendment also waived various defaults due to delinquencies for providing financial information and officer's certificates under the Credit Agreement. As of December 31, 2002, the credit facility was fully funded.

On December 31, 2002, Transwestern was in default under the Second Amendment for failure to disclose a guaranty provided by Transwestern to one of Enron's affiliates conducting business in Argentina. A waiver of this event of default was obtained on March 3, 2003 (see Note 9 and Note 11).

Standard & Poor's issued a BB Issuer's Credit Rating to Transwestern on October 4, 2002, based upon Transwestern's own creditworthiness, and Standard & Poor's judgment of the reliability and enforceability of the corporate restructuring described above. Management believes this will allow Transwestern to refinance amounts due under the Credit Agreement when such amounts become due in November 2003, or to obtain new financing that will enable Transwestern to repay the debt on a timely basis. Management believes that Transwestern has sufficient collateral and borrowing capacity to allow it to successfully complete such a transaction, to remain current on its debt obligation and to continue as a going concern.

(4) Derivative Instruments

The FASB issued, and subsequently amended, SFAS No. 133, "Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities", which was adopted by the Company on January 1, 2001. Provisions in SFAS No. 133, as amended, affect the accounting and disclosure of certain contractual arrangements and operations of the Company. Under SFAS No. 133, as amended, all derivative instruments are recognized in the balance sheet at their fair values and changes in fair value are recognized immediately in earnings, unless the derivatives qualify and are designated as hedges of future cash flows, fair values, net investments or qualify and are designated as normal purchases and sales. For derivatives treated as hedges of future cash flows, the effective portion of changes in fair value is recorded in other comprehensive income until the related hedged items impact earnings. Any ineffective portion of a hedge is reported in earnings immediately. Derivatives treated as normal purchases or sales are recorded and recognized in income using accrual accounting. The market prices used to value these transactions reflected management's best estimate considering various factors including closing exchange and over-the-counter quotations, time value and volatility factors underlying the commitments.

On January 1, 2001, Transwestern recorded the impact of the adoption of SFAS No. 133, as amended, as a cumulative effect adjustment of $21.2 million loss in "Accumulated Other Comprehensive Income (Loss)" (OCI), a component of stockholders' equity.

Transwestern enters into derivative instruments, such as forwards, swaps and other contracts, in order to hedge certain non-trading risks, including interest rate risk and commodity price risk. Transwestern primarily uses cash flow hedges, for which the objective is to provide protection against variability in cash flows due to commodity price risk and interest rate risk. Transwestern accounts for such hedging activity by initially deferring the gain or loss related to the fair value changes in derivative instruments in OCI. The deferred change in fair value is then reclassified into income concurrently with the recognition in income of the cash flow item hedged.

During 2001, Transwestern entered into financial swap contracts with an Enron affiliate to hedge the value of certain negotiated transportation agreements which had a transportation rate dependent on the difference between the market price of gas at the delivery and receipt points. On December 31, 2001, the value of the financial swap contracts was $32.1 million. The unrealized gains recorded in OCI continued to amortize over the life of the hedged items. During 2002, $32.1 million was reclassified to revenues in connection with forecasted transactions that were no longer considered probable of occurring due to a regulatory proceeding that led to the termination of the negotiated transportation agreements.

(5) Comprehensive Income (Loss)

Comprehensive income (loss) includes the following components (in thousands):

	December 31,
	2002	2001
Net income	$ 20,746	$ (426,499)
Other comprehensive income:
Derivative instruments:
Cumulative effect of accounting change	-	(21,216)
Net effective income on derivative instruments	-	48,633
Reclassification in earnings of previously deferred (gains) and losses on derivative instruments	(32,088)	4,671
Total comprehensive (loss)	$ (11,342)	$ (394,411)

Transwestern did not record a deferred income tax provision for the OCI components above.

(6) Accounts Receivable and Related Activity

Transwestern has a concentration of customers in the electric and gas utility industries. This concentration of customers may impact Transwestern's overall exposure to credit risk, either positively or negatively, in that the customers may be similarly affected by changes in economic or other conditions. However, management believes that the portfolio of receivables, which are primarily obligations of local gas distribution companies (LDC's), is a low risk due to regulatory mandates regarding LDC's obligations to deliver gas to their customers, minimizing potential credit risk.

The following customers accounted for a significant portion of Transwestern's transportation revenues for the year ended December 31, 2002: Southern California Gas Company, 22%; Pacific Gas and Electric Company, 7%, and BP Energy Co, 7%. SoCalGas exercised its contractual right to release a total of 457 million British thermal units per day (MMBtu/d) of firm capacity on November 1, 1996, while retaining 306 MMBtu/d of firm capacity through October 31, 2005. The agreement regarding cost allocation for this capacity is discussed in Note 8.

During 2001, the California power market was significantly impacted by the increase in wholesale power prices. On April 6, 2001, PG&E filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. This event had no material impact on the financial position or results of operations of Transwestern for the year ended December 31, 2002. Transwestern continues to provide transportation services to PG&E on a basis that addresses credit risk. Due to the uncertainties surrounding the California power situation, management cannot predict the ultimate outcome, but believes these matters will not have a material adverse impact on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations (see Note 9).

(7) Employee Benefit Plans

The employees of the Company participate in large part in the Enron benefit plans. During the years ended December 31, 2002 and 2001, Transwestern was charged $5.8 million and $4.4 million, respectively, for all such benefits.

Enron maintains a pension plan which is a noncontributory defined benefit plan covering certain Enron employees in the United States and certain employees in foreign countries. The basic benefit accrual is in the form of a cash balance of 5% of eligible annual base pay. The cost of the plan charged by Enron to Transwestern was $.4 million in 2002 and not significant in 2001.

Enron has initiated steps to terminate the Enron Corp. Cash Balance Plan. Effective January 1, 2003, Enron suspended future 5% compensation accruals under the Cash Balance Plan. Each employee's accrued benefit will continue to be credited with interest based on ten-year Treasury Bond yields. The Cash Balance Plan is currently underfunded. If such Plan were to terminate while underfunded, claims with respect to the underfunded benefit liability could be asserted, jointly and severally, against each member of the Enron controlled "group of corporations" within the meaning of Section 414 of the Tax Code, and certain other Enron affiliates. Further, Enron management has informed Transwestern management that the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC) has filed claims in the Enron bankruptcy cases. The claims are duplicative in nature, representing unliquidated claims for PBGC insurance premiums (the "Premium Claims") and unliquidated claims for due but unpaid minimum funding contributions (the "Contribution Claims") under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Tax Code"), 29 U.S.C. §§ 412(a) and 1082 and claims for unfunded benefit liabilities (the "UBL Claims"). Enron and the relevant sponsors of the defined benefit plans are current on their PBGC premiums and their contributions to the pension plans; therefore, Enron has valued the premium claims and the Contribution Claims at $-0-. The total amount of the UBL Claims is $305.5 million (including $271.0 million for the Enron Plan). In addition, Enron management has informed Transwestern management that the PBGC has informally alleged in pleadings filed with the bankruptcy court that the UBL Claim related to the Enron Plan could increase by as much as 100%. PBGC has provided no support (statutory or otherwise) for this assertion and Enron management disputes the validity of any such claim.

Transwestern's net periodic post-employment benefit cost charged by Enron was $.5 million in both 2002 and 2001.

A retiree of Transwestern was covered under a deferred compensation plan managed and funded by an Enron subsidiary, now in bankruptcy. The present value of the total distribution remaining is $.7MM as of December 31, 2002.

(8) Rate Matters and Regulatory Issues

Rate matters and regulatory issues are regulated by the FERC. As a result, these operations are subject to the provisions of SFAS No. 71, "Accounting for the Effects of Certain Types of Regulation," which recognizes the economic effects of regulation and, accordingly, Transwestern has recorded regulatory assets and liabilities related to such operations. Transwestern evaluates the applicability of regulatory accounting and the recoverability of these assets and liabilities through rates or other contractual mechanisms on an ongoing basis.

The principal components of Transwestern's regulatory assets at December 31, 2002 and 2001 are as follows (in thousands):

	2002	2001
Current regulatory assets
Deferred contract reformation costs	$ 1,290	$ 1,290
Deferred loss on receivables	867	867
Annual cost adjustment	1,065	981

	$ 6,726	$ 6,644
Non current regulatory assets
Accumulated reserve adjustment	$ 45,002	$ 45,602
Deferred contract reformation costs	3,576	5,244
Deferred tax associated with AFUDC gross-up	7,056	7,325

Other	7,713	9,374
	$ 67,956	$ 73,782

At December 31, 2002, substantially all of Transwestern's regulatory assets and liabilities are recoverable in rates.

The accumulated reserve adjustment included in the table above resulted from a settlement agreement dated May 2, 1995 (May 2, 1995 Settlement) further described below. The settlement approved Transwestern's proposal to refunctionalize certain facilities from production and gathering to transmission, and from transmission to production and gathering. As directed by the FERC Order (Docket No. RP95-271-000) issued upon approval of the settlement, Transwestern established a regulatory asset for an accumulated reserve adjustment of $50.1 million, which represents the difference between recorded amounts of accumulated depreciation (determined on a vintage basis) and approved amounts of accumulated depreciation based on remaining reserves related to the gathering facilities. The accumulated reserve adjustment is being amortized at a 1.2 % annual rate. Concurrent with the amortization, Transwestern records an entry to reduce depreciation expense and reduce accumulated amortization. This is based on management's interpretation of the settlement, which requires the amount to be amortized but does not permit recovery through rates. Management believes that these entries are appropriate based on the intent of the settlement.

Transwestern is involved in several rate matters and regulatory issues, the significant items of which are discussed below.

Since 1988, Transwestern has filed approximately $278.7 million in transition costs (deferred contract reformation costs) with the FERC under FERC Order Nos. 500 and 528, providing for recovery from customers of approximately $215.5 million. Of total transition costs incurred, $4.9 million remains to be collected as of December 31, 2002 over the period ending October 31, 2006.

Anticipating a turnback by SoCalGas of approximately 457 MMBtu/d of firm capacity on November 1, 1996, Transwestern entered into the May 2, 1995 Settlement with its customers whereby the costs associated with the turnback capacity will be shared by Transwestern and its current firm customers. This cost sharing mechanism ended October 31, 2001. On December 31, 2002, unsubscribed capacity relating to the SoCalGas turnback was 88 MMBtu/d. In addition to this cost sharing mechanism, Transwestern and its current firm customers also agreed to contract settlement rates through 2006, and agreed that Transwestern would not be required to file a new rate case to become effective prior to November 1, 2006. The settlement was approved on July 27, 1995.

On May 21, 1996, Transwestern entered into a settlement (May 21, 1996 Settlement) with its customers amending the May 2, 1995 Settlement and resolving numerous regulatory issues on Transwestern's system. The May 21, 1996 Settlement resolved all issues involving recovery of unrecovered purchased gas costs and all costs included in Transwestern's alternate recovery mechanism (PGAR costs) filed in Docket No. RP94-227-000. In that regard, the settlement provided that: (i) Transwestern's collection of PGAR costs through the surcharge mechanism would total $5,368,940, reflecting fifty percent (50%) of the principal and interest as filed in Docket No. RP94-227-000, and (ii) all pending pleadings including all court appeals would be withdrawn. On October 16, 1996 the FERC approved the May 21, 1996 Settlement.

In July 2002, the FERC issued a Notice of Inquiry (NOI) that seeks comments regarding its 1996 policy of permitting pipelines to enter into negotiated rate transactions. The FERC is now reviewing whether negotiated rates should be capped, whether or not a pipeline's "recourse rate" (a cost-of-service based rate) continues to safeguard against a pipeline exercising market power, as well as other issues related to negotiated rate programs. At this time, the Company cannot predict the outcome of this NOI.

On August 1, 2002, the FERC issued a NOPR requiring that all cash management or money pool arrangements between a FERC regulated subsidiary and a non-FERC regulated parent must be in writing, and set forth: the duties and responsibilities of cash management participants and administrators; the methods of calculating interest and for allocating interest income and expenses; and the restrictions on deposits or borrowings by money pool members. The NOPR also requires specified documentation for all deposits into, borrowings from, interest income from, and interest expenses related to, these arrangements. Finally, the NOPR proposed that as a condition of participating in a cash management or money pool arrangement, the FERC regulated entity maintain a minimum proprietary capital balance of 30 percent, and the FERC regulated entity and its parent maintain investment grade credit ratings. The FERC held a public conference on September 25, 2002 to discuss the issues raised in the comments. Representatives of companies from the gas and electric industries participated on a panel and uniformly agreed that the proposed regulations should be revised substantially and that the proposed capital balance and investment grade credit rating requirements would be excessive. At this time, the Company cannot predict the outcome of this NOPR.

Also on August 1, 2002, the FERC's Chief Accountant issued an Accounting Release, to be effective immediately, providing guidance on how companies should account for money pool arrangements and the types of documentation that should be maintained for these arrangements. However, the Accounting Release did not address the proposed requirement that the FERC regulated entity maintain a minimum proprietary capital balance of 30 percent and that the entity and its parent have investment grade credit ratings. Requests for rehearing were filed on August 30, 2002. The FERC has not yet acted on the rehearing requests.

Transwestern believes, based on its experience to-date, that the ultimate resolution of Transwestern's regulatory matters will not have a material adverse effect on its financial position or results of operations.

(9) Litigation and Other Contingencies

Transwestern is party to various claims, litigation and other contingent issues, the significant items of which are discussed below.

Grynberg v. Enron, et al. (97D-1421 Dist. Colo.). The plaintiff has filed actions against a number of Enron companies, including Transwestern, in the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado, for damages for mis-measurement of gas volumes and Btu content, resulting in lower royalties to mineral interest owners. Transwestern believes that its measurement practices conformed to the terms of its FERC Gas Tariff, which is filed with and approved by FERC. As a result, Transwestern believes that it has meritorious defenses (including FERC-related affirmative defenses, such as the filed rate/tariff doctrine, the primary/exclusive jurisdiction of FERC, and the defense that Transwestern complied with the terms of its tariff) to the complaint and is defending the suit vigorously.

Quinque Operating Company (Ditto) v. PG&E, et al., Cause No. 99CV30; Dist. Ct. Stevens Co., Kansas. The plaintiff has filed actions against a number of parties, including Transwestern, in a Kansas state district court for damages for mis-measurement of gas volumes and Btu content, resulting in lower royalties. Transwestern believes that its measurement practices conformed to the terms of its FERC Gas Tariff, which is filed with and approved by FERC. As a result, Transwestern believes that it has meritorious defenses (including FERC-related affirmative defenses, such as the filed rate/tariff doctrine, the primary/exclusive jurisdiction of FERC, and the defense that Transwestern complied with the terms of its tariff) to the complaint and is defending the suit vigorously.

In February 2001, Transwestern filed negotiated rate transactions in Docket Nos. RP97-288-009, -010, -011, and -012 with Sempra Energy Trading ("Sempra") and Richardson Products Company ("Richardson") containing index-based rates. On March 2, 2001, the FERC issued an order accepting Transwestern's negotiated rate transactions in the above-referenced proceedings, subject to refund and subject to a further FERC order on the merits. A hearing was subsequently held on August 29, 2001. Based on the testimony and other evidence presented at the hearing, the presiding administrative law judge issued findings of fact and law favorable to Transwestern. Subsequent to the filing of the negotiated rate transactions in Docket Nos. RP97-288-009, -010, -011, and -012, Transwestern filed additional negotiated rate transactions in other dockets. The FERC also accepted those transactions, subject to refund and subject to the outcome of the proceedings in Docket Nos. RP97-288-009, -010, -011, and -012. On July 17, 2002, the FERC issued an order that rejects the findings of the administrative law judge and that requires Transwestern to refund the amounts by which the negotiated rate transactions with Sempra and Richardson exceeded Transwestern's applicable maximum tariff rates. In the order, the FERC states that Transwestern violated their terms of its FERC Gas Tariff and its website. Transwestern subsequently negotiated with its customers a settlement of all pending negotiated rate proceedings with the exception of the rate proceedings in connection with the Red Rock Expansion Project. This settlement has been approved by FERC and Transwestern made the refunds of $9.9 million (including interest of $1.1 million), required by the settlement on March 14, 2003. Transwestern's balance sheets reflect accruals of $10.0 million at December 31, 2002 and 2001, for this issue.

On August 1, 2002, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission issued an Order to Respond ("August 1 Order") to Transwestern Pipeline Company. The order required Transwestern, within 30 days of the date of the order, to provide written responses stating why the FERC should not find that: (a) Transwestern violated FERC's accounting regulations by failing to maintain written cash management agreements with Enron; and (b) the secured loan transactions entered into by Transwestern in November 2001 were imprudently incurred and why the costs arising from such transactions should be passed on to ratepayers. Transwestern filed a response to the August 1 Order and subsequently entered into a settlement with the FERC staff that resolved, as to Transwestern, the issues raised by the August 1 Order. The FERC has approved this settlement; however, a group of Transwestern's customers have filed a request for clarification and/or rehearing of the FERC order approving the settlement. This customer group claims that there is an inconsistency between the language of the settlement agreement and the language of the FERC order approving the settlement. This alleged inconsistency relates to Transwestern's ability to flow through to its ratepayers the costs of any replacement or refinancing of the secured loan transactions entered into by Transwestern in November 2001. Transwestern has filed a response to the customer group's request for rehearing and/or clarification and this matter is currently awaiting FERC action.

Transwestern is subject to extensive federal, state and local environmental laws and regulations. These laws and regulations require expenditures in connection with the construction of new facilities, the operation of existing facilities and for remediation at various operating sites. The implementation of the Clean Air Act Amendments is expected to result in increased operating expenses. These increased operating expenses are not expected to have a material impact on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations.

Transwestern conducts soil and groundwater remediation at a number of its facilities. In 2002 and 2001 these costs were $2.5 million and $.4 million, respectively. Using a discount rate of 3 percent, the net present value of the costs over the next five years is expected to be: 2003 - $2.3 million, 2004 - $1.7 million, 2005 - $.9 million, 2006 - $.3 million and 2007 - $.2 million. The net present value of expenditures thereafter is estimated to be $1.0 million for soil and groundwater remediation. The net present value accrual is recorded in operating and maintenance expense.

Transwestern incurred, and continues to incur, certain costs related to polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) that migrated into customer's facilities. These PCBs were originally introduced into the Transwestern system through use of a PCB-based lubricant in the late 1960's and 1970's. Because of the continued detection of PCBs in the customer's facilities downstream of Transwestern's Topock station, Transwestern continues to take measures to contain and remove the PCBs. Costs of these remedial activities for 2002 and 2001 were $2.8 million and $.5 million, respectively. Costs are estimated to be $1.0 million in 2003. Cost estimates are obtained from Transwestern's customers and are not currently available beyond 2003, however, the costs are not expected to have a material impact on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations.

As discussed in Note 6, in 2001 the California power market was significantly impacted by the increase in wholesale prices. On April 6, 2001, PG&E filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11 of the U. S. Bankruptcy Code. (PG&E has historically been a significant customer of Transwestern). This event had no material impact on the financial position or results of operations of Transwestern for the year ended December 31, 2002. Transwestern continues to provide transportation services to PG&E on a basis that addresses credit risk. Management cannot predict the final outcome of this situation or the uncertainties surrounding the California power situation. However, as a result of the basis on which Transwestern is providing transportation services to PG&E and the significant demand for capacity on Transwestern's pipeline system to the California border, management continues to believe these matters will not have a material adverse impact on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations.

The Department of Revenue of the State of Colorado ("DOR") has assessed Transwestern $.6 million in sales and use taxes and $.6 million in penalties and interest relating to the purchase by Transwestern of an undivided interest in certain pipeline facilities located in Colorado from Northwest Pipeline Corporation. In addition, the DOR has assessed Transwestern additional amounts for taxes relating to the use of compressor fuel at facilities located in the State of Colorado. The amount currently subject to assessment is approximately $.5 million, and it is anticipated that additional amounts will be assessed as fuel is consumed on a prospective basis.

One of Transwestern's affiliates participated in the acquisition of a license to operate a natural gas pipeline in Argentina in 1992. Transwestern has guaranteed the performance obligations of that affiliate to certain joint venture partners of that affiliate and has agreed to provide technical support to that affiliate in connection with the operation of the pipeline. In addition, at the time of the acquisition, Transwestern's net worth was used to satisfy certain net worth requirements established by the Argentine government relating to the acquisition of the license to operate such pipeline.

While it is not possible to predict with certainty the final outcome of the aforementioned litigation and other contingencies, except for the accruals discussed above, management believes that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect on Transwestern's financial position or results of operations.

(10) Related Party Transactions

Transwestern recorded sales, transportation and other revenue from affiliates approximating $-0- and $6.5 million in 2002 and 2001, respectively.

On December 2, 2001, Enron and certain of its subsidiaries filed voluntary petitions under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code. As a result, a $784.7 million note receivable from Enron was reserved due to the uncertainty regarding Enron's ability to repay. In 2002, the value of the receivable was determined by Transwestern management to be substantially impaired. As a result, the receivable was completely written off against the reserve for book purposes and 80%, ($628.5 million) was written off for tax purposes creating a $149.5 million net operating loss carry forward (see Note 2). Enron is utilizing a portion of the net operating loss which is reflected as a receivable from parent.

During 2001, Transwestern was a party to natural gas commodity price swaps with an Enron affiliate. In December 2001, as a result of the failure by such affiliate to perform its obligations under the price swaps, Transwestern terminated such price swaps with its affiliate and established receivables of $34.1 million. These receivables are fully reserved by Transwestern.

During 2002, Transwestern received payments from transportation customers utilizing capacity released by Enron North America Corp. (ENA). These payments totaled $.6 million, which reduced the reserve established in December 2001 due to ENA's bankruptcy.

Transwestern has entered into compression services agreements with Enron Compression Services Company (ECS), an Enron affiliate that is not in bankruptcy and continues to perform under the terms of such agreements. The agreements require Transwestern to pay ECS a compression service charge in cash and in MMBtus of natural gas to provide electric horsepower capacity and related horsepower hours to be used to operate the Bisti, Bloomfield, and Gallup electric compressor stations located in New Mexico. ECS is required to pay Transwestern a monthly operating and maintenance fee to operate and maintain the facilities. On March 25, 2003, FERC issued a show cause order to ECS that requires ECS to demonstrate why it did not violate the terms of its blanket natural gas marketing authorization from FERC when it allegedly engaged in certain transactions on the "Enron Online" electronic trading platform. If ECS fails to demonstrate that it did not violate the terms of such authorization, this could have a material impact on ECS' ability to perform under its compression services agreements with Transwestern, since a significant portion of the consideration that Transwestern pays to ECS under such agreements is in the form of natural gas that is delivered to ECS and that ECS resells to third parties under such FERC authorization.

Transwestern accrued administrative expenses from Enron and affiliated service companies of approximately $13.8 million and $10.8 million in 2002 and 2001, respectively. These costs are based on usage, or where no direct method is reasonable, Transwestern's components of gross property, plant and equipment, gross margin and annualized payroll as a percentage of all Enron companies.

Related to Enron's bankruptcy, the bankruptcy judge authorized an overhead expense allocation methodology on November 25, 2002. The Company's final allocation for 2002 has not been determined at this time. In compliance with the authorization, recipient companies subject to regulation and rate base constraints may limit amounts remitted to Enron to an amount equivalent to 2001, plus quantifiable adjustments. The Company has invoked this limitation in the calculation of expenses accrued for 2002.

(11) Subsequent Events

On March 5, 2003, Transwestern and the Banks reached agreement on the Third Amendment and Waiver to the Credit Agreement (the "Third Amendment"), which waived the default under the Second Amendment due to Transwestern's failure to disclose the existence of the guaranty to Enron's Argentinean affiliate (see Note 3 and Note 9). In addition, the Third Amendment added any claim under that guaranty as an Event of Default.

In March 2003, Transwestern has entered into discussions with ECS to negotiate a settlement of volume undertake, which is a condition of the compression services agreement (see Note 10). Transwestern believes the settlement will result in a payment of approximately $.7 million to ECS and has recorded an accrual in operating and maintenance expense in 2002.

After reviewing bids for the sale of Enron's 100% interest in Transwestern, and thoroughly reviewing the options, the Enron Board of Directors voted on March 19, 2003 to move forward with the creation of a new operating entity which would purchase Enron's interest in Transwestern and other domestic pipeline assets and related service companies. The formation of the new entity will require various board, bankruptcy court and regulatory approvals in connection with Enron's plan of reorganization.

Appendix J: CrossCountry Financial Projections – 2003-2006

Appendix J: CrossCountry Financial Projections – 2003 – 2006

Basis of Presentation

This Appendix includes a financial forecast for the years 2003 through 2006 and the associated assumptions behind the forecast (the “CrossCountry Projections”). The CrossCountry Projections for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2003 include actual results through September 30, 2003. The CrossCountry Projections should not be used without the associated assumptions, which are based upon the anticipated future performance of Transwestern, Citrus and Northern Plains, industry performance, general business and economic conditions and other matters, most of which are beyond the control of the Debtors. While the CrossCountry Projections were prepared in good faith and the assumptions, when considered on an overall basis, are believed to be reasonable in light of the current circumstances, it is important to note that there can be no assurance that such assumptions will be realized, and Creditors must make their own determinations as to the reasonableness of such assumptions and the reliability of the CrossCountry Projections. Therefore, although the CrossCountry Projections are presented with numerical specificity, the actual results achieved during the period projected will vary from the projected results and some of the variations could be material. Accordingly, no representation can be, or is being, made with respect to the accuracy of the CrossCountry Projections or the ability of CrossCountry to achieve the projected results of operations. In deciding whether to vote to accept or reject the Plan, holders of Claims entitled to vote on the Plan must make their own determinations as to the reasonableness of such assumptions and the reliability of the CrossCountry Projections. See Section XIV “Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered.”

The financial information for CrossCountry is presented on a pro forma basis, after giving effect to the transactions contemplated by the CrossCountry Contribution and Separation Agreement regarding the contribution of the Pipeline Businesses.

Assumptions

Information relating to certain assumptions used in preparing the CrossCountry Projections is set forth below.

A. General.

1. Methodology. The Income Statement, Balance Sheet and Cash Flow Statement for the 2003 fiscal year are shown on an aggregated basis as if CrossCountry had owned the interests that are expected to comprise CrossCountry for the full year of 2003 and are based upon the actual results for the first nine months and a forecast for the last three months of the year ending on December 31, 2003.

2. Basis. The financial projections assume a predecessor carryover basis, rather than either utilizing fresh-start reporting as described by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants Statement of Position 90-7 “Financial Reporting by Entities in Reorganization Under the Bankruptcy Code” or assuming any change in bases as a result of transfer of assets (whether between companies, to trusts or to creditors). Accordingly, the projections only reflect adjustments directly related to the Plan. It is uncertain whether a change in basis resulting from the implementation of the Plan will occur and if it does occur, when it may occur. Therefore, although the projections assume a predecessor carryover basis, it may ultimately be determined that CrossCountry either has the option or is required to use a new basis of accounting at some point in the future following implementation of the Plan.

3. Plan Terms and Consummation. The operating assumptions underlying the revenue and expense forecasts assume the Plan will be confirmed and become effective in 2004, with allowed Claims treated in accordance with the treatment provided in the Plan.

4. Bankruptcy Claims by Transwestern and Citrus. The CrossCountry Projections reflect that 100% of the value of CrossCountry and its subsidiaries' claims against ENE, RMTC, EES and ENA will accrue in 2003 in the amount of $153.4 million. The increase in Other Income in 2003 is attributable to Transwestern's income recognition of its Claims. Further, it is assumed that distributions in the form of cash and stock will be made on these Claims over time. Over time, distributions in Claims are reflected in CrossCountry's Projections as decreases in Other Assets and increases in Other Cash Investments. These adjustments are based on estimates as to the timing and amount of distributions. These estimates were utilized for purposes of preparing these projections only and the actual timing and amount of the distributions and recognition of income may vary materially from the assumptions used herein.

5. Economic and Industry Environment. The CrossCountry Projections assume a stable economic environment based on prevailing analyst forecasts. In addition, the CrossCountry Projections assume no significant change in the regulatory and competitive conditions under which CrossCountry currently operates.

6. Equity Incentive Compensation Plan. The CrossCountry Projections do not include any expenses associated with the long-term equity incentive compensation plan anticipated to be adopted by CrossCountry. Refer to Section IX.H., "Equity Compensation Plan."

7. ENE Cash Balance Plan. The CrossCountry Projections do not include any costs associated with the voluntary termination of the ENE Cash Balance Plan.

B. Other

1. Revenues

The CrossCountry Projections assume successful recontracting of available Transwestern and Florida Gas capacity at current rates and, as a result, transportation revenues are expected to be generally stable for 2003 – 2006, except for increases due to completed expansions by Transwestern and Florida Gas. Increased revenues are expected in the second half of 2005 upon the completion of an expansion by Transwestern. The projected increase in revenues in 2006 reflects a full year of additional capacity provided by the expansion. In addition, the CrossCountry Projections reflect the current level of contracts, throughput and rates on Northern Border Partners' existing pipeline systems, with no major expansions planned.

The CrossCountry Projections assume that CrossCountry will continue the Citrus operatorship based on the same terms contained in the operating agreement originally entered into between Citrus and an ENE affiliate. Refer to Section IX.A.1.(b)., "Employees and Pipeline Services" for further information.

2. Rate Case Filings

Pursuant to a previous rate case settlement, Transwestern is expected to file a new rate case in November 2006. It is assumed that there will be no changes from the existing rate case settlement for the remainder of 2006.

Florida Gas filed a rate case on October 1, 2003. New rates for transportation services will become effective April 1, 2004 (FTS-1) and April 1, 2005 (FTS-2), subject to refund based on the outcome of the rate case proceeding. The CrossCountry Projections assume that new rates for both the incremental and non-incremental systems will be designed to recover a pre-tax return on rate base that approximates existing rate levels.

3. Dividends

The CrossCountry Projections assume that CrossCountry will not pay dividends to holders of equity interests in CrossCountry from 2003-2006. In addition, the CrossCountry Projections assume that (i) Citrus will pay cash dividends to its shareholders (including CrossCountry) equal to 100% of all cash over normal liquidity requirements and payment of existing debt as it matures, and (ii) Northern Plains will dividend to CrossCountry 100% of cash distributions received from Northern Border Partners in excess of equity investments and taxes. Historically, Citrus has not paid dividends to its shareholders, and there can be no assurance that it will pay dividends going forward. Refer to Section XIV.H.2.b., "Control over Pipeline Businesses." The CrossCountry Projections assume that the cash distributions Northern Plains will receive from Northern Border Partners will increase 15% per year starting in 2005. It is expected that CrossCountry will contribute the dividends or distributions received from Citrus or Northern Plains from 2004-2006 to Transwestern, and that Transwestern will use the contribution by CrossCountry and any excess cash to pay down its debt (see No. 4, below for a description of such debt).

4. Debt

CrossCountry, as a holding company of the Pipeline Businesses, is not expected to issue any debt during 2003-2006.

Transwestern is expected to refinance its existing revolving credit facility on or before April 30, 2004. Transwestern is expected to enter into new financing arrangements for a $150 million revolver and a $350 million term loan. The term loan is expected to carry an interest rate of LIBOR +3%, and the revolver an interest rate of LIBOR +3.25%. The revolver is expected to have a capacity fee on the withdrawn portion of 0.5%.

5. Capital Expenditures

The CrossCountry Projections reflect one expansion by Transwestern. The San Juan expansion will increase the San Juan lateral capacity by 375 BBtu/d, at a cost of approximately $150 million. The estimated in-service date for the expansion is July 2005. Rates collected assume a regulated rate of return.

The Florida Gas Phase VI expansion was completed and placed in-service November 1, 2003. An additional Florida Gas expansion is planned for in-service July 2007, at a cost of $52 million which will be spent in 2006. Incremental volumes are 200 BBtu/d, transported at FTS-2 rates.

6. Acquisitions

CrossCountry is not expected to make any acquisitions or divest any material assets during 2003 - 2006.

A significant portion of Northern Border Partners' future growth is expected to come as a result of making accretive acquisitions of any material assets. The CrossCountry Projections assume $200 million of total annual growth capital in Northern Border Partners. Such acquisitions are assumed to be financed one-half by debt and the other half in the form of equity contributions.

7. Tax Considerations

The CrossCountry Projections assume that all of CrossCountry Common Equity will be distributed at once, in 2005, with a portion of the CrossCountry Common Equity being held in a disputed claims reserve. This will result in tax deconsolidation from the ENE Tax Group of the CrossCountry subsidiaries currently included in the ENE Tax Group. The CrossCountry Projections assume that ENE will pay cash for the full amount of the net receivable balance owing to Transwestern under the applicable tax sharing agreement; however, because this net receivable balance may be subject to adjustments (as a result of audits by taxing authorities) and future negotiations between ENE and Transwestern, and because any payment (if any) with respect to such balance is subject to prior consent of the Creditors' Committee, the actual amount that ultimately is paid may vary materially from the amount projected. Refer to Section IX.F.1.(b).(iii)., "Tax Sharing Agreement" for further information. The CrossCountry Projections assume that no IRC Section 338(h)(10) election (which could generate future income tax benefit) will be made in respect of the transaction contemplated by the Plan because the ability to make such an election is uncertain. The CrossCountry Projections also assume that the tax benefits of approximately $140 million previously recorded for anticipated utilization of Transwestern's NOLs will not be available to CrossCountry. Refer to Appendix I, "CrossCountry Results of Operations" for further information. Therefore, such NOLs have been impaired in the 2003 CrossCountry Projections.

8. Citrus Trading

The CrossCountry Projections assume that Citrus Trading's current litigation and contract renegotiations will be resolved in a manner and in amounts consistent with that which have been reserved for on Citrus Trading's June 30, 2003 balance sheet.

9. The CrossCountry Projections assume that the consideration other than shares or units of common equity of CrossCountry, if any, that may be paid by CrossCountry Distributing Company in the CrossCountry Transaction or CrossCountry Conversion will not be in the form of cash or indebtedness of CrossCountry Distributing Company or any of its subsidiaries. The nature and amount of such other consideration, if any, has not yet been determined. If it is ultimately determined that such other consideration will consist, in whole or in part, of cash or indebtedness of CrossCountry Distributing Company or any of its subsidiaries, CrossCountry's cash will be reduced, or indebtedness will be increased, respectively, by the amount of such consideration paid. However, it is anticipated that the value of such other consideration paid would enhance the value of the other Plan Currency in the aggregate to be distributed to holders of Allowed Claims pursuant to the Plan, or alternatively, all or a portion of such value would be contributed to CrossCountry Distributing Company (ultimately enhancing the value of the CrossCountry Common Equity distributed to holders of allowed claims).

Appendix K: Prisma Financial Projections – 2004-2006

Appendix K: Prisma Financial Projections – 2004-2006

Basis of Presentation

The financial projections are based on, and assume, the successful implementation of the Plan. Both the business plan and the financial projections reflect numerous assumptions, including various assumptions regarding the anticipated future performance of Prisma’s operating subsidiaries, industry performance, general business and economic conditions and other matters, most of which are beyond the control of Prisma and its operating subsidiaries. While the projections were prepared in good faith and the assumptions, when considered on an overall basis, are believed to be reasonable in light of the current circumstances, it is important to note that there can be no assurance that such assumptions will be realized, and Creditors must make their own determinations as to the reasonableness of such assumptions and the reliability of the projections. Therefore, although the financial projections are presented with numerical specificity, the actual results achieved during the financial projection period will vary and some of the variations could be material. Accordingly, no representation can be or is being made with respect to the accuracy of the financial projections or the ability of Prisma and its subsidiaries to achieve the projected results of operations. Refer to Section XIV., “Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered” for further information related to the risks applicable to Prisma.

Prisma Energy International Inc. is an exempted Cayman Islands company that currently does not own any businesses or assets. The Debtors, in connection with the Plan, intend to transfer most of ENE’s remaining international energy infrastructure businesses to Prisma; subject to obtaining requisite consents. Historically ENE’s investments in international energy infrastructure businesses were subject to review as part of the consolidated financial statements of Enron Corp., however they have not been audited on a combined basis as a stand alone business. Therefore historical audited combined financial statements for the international energy infrastructure businesses (as listed below) are not available. Based on the above and since Prisma has not currently commenced commercial operations, consolidated financial projections were prepared for the calendar years 2004–2006 as if certain of the international energy infrastructure businesses (as listed below) are transferred into Prisma effective January 1, 2004. The projections assume the Plan will be implemented in accordance with its stated terms. The Debtors and their affiliates’ ownership in the following assets are included in Prisma financial projections:

Accroven	BLM	Centragas
EEC	ENS	GMSA
BBPL-GTB	Elektro	BBPL-TBG
PQP	SECLP	Vengas
Trakya	Transredes
MEC	SK-Enron
SPC	Cuiaba–EPE, TBS, Gasmat, Gasbol

Assumptions

Additional information relating to certain assumptions used in preparing the financial projections is set forth below:

A. Basis

1. The financial projections assume a predecessor carryover basis, rather than either utilizing fresh-start reporting as described by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants Statement of Position 90-7 “Financial Reporting by Entities in Reorganization Under the Bankruptcy Code” or assuming any change in bases as a result of transfer of assets (whether between companies, to trusts or to creditors). Accordingly, the projections only reflect adjustments directly related to the Plan. It is uncertain whether a change in basis resulting from the implementation of the Plan will occur and if it does occur, when it may occur. Therefore, although the projections assume a predecessor carryover basis, it may ultimately be determined that Prisma either has the option or is required to use a new basis of accounting at some point in the future following implementation of the Plan.
2. Certain of the assets included in the projected financial statements for Prisma are wholly or partially held through existing financing structures. The projected pro forma financial estimates assume that these assets are not encumbered in financing structures. The unwind and resolution of these structures may affect the financial results presented. The following lists the assets wholly or partially held through financing structures that are assumed to be included in Prisma’s financial results:
 - Elektro
 - Centragas
 - Trakya
 - ENS
3. Fifty percent of net cash flow of Prisma is assumed to be distributed to its shareholders and the remaining fifty percent is assumed to accumulate during the projection period. The Cash and Cash Equivalents balance on Prisma’s Pro Forma Balance Sheet includes Prisma’s Cash and Cash Equivalents balance along with the Cash and Cash Equivalents balances of Prisma’s consolidated subsidiaries.

	2004	2005	2006
(US$Millions)
Prisma Cash Balance	$ 137.7	$ 239.9	$ 320.0
Consolidated Subs Cash Balances	140.6	126.2	249.3
Prisma and Subs consolidated cash Balance	$ 278.3	$ 366.1	$ 569.3

4. Refer to the Consolidation assumption below for further information on Prisma's consolidated subsidiaries.

B. General

1. The projections assume a generally stable economic environment and no significant change in the regulatory and competitive conditions under which the businesses currently operate. The nature of Prisma's natural gas services and power distribution businesses is such that all assets are generally subject to firm contracts for their capacity or are regulated and are dependent on tariffs or other regulatory structures that allow regulatory authorities to review periodically the prices such businesses charge customers and other terms and conditions under which services and products are offered. Regulatory intervention and political pressures could lead to tariffs that are not compensatory or otherwise undermine the value of the long-term contracts entered into by the transferred businesses, which could have a negative impact on the financial projections. The nature of most of Prisma's power generation business is such that each facility generally relies on one power sales contract with a single governmental or quasi-governmental customer for the majority, if not all, of its revenues over the life of the power sales contract. The prolonged failure of any significant customer to fulfill its contractual obligations would have a negative impact on the financial projections. Included in each year of the 2004-2006 Prisma consolidated financial projections is a $20 million reserve for risk factors mentioned above. Although the Debtors believe that the assumptions underlying the financial projections, when considered on an overall basis, are reasonable in light of the current circumstances, no assurances can be or are given that the financial projections will be realized.
2. The projections do not assume acquisitions or divestitures of any material assets during the projection period or new indebtedness at the Prisma level.

C. Devaluation of Foreign Currencies

1. Prisma may suffer losses as a result of devaluations in the currencies of the countries in which it is expected to operate. The revenues of some of the key businesses expected to be a part of Prisma, including Elektro, SK-Enron and Vengas, are collected substantially or exclusively in the relevant local currency and a strengthening of the U.S. dollar relative to such local currency will reduce the amount of cash flow and net income of such businesses as reported in U.S. dollars. Prisma has used market forward rates, where available, as foreign exchange rates for the corresponding future periods in its financial projections. Often, market data points are available for the short term but not the long term. In such cases, the long term rates for foreign exchange are derived from a combination of expected inflation and expected long term growth rates.

2. Currency devaluation impacts the repayment of the U.S. dollar denominated debt at Elektro and devaluation of the Brazilian real above the foreign exchange rates assumed in the projections could have a material impact on Prisma's net income and cash flow projections. Any Brazilian real movements significantly different than those assumed in the table below would have a material impact on Prisma's financial projections:

	2004	2005	2006
Average FX rate	3.50	3.78	4.01
End of Year FX rate	3.65	3.91	4.12
Devaluation End of Year	9.0 %	7.0 %	5.5 %

D. Consolidation

1. Prisma consolidates investments in investees in which Prisma maintains more than 50% of the voting control of the investee and reflects minority ownership interests accordingly. The following assets are consolidated in Prisma's projected financial results:
 - BLM
 - Elektro
 - ENS
 - GMSA
 - Vengas
2. Prisma uses the equity method (APB 18) to account for investments in investees in which Prisma maintains between 20% and 50% of the voting control (directly or indirectly) of the investee. Under the equity method of accounting, the underlying assets and liabilities of investees do not appear on the face of the financial statements for Prisma. The company is currently in the process of adopting FASB Interpretation No. 46 (FIN 46), Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities, an Interpretation of ARB 51, and the current consolidation assumptions presently incorporated into the financial projections could change.

E. Intercompany Balances

1. In some instances, entities contemplated to be transferred into Prisma have intercompany obligations owing to certain of the Debtors and other Enron Companies. For purposes of these projections, the intercompany account balances have been netted to a net payable owed by Prisma to the Debtors or other Enron Companies. The financial projections assume that Prisma acquires certain of these obligations (as applicable, including principal and interest) in exchange for common shares of Prisma. At this time, the intercompany account balances have not been finally resolved.
2. The methodology ultimately used in the formation of Prisma may result in a different treatment of intercompany account balances, requiring adjustments to the presentation assumed in the pro forma financial statements.
3. Intercompany activities among companies within Prisma have been eliminated in the projected pro forma financial statements.

F. Overhead

1. Overhead includes the following cost components:
 - Business unit executive compensation
 - Legal
 - Accounting & Tax
 - Other miscellaneous costs
2. The projections do not include any expenses associated with the anticipated equity incentive plan. Refer to Section X.F of the Disclosure Statement for further information.
3. The projections do not include any costs associated with the voluntary termination of the ENE Cash Balance Plan.

G. General Tax Assumptions

1. U.S. Tax
 - a. During the time that Prisma is part of the ENE Tax Group, it is assumed that certain types of income earned from Prisma's businesses may be subject to reporting and to the possible imposition of U.S. tax at the U.S. shareholder level for certain U.S. companies within the ENE Tax Group.
 - b. The projections assume that after Prisma ceases to be a member of the Enron Tax Group, and subject to any U.S. tax that might be imposed on Prisma's management activities in the United States and certain other U.S. companies that comprise its assets, no U.S. taxes will be imposed on Prisma's income and cash flows.

- c. Similarly, it is assumed that after Prisma has left the ENE Tax Group, Prisma's equity will not be concentrated in a certain number of U.S. shareholders so as to subject such shareholders to the Subpart F income regime applicable to U.S. shareholders of controlled foreign corporations or owners of passive foreign investment companies (See Section XIV.I.4.b. of the Disclosure Statement).
- d. It is assumed that no material U.S. consolidated tax liabilities from the ENE estate will carryover to Prisma.

2. Foreign Withholding Taxes

Provision has been made where appropriate to charge undistributed consolidated and equity earnings from the various projects with any deferred foreign withholding taxes that may be imposed on such earnings when distributed. Also, adjustments to any deferred foreign withholding taxes have been made to the extent that profit distributions during the projection period exceed earnings attributable to the projection period.

3. Foreign Taxes

The projections assume that certain businesses that Prisma will consolidate have incurred foreign tax losses that are being carried forward to succeeding tax years, subject to tax law restrictions applicable to such businesses. A valuation reserve has been placed on the utilization of such losses where appropriate.

Appendix L: Liquidation Analysis

A. Introduction

If no chapter 11 plan can be confirmed, then the Debtors' cases may be converted to cases under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code, whereby a trustee would be elected or appointed to liquidate the assets of the Debtors for distribution to the holders of Claims in accordance with the strict priority scheme established by the Bankruptcy Code.

Under chapter 7, the cash amount available for distribution to Creditors would consist of the proceeds resulting from the disposition of the unencumbered assets of the Debtors, augmented by the unencumbered cash held by the Debtors at the time of the commencement of the liquidation cases. This cash amount would be reduced by the costs and expenses of the liquidation and by such additional administrative and priority claims that may result from the termination of the Debtors' businesses and the use of chapter 7 for the purposes of liquidation.

The Debtors have analyzed liquidation in the context of chapter 7 and the Liquidation Analysis below reflects the Debtors' estimates regarding recoveries in a chapter 7 liquidation. The Liquidation Analysis is based upon the hypothetical disposition of assets and distribution on Claims under a chapter 7 liquidation in contrast to the distribution of Creditor Cash, Plan Securities and, to the extent such trusts are created, interests in the Litigation Trust and the Special Litigation Trust under the Plan. The Liquidation Analysis assumes that, in the chapter 7 cases, the Bankruptcy Court will approve the settlements and compromises embodied in the Plan and described in the Disclosure Statement (including, without limitation, the 30/70 compromise predicated upon a negotiated formula as a proxy for resolving numerous inter-Debtor disputed issues) as fair and reasonable and will determine that the compromise represents the best estimate, short of a final determination on the merits, of how these issues would be resolved. The Liquidation Analysis further takes into consideration the increased costs of a chapter 7 liquidation, the impact on the value of the three Operating Entities and the expected delay in distributions to Creditors.

The Debtors submit that the Liquidation Analysis evidences that the Plan satisfies the best interest of creditors test and that, under the Plan, each holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim will receive value that is not less than the amount such holder would receive in a chapter 7 liquidation. Further, the Debtors believe that pursuant to chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code, holders of Enron Subordinated Debenture Claims, Enron Preferred Equity Interests, Statutorily Subordinated Claims, Enron Common Equity Interests and Other Equity Interests would receive no distributions.

B. Variance

Estimating recoveries in any chapter 7 case is an uncertain process due to the number of unknown variables such as business, economic and competitive contingencies beyond the chapter 7 trustee's control and this uncertainty is further aggravated by the complexities of these Chapter 11 Cases. The underlying projections contained in the Liquidation Analysis have not been compiled or examined by independent accountants. The Debtors make no representations regarding the accuracy of the projections or a chapter 7 trustee's ability to achieve forecasted results. Many of the assumptions underlying the projections are subject to significant uncertainties. Inevitably, some assumptions will not materialize and unanticipated events and circumstances may affect the ultimate financial results. In the event these Chapter 11 Cases are converted to chapter 7, actual results may vary materially from the estimates and projections set forth in the Liquidation Analysis. As such, the Liquidation Analysis is speculative in nature.

C. Assumptions

For purposes of the Liquidation Analysis, the Debtors considered many factors and made certain assumptions. Those assumptions that the Debtors consider significant are described below.

1. General

a. Conversion: Each of the Chapter 11 Cases are converted to chapter 7 on January 1, 2004.

b. Appointment of Chapter 7 Trustee: One chapter 7 trustee is appointed to liquidate and wind down these estates. It should be noted that the selection of a separate chapter 7 trustee for one or more of the Debtors could result in substantially higher administrative expenses associated with the chapter 7 cases.

c. Chapter 7 Trustee: The chapter 7 trustee would retain professionals (investment bankers, law firms, accounting firms, consultants, forensic experts, etc.) to assist in the liquidation and wind down of the Debtors' estates. While the chapter 7 trustee may retain certain of the Debtors' Chapter 11 Professionals for discrete projects, given that most (if not all) of these professionals will hold claims in the chapter 7 cases, it is assumed that the chapter 7 trustee's primary investment banking, legal, accounting, consulting and forensic support would be provided by new professionals.

d. Start-Up Time: Given the complexity of these Chapter 11 Cases and the underlying assets and claims, it is anticipated that the chapter 7 trustee and any newly retained professionals will require three to six months to familiarize themselves with the estates, the assets, the claims and related matters. It is further anticipated that it will take an additional three to six months before they begin marketing assets or litigating claims.

e. Global Compromise: To conserve resources and reduce the delay on making distributions, the Bankruptcy Court approves the settlements and compromises embodied in the Plan and described in the Disclosure Statement (including, without limitation, (i) the 30/70 compromise, predicated upon a negotiated formula as a proxy for resolving numerous inter-Debtor disputed issues and (ii) the exclusion of the Portland Debtors from that compromise) as fair and reasonable and determines that the compromise represents the best estimate, short of a final determination on the merits, of how these issues would be resolved. It should be noted that failure to adopt the global compromise would result in extensive litigation and a substantial increase in administrative expenses, as well as delaying distributions for several years.

f. Chapter 7 Committee(s): No committees are formed under section 705 of the Bankruptcy Code or, to the extent that one or more committees are formed, the Debtors' estates are not obligated to pay fees or expenses associated with any such committees.

g. Consolidation for Administrative Purposes. This analysis assumes that the Debtors are consolidated for administrative purposes during the chapter 7 process. Should one or more Debtors be handled through a separate chapter 7 process, the administrative costs related to that Debtor or those Debtors could be substantially higher than the costs assumed in this analysis.

2. Assets

a. Cash: Beginning cash balances are based on projected cash balances and were not subjected to a discount factor.

b. Operating Entities: The Bankruptcy Court would require that the Operating Entities be liquidated and cash proceeds distributed to Creditors, rather than distributing the stock of such entities to the Creditors as proposed in the Plan. The estimated proceeds for the sale or other disposition of the Operating Entities take into consideration (i) the valuations set forth in the Disclosure Statement for each of the Operating Entities; (ii) offers received to date for the Operating Entities and/or their underlying assets; (iii) discounts to the extent determined applicable to reflect pressure created by time limitations, potential deterioration of the underlying businesses due to failure to confirm a plan and conversion of these Chapter 11 Cases; and (iv) the fact that the chapter 7 trustee and, to the extent applicable, the trustee's professionals would lack historical knowledge as to the assets being sold. Rather than sell the Operating Entities as a going concern, the chapter 7 trustee might elect, instead, to sell discrete businesses within each of the Operating Entities and shut down or otherwise liquidate the remaining businesses. It is assumed that the Bankruptcy Court would allow the chapter 7 trustee sufficient time to market the Operating Entities, as well as some discretion as to timing depending upon fluctuations in the market, changes in the applicable industries and other commercial concerns. Accordingly, it is assumed that the Operating Entities are each sold as going concerns on or before December 31, 2006. However, there can be no assurances that the Operating Entities could be sold as going concerns or otherwise on or before December 31, 2006.

c. Remaining Assets: The Remaining Assets are each sold, shut down or otherwise liquidated on or before December 31, 2006. The estimated proceeds for the sale or other disposition of the Remaining Assets do not receive any discount. While actual proceeds could be discounted due to time limitations, potential deterioration of underlying assets due to failure to confirm a plan and conversion of these Chapter 11 Cases, and the fact that the chapter 7 trustee and, to the extent applicable, the trustee's professionals would lack historical knowledge as to the assets being sold, any such discount is considered to be immaterial.

d. Avoidance Actions: Consistent with the calculation of the estimated recoveries under the Plan, no values are included for recoveries from avoidance actions.

e. Financial Institution Actions: Consistent with the calculation of the estimated recoveries under the Plan, no values are included for recoveries from actions against financial institutions.

f. Other Litigation: Consistent with the calculation of the estimated recoveries under the Plan, no values are included for recoveries from other litigation.

3. Costs

a. Employees: The chapter 7 trustee will require approximately 1,038 employees as of January 1, 2004 with the number of employees required diminishing gradually over the first three years following appointment and continuing more rapidly thereafter. The Liquidation Budget set forth below covers the period including January 1, 2004 through December 31, 2006, but it is assumed that the liquidation process would continue for several more years beyond 2006.

b. Trustee Fees: The chapter 7 trustee would be compensated in accordance with the guidelines of section 326 of the Bankruptcy Code.

c. Professional Fees – General: Given that the chapter 7 trustee and, to the extent applicable, the trustee's professionals must familiarize themselves with the Debtors, their estates, their assets and the claims asserted against them, it is anticipated that the chapter 7 trustee's professionals' fees would be higher than the estimated professionals' fees to be incurred by the Reorganized Debtors following confirmation and consummation of the Plan. These increased expenses are further exacerbated by the contemplated post-conversion efforts to market and sell the Operating Entities in whole or in part in a chapter 7 liquidation.

d. Professional Fees – Investment Bankers: It is assumed that the chapter 7 trustee would have to retain investment bankers, who would be compensated at current market rate, including a percentage of any sale proceeds.

e. Professional Fees – Law Firms: It is assumed that the chapter 7 trustee would retain at least two primary law firms compensated at current market rate consistent with rates charged by the Debtors and Creditors' Committee's professionals in the Chapter 11 Cases. In addition, law firms currently engaged by the Debtors to prosecute or defend pending litigation are anticipated to be retained to continue such work following conversion to chapter 7.

f. Professional Fees – Other: The chapter 7 trustee also presumably would have to retain accountants and forensic experts, compensated at current market rates, to assist in prosecuting and diligencing causes of action, claims resolution, and litigation of issues otherwise resolved in the compromises set forth in the Plan.

g. Stamp and Transfer Taxes: The exemption provided for in Section 1146(c) of the Bankruptcy Code for stamp and other similar taxes (e.g., transfer taxes) is inapplicable in a chapter 7. Accordingly, the chapter 7 estates will bear any such costs incurred. It is not feasible to estimate these potential taxes at this time. Accordingly, no estimates are included in the Liquidation Analysis Budget or the estimated Creditor recoveries in a chapter 7 liquidation, both set forth below, but the Debtors believe that chapter 11 provides a benefit in this regard that is unavailable in chapter 7.

4. Estimated Recoveries

a. Determination of Claims: All Claims are either allowed or estimated for purposes of establishing a reserve on or before June 30, 2005, such that first distributions would be made in mid-2005. Final determination of all disputed Claims completed on or before December 31, 2009.

b. Classes of Claims: The estimated recoveries use the Classes of General Unsecured Claims established by the Plan are used to facilitate Creditors' ability to compare the recoveries under the Plan versus recoveries in a chapter 7 liquidation. A chapter 7 liquidation does not allow for special treatment for these Claims included in the Convenience Claim Classes under the Plan. Accordingly, Convenience Claim treatment under the Plan is inapplicable in a chapter 7, and the estimated Creditor recoveries in a chapter 7 liquidation set forth below do not include separate treatment for the classes of Convenience Claims under the Plan.

c. Global Compromise. As noted above, it is assumed that the global compromise embodied in the Plan is approved in the chapter 7 cases. In circumstances in which a Debtor's administrative claims may exceed the value of its assets, the chapter 7 recovery estimates may be reduced in order to pay in full Allowed Administrative Claims Expense against such Debtor.

d. Timing of Distributions: While it is currently contemplated that the first distributions under the Plan would commence in 2004, the Debtors anticipate that the first distribution to Creditors in a chapter 7 would not be made until December 2005. This assumption is based, in part, upon the belief that the chapter 7 trustee would be reluctant to make interim distributions prior to the determination of at least 50% of the disputed Claims. Further, it is assumed that subsequent distributions by the chapter 7 trustee would be delayed by approximately one year from the anticipated timing of distributions under the Plan.

e. Present Value Discount: The estimated recoveries under the hypothetical chapter 7 have been discounted by 10% to reflect the one year delay between potential distributions by the chapter 7 trustee and the anticipated timing of distributions under the Plan.

f. Guaranty Claims: The estimated recoveries use the formula, as incorporated in the Plan and described in the Disclosure Statement, whereby holders of Allowed Guaranty Claims are entitled to distributions equal to 100% of the amount of such Creditor's allocated distribution in the hypothetical non-consolidation case (i.e., the 70% scenario) and 50% of such Creditor's allocated distribution in the hypothetical consolidation scenario (i.e., the 30% scenario).

g. Additional Claims: The liquidation of the Debtors will result in additional Claims being satisfied under chapter 7, including, but not limited to, Claims arising from the rejection of remaining executory contracts and unexpired leases. However, due to the uncertainty as to which contracts or leases would ultimately be rejected and the determination of the amount of any rejection damages, no such Claims are included in the estimated recoveries. Accordingly, these Claims would further dilute any recoveries in a chapter 7 liquidation.

h. Amount of Allowed Claims: The determination of the Allowed Claims is an uncertain process given the number of disputed, contingent and/or unliquidated claims in these Chapter 11 Cases. No order or findings have been entered by the Bankruptcy Court estimating or otherwise fixing the amount of Allowed Claims used in the Liquidation Analysis. The actual amount of Allowed Claims could vary materially.

i. Intercompany Claims. Claim amounts relating to claims of one Debtor against another Debtor and claims of non-Debtor, majority-owned affiliates against a Debtor are based on the Debtors' books and records as of the date hereof and Schedules, as the same may be updated or amended from time to time.

D. Liquidation Analysis

1. Chapter 7 Liquidation Projections

The table below presents an estimated Liquidation Budget for the period including January 1, 2004 through December 31, 2006 in the event these Chapter 11 Cases are converted to chapter 7. For comparison purposes, these aggregate projections are for the same time period as included in the Reorganized Debtors' Budget found at Appendix G. Refer to the description above regarding the potential for variances.

It should be noted that the Liquidation Budget does not reflect the present value discount discussed above and applied to the estimates set forth below.

Appendix M: Substantive Consolidation Analysis

Appendix M: Substantive Consolidation Analysis

A. Equitable Remedy of Substantive Consolidation

Substantive consolidation is a judicially created equitable remedy whereby the assets and liabilities of two or more entities are pooled, and the pooled assets are aggregated and used to satisfy the claims of creditors of all the consolidated entities. Typically, substantive consolidation eliminates intercompany claims and any issues concerning ownership of assets among the consolidated entities, as well as guaranty claims against any consolidated entity that guaranteed the obligations of another consolidated entity. As explained in Union Savings Bank v. Augie/Restivo Baking Co. (In re Augie/Restivo Baking Co.), 860 F.2d 515, 518 (2d Cir. 1988), the “sole purpose of substantive consolidation is to ensure the equitable treatment of all creditors.” The federal court of appeals with jurisdiction over these Chapter 11 Cases has articulated a two-fold, disjunctive test for substantive consolidation: (i) whether creditors dealt with the entities as a single economic unit and did not rely on their separate identity in extending credit such that consolidation is fair from the vantage point of creditor expectations, taking into account any prejudice to particular creditors resulting from the consolidation, or (ii) whether the assets and liabilities of the entities in question are sufficiently entangled such that the process of untangling them would be so time-consuming and costly that it is not in the interest of the creditors to complete that process. Whether substantive consolidation is appropriate in a given case requires an intensive analysis of the facts pertaining to each entity proposed to be consolidated, including, but not limited to, the relationships and transactions among the entities in question and each entity’s disclosures to and transactions with creditors.

B. Diligence Process

Following the Initial Petition Date, pursuant to a confidentiality and non-waiver of privilege agreement between the Debtors and the Creditors’ Committee, the Debtors and the Creditors’ Committee undertook a joint diligence process to ascertain whether substantive consolidation would be an appropriate remedy for some or all of the Debtors in these Chapter 11 Cases. As part of this process, the Debtors and the Creditors’ Committee each reviewed and considered the Debtors’ books and records, public filings, key contracts, and other documents, as well as the facts and legal theories underlying various related inter-estate issues. In addition, they conducted numerous joint interviews of current and former employees, analyzed the relevant legal standards, and evaluated the relationships between certain of the Debtors and their largest Creditors. In response to Creditors’ requests, and as ordered by the Bankruptcy Court, in September 2002, the Creditors’ Committee established an Internet database to provide Creditors who are not members of the Creditors’ Committee with restricted access to copies of many of the documents reviewed as part of the Creditors’ Committee’s substantive consolidation investigation.

Through this process, the Debtors and the Creditors’ Committee concluded that, for each of the Debtors, there are relevant facts weighing both for and against substantive consolidation. Among the many facts considered relevant to the substantive consolidation analysis, there are certain universal or nearly universal facts regarding the Debtors, including, but not limited to, the following:

(i) each of the Debtors was able to prepare and file separate Schedules listing their prepetition assets and liabilities;

(ii) separate books and records were maintained for each of the Debtors prepetition;

(iii) prepetition, a consolidated federal tax return was filed including most of the Debtors, but, to the extent applicable, individual state tax returns were prepared and filed for each of the Debtors;

(iv) prepetition, each of the Debtors observed corporate formalities including conducting periodic board meetings and annual shareholder meetings; however, other than the meetings held for ENE, the vast majority of these meetings were by written consent, rather than through in-person meetings involving debate and discussion;

(v) for substantially all of the Debtors, overlap existed as to the officers and directors of each Debtor and the officers and directors of other Debtors;

(vi) substantially all of the Debtors directly or indirectly participated in the centralized cash management system maintained by ENE prepetition;

(vii) substantially all of the Debtors received direct or indirect prepetition credit support from ENE through intercompany loans (whether directly to the Debtor or indirectly to the Debtor through the Debtor's parent(s)), guaranties, indemnities, total return swaps or other means of support;

(viii) with very few exceptions, prior to the Initial Petition Date, none of the Debtors disseminated financial information to creditors or potential creditors or otherwise made such information available other than the consolidated financial statements for ENE and its subsidiaries;

(ix) of the Debtors, ENE was the only entity with a credit rating by the major domestic rating agencies and ENE became unable to continue its business operations upon the downgrade of ENE's credit rating;

(x) although some costs were allocated to subsidiaries, prepetition, ENE absorbed substantial overhead costs for most (if not all) of the Debtors;

(xi) substantially all of the Debtors utilized ENE's centralized services for risk management, insurance procurement, legal, benefits and similar services;

(xii) although the internal transaction approval process for all of the Debtors did not expressly require approval of the board of the entity engaged in the transaction, it did require, depending on the dollar amount and type of transaction, approval by the head of the applicable business unit (who might not be an officer or director of that entity), the head of the applicable business segment (who might not be an officer or director of that entity), the Office of the Chair of ENE, and/or the Board of Directors of ENE; and (xiii) Enron accounting policies permitted non-cash settlements of intercompany obligations by allowing subsidiaries to either (1) transfer their intercompany receivables owed by other subsidiaries to ENE, in exchange for a receivable from ENE or (2) transfer their intercompany payables owed to other subsidiaries to ENE with ENE assuming the obligation, in exchange for a payable owed by the subsidiary to ENE. After the completion of a non-cash settlement, the entity with the original payable would have a payable to ENE and ENE would have a payable to the other subsidiary. The entity with the original receivable from a subsidiary of ENE would have a receivable from ENE. For example, if EGM had a $1 million receivable from ENA, EGM would exchange its receivable from ENA for a $1 million receivable from ENE and ENA would exchange its payable to EGM for a $1 million payable to ENE. This would leave ENA with no liability to EGM (and EGM no receivable from ENA); ENA would have a $1 million payable to ENE and ENE would have a $1 million payable to EGM.

In addition, while there do not appear to be facts to support a finding of pervasive hopeless entanglement, the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee each concluded that there was extensive entanglement between some or all of the Debtors arising principally from Intercompany Claims. Refer to Appendix N "Intercompany Value Flow Analysis" for information regarding significant value flows between the various Debtors in satisfaction of Intercompany Claims. Of the most significant Intercompany Claims depicted in Appendix N "Intercompany Value Flow Analysis", approximately $19.5 billion of Intercompany Claims are owed to ENE by various Debtors (for a total of $3.9 billion estimated to be received or allocated in distributions under the Plan) and approximately $13.5 billion of Intercompany Claims are owed to ENA by various Debtors (for a total of $2.3 billion estimated to be received or allocated in distributions under the Plan). This intercompany entanglement among Debtors can be illustrated, for example, by the fact that ENA is ENE's single largest Creditor and ENA's Claim against ENE is ENA's single largest asset. Similar intercompany entanglement exists among Debtors within particular business units, such as Retail Services and the Wind Businesses, which entanglement often extends to include ENE as such business units often operated on a negative cash flow basis and relied heavily on significant cash infusions from ENE (recorded by both Debtors as intercompany loans) to maintain their business operations. In each of the examples described above and generally under the Plan, distributions to the Creditors of a given Debtor necessarily depend in large part on what that Debtor recovers on its Intercompany Claims. Refer to Appendix N "Intercompany Value Flow Analysis" for additional information.

The foregoing provides a brief summary of the facts weighing both for and against substantive consolidation. In addition, this Appendix sets forth below a more detailed listing of common facts relevant to this analysis. While there are additional relevant facts applicable to most of the Debtors, there are also extensive entity-specific facts. Because of the complexity of these Chapter 11 Cases and the fact-intensive nature of the inquiry, it is impossible to include an exhaustive analysis of these issues for each and every Debtor. The overwhelming incidence of common facts relevant to this analysis provides the basis for inclusion of all of the Debtors (other than the Portland Debtors) in the Plan compromise.

In fact, given the extent and difficulty of the relevant factual and legal issues, in an effort to resolve the numerous inter-estate issues without protracted and expensive litigation, the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee forged a global compromise and settlement predicated upon a negotiated formula, as a proxy for resolving all such issues, distributing value to Creditors based on hypothetical cases of substantive consolidation and no substantive consolidation. Specifically, under the global compromise of numerous inter-estate issues embodied in the Plan, except with respect to the Portland Debtors, distributions of Plan Currency will be made on account of Allowed General Unsecured Claims, Allowed Guaranty Claims, and Allowed Intercompany Claims based on agreed percentages being applied to two scenarios for making distributions: (i) substantive consolidation of all of the Debtors or (ii) substantive consolidation of none of the Debtors. Accordingly, for example, subject to certain adjustments, a holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim (except a holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim against the Portland Debtors) will receive the sum of (a) 30% of the distribution such Creditor would receive if the Debtors' estates, other than the estates of the Portland Debtors, were substantively consolidated, but notwithstanding such substantive consolidation, one-half of Allowed Guaranty Claims were included in such calculation and (b) 70% of the distribution such Creditor would receive if the Debtors were not substantively consolidated. As noted, the 30/70 weighted average is not a precise mathematical quantification of the likelihood of substantive consolidation of each Debtor into each of the other Debtors, but, instead, a negotiated approximation of the likely recoveries if numerous inter-estate issues, including substantive consolidation, were litigated to judgment as to all Debtors.

C. Variance

Because substantive consolidation is an equitable doctrine that is not easily quantifiable, and because no single factor is dispositive as to whether substantive consolidation is appropriate in a given circumstance, the matrices below do not correlate to ascribing specific probabilities. Such an assessment is inherently subjective and the relevance of the underlying data may be subject to differing interpretations. Although advisors to the Debtors have reviewed the accuracy of the data compiled by the Debtors, no representations can be made that the information is correct or complete. In addition, these matrices merely summarize the factual findings reached by the Debtors after performing diligence so as to provide a basis for Creditors and the Bankruptcy Court to find that the Plan's global compromise is within the range of reasonableness for each of the Debtors (other than the Portland Debtors). These summary findings are not comprehensive as to each factor or all factual data relevant to substantive consolidation. Moreover, as summaries, the matrices may not reflect certain nuances in the factual data relevant to substantive consolidation that do not lend themselves to easy categorization as to whether they support or refute substantive consolidation. The number of questions on the matrices answered “S/C,” for arguably supportive of substantive consolidation, or “No S/C,” for arguably supportive of no substantive consolidation is not indicative of the likelihood of substantive consolidation because not all factors are equally probative of substantive consolidation. Rather, the presence of “S/C” and “No S/C” factors demonstrates the reason why the Debtor is included in the 30/70 compromise as falling within the range of reasonableness.

D. Assumptions

The following are significant assumptions and limitations underlying the information contained in the matrices:

1. The Portland Debtors were excluded from the global compromise embedded in the Plan for various reasons including the fact that, in contrast to the other Debtors, the Portland Debtors were not integrated into the Enron Companies’ centralized processes. Specifically, the Portland Debtors did not: (i) participate in the centralized cash management process at any time, (ii) regularly obtain credit support in the form of guaranties, indemnities, or related support, or (iii) typically utilize the centralized accounting, information services, legal, risk assessment, insurance, and/or tax services provided by ENE to most other Enron Companies. On a day to day basis, the Portland Debtors were operated separate and apart from the other Enron Companies without the involvement of senior management at ENE. It should be noted that inclusion of the Portland Debtors in the global compromise would have an immaterial impact on the Creditor recoveries of Creditors holding Claims against the other Debtors and, thus, the exclusion of the Portland Debtors does not prejudice any such Creditors.
2. The 5 EREC Debtors were not included in the substantive consolidation analysis set forth below because they were not in existence as of the period of review (prior to December 2, 2001). The EREC Debtors were created immediately prior to the bankruptcy filing of the Wind Entities on February 20, 2002, as LLC entities to succeed the Wind corporate entities in conjunction with the asset sale to GE Power Systems. Appendix M primarily reflects activities prior to the Initial Petition Date. Consequently, an analysis for each of the 5 predecessor Wind corporate entities is included, rather than an analysis of the 5 successor EREC entities created after the relevant period of review. In contrast, Appendices C and P primarily reflect estimated creditor recoveries under the Plan and, thus, the relevant recovery information is reflected for the 5 successor EREC entities.
3. In responding to question 1, regarding whether, as of the Initial Petition Date, the Debtor was directly or indirectly wholly owned by ENE, the chart for some Debtors may reflect that the answer to this question is undetermined at this time due to a variety of factors, including potential litigation. The Debtors reserve their right to assert that these entities are wholly owned by

ENE. As of the Initial Petition Date, three debtors were not wholly owned by ENE: EnRock Management, LLC, EnRock, LP, and EPower Holdings Corp.

4. In preparing the responses to Question 4, regarding whether a Debtor was charged for the use of ENE's legal address, office space, or other facilities, the Debtors reviewed intercompany accounts for each Debtor to determine if any charge was incurred.
5. In answer to Questions 11 and 12 regarding any overlap between directors or executives of a Debtor and those of ENE or other Debtors, there were 21 directors or executives of ENE who collectively served as directors or executives of 118 other Debtors. For purposes of this analysis, "executives" were considered to be anyone holding the title of vice president or above. Please refer to the individual schedules below for additional detail.
6. Regarding Question 22, on whether in the 18 months preceding the Initial Petition Date Debtor received funding for its business activities from ENE, the responses are limited to the time period 18 months prior to the Initial Petition Date because data before this date was not readily available given that the Debtors converted to a new computerized accounting system at that time. The difficulty in reconstructing financial information prior to this 18-month period has been cited by proponents of substantive consolidation as a basis for such remedy.
7. Regarding Question 22, on whether in the 18 months preceding the Initial Petition Date Debtor received funding for its business activities from ENE, the responses were calculated by looking at intercompany balance detail for intercompany accounts recorded as well as any formal intercompany loans. The responses to this question do not reflect any funding from intercompany cash "circles." Refer to Appendix N.D.2., "Cash Circles," for additional information.
8. Interested parties should refer to Exhibit F of the Plan and Appendix C hereto for information regarding whether Debtors have any outstanding prepetition payables to other Debtors or prepetition receivables from other Debtors.

Appendix N: Intercompany Value Flow Analysis

Appendix N: Intercompany Value Flow Analysis

A. Introduction

The flow chart set forth in Section E below reflects projected recoveries of certain Debtors in respect of certain Intercompany Claims and the flow of value between the Debtors in the stand-alone scenario. No recoveries on Intercompany Claims would take place in a substantive consolidation scenario. Among other things, this information is provided to facilitate parties in interest in their analysis and understanding of the Debtors' estates. The estimated recoveries and the underlying projections and assumptions are highly speculative and based upon information available at the time that this analysis was prepared. Actual results may vary materially from those reflected herein. Further, the summary information reflected herein is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the Plan and Disclosure Statement.

More specifically, the flow chart was derived from the Distribution Model, which is a complex and customized software program utilized to synthesize estimates and projections regarding assets and liabilities, as well as to calculate Creditor recoveries under the Plan depending upon numerous variables and assumptions. The Distribution Model was used to generate the flow chart and to reflect therein the estimated recoveries between Debtors in respect of Intercompany Claims in the stand-alone scenario.

B. Variance

The Debtors have prepared the estimates incorporated into the flow chart based upon certain assumptions that they believe are reasonable under the circumstances. The estimates have not been compiled or examined by independent accountants. The Debtors make no representations regarding the accuracy of the estimates or any ability to achieve forecasted results. Many of the assumptions underlying the estimates are subject to significant uncertainties. Inevitably, some assumptions will not materialize, and unanticipated events and circumstances may affect the ultimate financial results. Therefore, the actual results achieved will vary from the estimates, and the variations may be material. In evaluating the Plan, Creditors are urged to examine carefully all of the assumptions underlying the financial estimates.

1. Remaining Assets. With respect to the Remaining Assets, the estimated recoveries, valuations and projections are based, in part, on estimated proceeds generated by a sale or other disposition of substantially all of these assets. Many of these assets have been on the market or the subject of inquiries since the Initial Petition Date, but have not been sold for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to, (i) poor market conditions, and (ii) the need to resolve complex ownership issues, pending litigation or government investigations, tax issues, and consent issues. In some cases, the Reorganized Debtors will be attempting to sell non-controlling financial interests for which a limited market exists. Due to the inherent uncertainties associated with selling these assets as a result of the issues identified above, there can be no assurance that these assets will be sold at presently estimated prices or at presently estimated times, if at all. Similarly, the recoveries of the Debtors (or the Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be) against counterparties on trading contracts are dependent on the creditworthiness and ability to pay of the counterparties.

2. Creditor Cash. The inability to sell or otherwise convert the Remaining Assets to cash may materially impact, among other things, the value of the Plan Currency. As a result of the foregoing, the Creditor Cash available for distribution as a result of liquidation of the Remaining Assets may be impacted.

3. Operating Entities Generally. Estimates of value do not purport to be appraisals nor do they necessarily reflect the values that may be realized if assets are sold. The estimates of value represent hypothetical equity values assuming the implementation of each of the Operating Entities' business plan, as well as other significant assumptions. Such estimates were developed solely for purposes of formulating and negotiating the Plan and analyzing the projected recoveries thereunder. Any estimated equity value is highly dependent upon achieving the future financial results set forth in the projections for each of the Operating Entities, as well as the realization of certain other assumptions that are not guaranteed.

The valuations of each of the Operating Entities set forth herein represent estimated values and do not necessarily reflect values that could be attainable in public or private markets for the Operating Entities or their constituent assets. The equity value ascribed in the analysis does not purport to be an estimate of the market value of stock to be distributed pursuant to the Plan. Such trading value, if any, may be materially different from the equity value associated with the valuation analysis.

4. PGE. The valuation of PGE set forth herein assumes that the current regulatory environment remains unchanged. However, PGE operates in a heavily regulated industry. Changes to the current regulatory environment may have a material adverse impact on PGE's actual results. Refer to Section XIV., "Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered," as well as Section VIII., "Portland General Electric Company," for further discussion on these and other risks attendant with PGE and the electric utility industry.

5. CrossCountry. The valuation of CrossCountry set forth herein assumes certain levels of rates for the transportation of natural gas as set by FERC. Such rates are highly regulated and subject to periodic changes. There is no guarantee that the current rate levels will not change materially in the future or will provide adequate reimbursement for the services provided by CrossCountry and its subsidiaries. Any such changes are entirely beyond CrossCountry's control and may have a material adverse impact on actual results. Further, CrossCountry operates in a heavily regulated industry. In the ordinary course of its business, CrossCountry is subject regularly to inquiries, investigations and audits by federal and state agencies that oversee various natural gas pipeline regulations. Changes to the current regulatory environment may have a material adverse impact on CrossCountry's actual results. Refer to Section XIV., "Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered," as well as Section IX., "CrossCountry," for further discussion on these and other risks attendant with CrossCountry and the natural gas pipeline industry.

6. Prisma. The valuation of Prisma set forth herein assumes that all assets contemplated for transfer to Prisma are in fact transferred. The valuation further assumes that, subject to appropriate offsets, the assets to be transferred to Prisma do not include any material prepetition intercompany obligations of the Debtors. If for any reason one or more assets are not transferred to Prisma, or one or more additional assets are transferred to Prisma, then the value could fluctuate materially. In addition, the valuation of Prisma set forth herein assumes certain levels of tariffs or rates of return for the constituent assets. Such rates are highly regulated, subject to periodic changes, and in certain circumstances are the outcome of political processes in the subject jurisdictions. There is no guarantee that the current rate levels will not change materially in the future or will provide adequate reimbursement for the services provided by Prisma and its subsidiaries. Any such changes are entirely beyond Prisma's control and may have a material adverse impact on actual results. Further, as Prisma operates primarily in foreign jurisdictions, such political processes often lead to greater volatility in regulatory outcomes than might occur in the United States. Additionally, operations in the emerging markets are generally subject to greater risk of global economic slowdown, political uncertainty, currency devaluation, exchange controls and the ability to enforce and defend legal and contractual rights than are domestic companies. Such risk factors may also have a material adverse impact on Prisma's actual results. For further discussion on these and other risks attendant with Prisma and the industries in which it is involved, refer to sections X and XIV, subsection I, in the Disclosure Statement.

C. Assumptions

1. The Plan embodies a compromise establishing a 30/70 weighted average predicated upon a negotiated formula as a proxy for numerous inter-Debtor disputed issues. For illustrative purposes and to facilitate parties in interest in their analysis and understanding of the Debtors' estates and the global compromise, the flow chart reflects distributions to Debtors in respect of Intercompany Claims assuming no substantive consolidation. These distributions are meaningful in that they impact the recovery of General Unsecured Claims under the stand-alone case, which constitutes 70% of the ultimate recovery on such claims.
2. The recoveries in the flow chart reflect the terms of the global compromise, including resolution of certain asset ownership disputes between ENE and ENA. Following extensive discussions and negotiation with the ENA Examiner, rather than litigate these and related issues, the Debtors, the Creditors' Committee and the ENA Examiner agreed to a compromise of these inter-Debtor disputes wherein, for purposes of calculating distributions pursuant to the Plan, the net economic ownership of certain assets would be reallocated. The Debtors and the Creditors' Committee believe that, even if meritorious, such litigation would only produce additional prepetition unsecured Intercompany Claims and not a transfer of ownership of such assets. Nevertheless, the Debtors and the Creditors' Committee agreed to a negotiated transfer of asset ownership as a further proxy for the resolution of all inter-estate issues.

3. An additional feature of the global compromise is the waiver and release of intercompany causes of action (including avoidance actions) between Debtors. Accordingly, the flow chart does not reflect these causes of actions (if any) held by one Debtor against one or more of the other Debtors.
4. The recoveries in the flow chart pertain to prepetition unsecured Intercompany Claims. Consequently, to the extent that a Debtor is entitled to satisfy all or a portion of its Intercompany Claim through setoff, offset or recoupment, the flow chart reflects recoveries on only the residual Claim, if any.
5. Pursuant to the Bankruptcy Court's August 1, 2002 order, no Claims Bar Date was set for any Debtor to file Claims against another Debtor. Additionally, on November 26, 2003 the Bankruptcy Court entered an order generally authorizing each of the Debtors to enter into one or more stipulations tolling the applicable statute of limitations with respect to certain claims. In accordance with the order, as a general rule, each Debtor is deemed to have entered into a stipulation with (a) other Debtors, (b) affiliated non-debtor entities and (c) structures created by the Debtors and which are controlled or managed by the Debtors or their affiliates. Further, the Debtors have entered into tolling agreements with numerous third parties in accordance with the order. In accordance with the court approved procedures, the Debtors have filed or will file a copy or notice of each executed stipulation with the Bankruptcy Court, thereby putting parties in interest on notice of the tolling arrangements, which will be matters of public record and available for viewing at <http://www.elaw4enron.com>. The Debtors are relying upon Exhibit F to the Plan for purposes of allowance and distribution of Claims held by any Debtor against another Debtor. Intercompany Claims reflected therein are based upon the intercompany accounts and notes reflected in the Debtors' books and records as of the date hereof. Intercompany account balances are derived from the Schedules, as the same may be updated or amended from time to time, and the books and records of the Debtors and their affiliates as of the date hereof. Additionally, the results are based on certain assumptions associated with the Tax Sharing Agreements. Should such assumptions change, there may be a material impact to certain Debtors.
6. Amounts realized from intercompany receivables are estimated by the Distribution Model and are based upon the estimated assets, liabilities and claims of the obligated Debtor or non-Debtor affiliate.

7. The value of investments in subsidiaries is estimated by the Distribution Model and is based upon the estimated values of the assets and liabilities of those subsidiaries and the Debtors' corresponding ownership interest.
8. The value of assets excludes any value that may be realized from the Litigation Trust, the Special Litigation Trust or from any avoidance actions commenced by the Debtors. Any value that may be realized from these litigation trusts or avoidance actions may be material, but is highly speculative, and thus predictions regarding these amounts are not included.
9. Claims have been estimated by using a combination of the Enron Companies' books and records, scheduled claims, filed claims, and professional judgment. Such estimates are subject to change and any such changes could have a material effect on Debtor recoveries. For information regarding scheduled claims, refer to the Debtors' Schedules, which are available at <http://www.enron.com/corp/chapter11>. Claims filed against the Debtors are available for viewing at <http://www.bsillc.com>.
10. All trading contracts between or among two or more Debtors or between or among Debtor and non-Debtor Affiliates (non-Debtors that are directly or indirectly 100% owned by one or more Debtors) are assumed to have been rejected and valued at the Initial Petition Date. Intercompany Claims relating to unsettled trading contracts reflect a marked-to-market value as of the Initial Petition Date.
11. The Debtors, as well as their non-Debtor affiliates, had numerous intercompany contracts, including, but not limited to, trading contracts, operations and maintenance agreements, and Tax Sharing Agreements. To the extent any of these contracts are rejected, the rejection or the resulting rejection damages claim could have a material impact on either party to the contract. In conjunction with confirmation, the Debtors intend to file a schedule of stipulated rejection damages arising from the Debtors' rejection of intercompany trading contracts and other intercompany contracts, including contracts between two Debtors or between a Debtor and any wholly owned affiliate.
12. The flow chart does take into account SPE settlements approved by the Bankruptcy Court but does not assume that Debtors will succeed in recovering any assets associated with the SPEs, nor does it assume that any settlements of SPEs may be negotiated and approved by the Bankruptcy Court in the future. The Debtors reserve their rights in both of these regards.
13. At the time this analysis was prepared, the Intercompany Claims aggregated approximately $74 billion. The flow chart reflects the aggregate of Intercompany Claims (a) with a face amount of $300 million or more, or (b) upon which recoveries in the stand-alone case is estimated to equal or exceed $80 million (the “Significant Intercompany Claims”). The aggregate amount of Significant Intercompany Claims is approximately $64 billion, or 87% of the total Intercompany Claims. Refer to Exhibit F to the Plan for a complete listing of Allowed Intercompany Claims pursuant to the Plan.

D. Discussion of Selected Value Flows

1. Largest Distributions

The Significant Intercompany Claims flow between 35 of the 180 Debtors and result in approximately $12.6 billion in distributions.

Approximately $19.5 billion of the Significant Intercompany Claims flow to ENE (for a total of $3.9 billion in distributions) and approximately $13.5 billion of the Significant Intercompany Claims flow to ENA (for a total of $2.3 billion in distributions). Accordingly, almost 49% of the distributions on Significant Intercompany Claims will flow to ENE and ENA.

2. Cash Circles

Under the cash management system in effect prior to the Initial Petition Date, payments to EPMI and ENGMC were collected by ENA and thereafter swept by ENE pursuant to the centralized cash management system. ENE directly paid essentially all of the obligations of EPMI and ENGMC. The payment of EPMI and ENGMC by ENE generated payables from EPMI and ENGMC to ENE.

Based on intercompany obligations incurred prior to the Initial Petition Date, ENE will make approximately $2.1 billion in distributions to ENA on approximately $12.7 billion of intercompany payables; ENA will make approximately $850 million in distributions to ENGMC on approximately $4.13 billion of intercompany payables; and ENGMC will make approximately $933 million in distributions to ENE on approximately $3.58 billion of intercompany payables. This “ENGMC Cash Circle” among ENE, ENA, and ENGMC is set forth in the Cash Circle Chart in Section E below.

Based on intercompany obligations incurred prior to the Initial Petition Date, ENE will make approximately $2.1 billion in distributions to ENA on approximately $12.7 billion of intercompany payables; ENA will make approximately $1.06 billion in distributions to EPMI on approximately $5.14 billion of intercompany payables; and EPMI will make approximately $1.17 billion in distributions to ENE on approximately $4.76 billion of intercompany payables. This “EPMI Cash Circle” among ENE, ENA, and EPMI is set forth in more detail in the Cash Circle Chart in Section E below.

While there was an accounting policy that permitted non-cash settlement of such cash circles, non-cash settlements were not in fact effectuated in the EPMI Cash

Circle and the ENGMC Cash Circle as of the Initial Petition Date (collectively, the “Cash Circles”). A discussion of these Cash Circles is also contained in the Twelfth Monthly Report of Harrison J. Goldin, the Court-Appointed Examiner in the Enron North America Corp. Bankruptcy Proceeding, dated April 14, 2003 which is available under “Related Documents” at <http://www.enron.com/corp/por>.

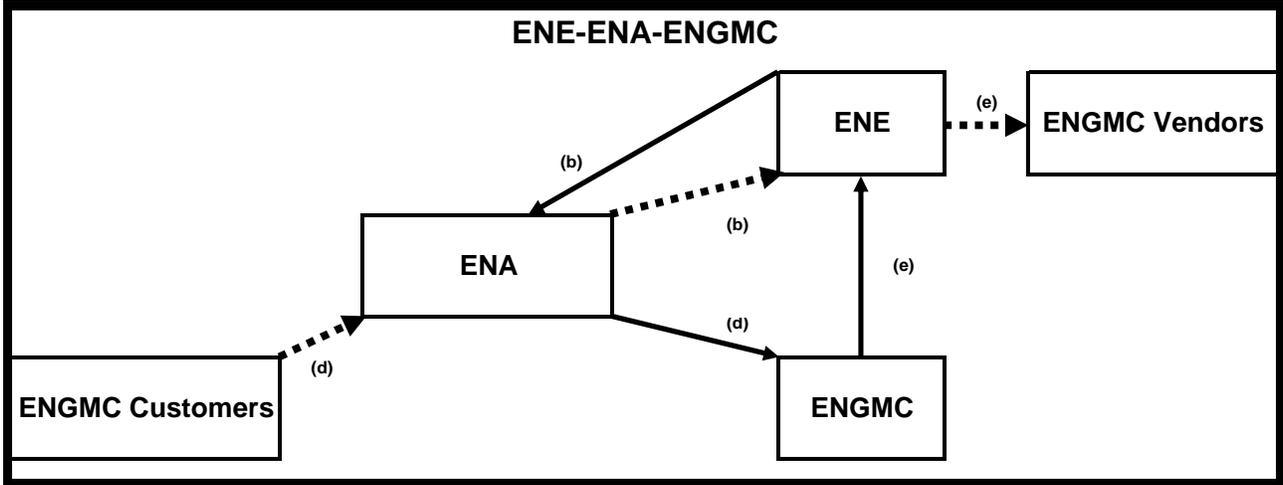

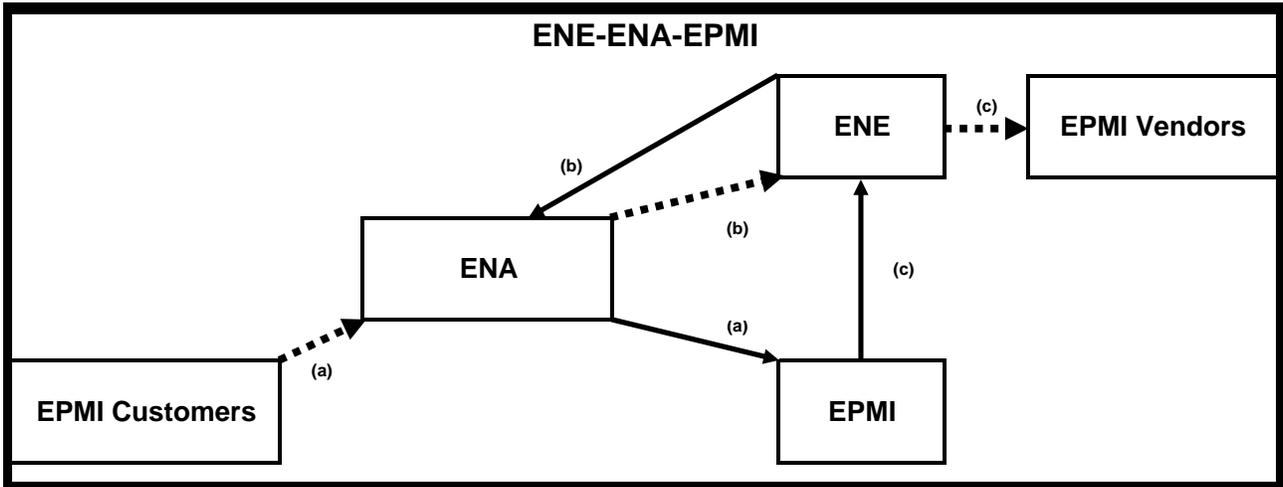

If the Cash Circles had been settled, it is likely that recoveries to creditors of EPMI would be higher than reflected herein and the recoveries to creditors of ENE lower. The effects upon creditors of ENGMC and ENA are less predictable, although it appears ENGMC and ENA creditors’ recoveries would have been higher if non-cash settlements had been effectuated. Refer to Appendix M: “Substantive Consolidation Analysis”.

3. Zero Recoveries

ENE will not receive any distributions on (a) the $443 million of claims it has against EI or (b) the $312 million of claims it has against EGPFPC, because EI and EGPFPC are each administratively insolvent on a stand-alone basis. Similarly, EEPC will not receive any distributions on the $335 million of claims it has against NEPCO because NEPCO is administratively insolvent on a stand-alone basis and ENA Asset Holdings will not receive any distributions on the $430 million of claims it has against BAM because BAM is administratively insolvent on a stand-alone basis. The administrative claims of EI, EGPFPC, NEPCO, and BAM will be treated in accordance with section 3.1 of the Plan.

Appendix O: Potential Causes of Action

Appendix O: Potential Causes of Action

A. Introduction

In addition to the pending litigation discussed in Section IV.C.1., “Pending Litigation,” Section IV.E., “Avoidance Actions” and Appendix S: “Additional Pending Avoidance Actions,” the Debtors believe that they have potential causes of action against a number of parties based on various theories. Refer to Section IV.C.1., “Pending Litigation,” Section IV.E., “Avoidance Actions” and Appendix S: “Additional Pending Avoidance Actions” for further information regarding pending litigation involving the Debtors.

The Debtors have worked diligently during the pendency of the Chapter 11 Cases to identify meritorious potential causes of action that, if successfully prosecuted, would result in a benefit to their estates. In addition to the pending litigation described elsewhere, this Appendix contains a listing of many such potential causes of action that the Debtors may elect to pursue, however, this list is not exhaustive and the Debtors reserve the right, to the extent the statute of limitations has not run for such actions, to commence and prosecute additional claims and causes of action. This Appendix does not contain causes of action that are property of the non-Debtor affiliates. Moreover, to the extent that any potential defendant identified herein has a Claim against the Debtors, the Debtors reserve the right to seek to have such Claims disallowed or subordinated. Refer to Appendix Q: “Subordinated Claims” for a list of Claims that the Debtors have preliminarily identified as subordinated or potentially subordinated.

Section 108(a) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that if a statute of limitations under nonbankruptcy law has not expired prior to the filing of a bankruptcy petition, then a debtor may bring a cause of action before the later of (a) the end of such limitations period, including any suspension of such period occurring on or after the commencement of the bankruptcy case and (b) two years after the petition date. As a result, each Debtor has at least two years from its respective Petition Date to commence various causes of action. Refer to Appendix B: “List of Debtors, Tax ID Numbers, Case Numbers, and Petition Dates” for the Petition Date for each respective Debtor. Many of the Debtors’ potential causes of action are held by ENE or ENA and, as a result, the statute of limitations on these causes of action may have expired on December 2, 2003. However, except as may be otherwise provided in the Plan or agreed by the Debtors, any and all claims may be subject to avoidance actions that, if not filed by December 2, 2003, may still be asserted as affirmative defenses to the allowability of such claims in accordance with section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code. In the event that the Debtors have (i) entered into an agreement tolling the applicable statute of limitations with respect to a Guaranty Claim or (ii) timely filed an action seeking avoidance of a Guaranty Claim, the Debtors may assert section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code as an affirmative defense to the allowability of such claim. Refer to Section I.B.1.e., “Challenges to Certain Claims Based on ENE Guaranties and to Certain Large Claims” for information regarding such Guaranty Claims.

The Debtors make no guarantees with respect to the estimated amount of damages identified herein and such disclosure shall not be considered an admission by the Debtors with respect to potential recoveries, which may be less than or greater than listed. Accordingly, the Debtors reserve the right to seek damages greater than or less than the amounts listed herein. Moreover, the Debtors make no representations with respect to whether they will ultimately institute the potential causes of action contained herein. As the Debtors continue their diligence efforts, the Debtors may identify additional potential causes of action not reflected herein. Accordingly, the Debtors reserve the right to identify and institute such additional potential causes of action and do not waive any rights with respect thereto.

Depending upon the applicable statute of limitations, many of these potential causes of actions may be brought after the Confirmation Date. On November 26, 2003, the Bankruptcy Court entered an order generally authorizing each of the Debtors to enter into one or more stipulations tolling the applicable statute of limitations with respect to certain claims. In accordance with the order, as a general rule, each Debtor is deemed to have entered into a stipulation with (a) other Debtors, (b) affiliated non-debtor entities and (c) structures created by the Debtors and which are controlled or managed by the Debtors or their affiliates. Further, the Debtors have entered into tolling agreements with numerous third parties in accordance with the order. In accordance with the court approved procedures, the Debtors have filed or will file a copy or notice of each executed stipulation with the Bankruptcy Court, thereby putting parties in interest on notice of the tolling arrangements, which will be matters of public record and available for viewing at <http://www.elaw4enron.com>. Accordingly, the Debtors have preserved their respective legal rights to bring suit in the future against various parties without allowing the applicable statute of limitations to expire and without acknowledging in any way whether valid claims, causes of action or defenses exist thereto. Further, the Debtors have reserved the right to assert in any claims litigation that section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code may be used defensively following the expiration of the two-year statute of limitations set forth in section 546(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. Given the nature and complexity of these Chapter 11 Cases, the existence and/or merit of many of these causes of action could not have been litigated prior to confirmation of the Plan.

B. Potential Causes of Action

1. SPE-Related Litigation

Refer to Section IV.A.4.b., “ENE Examiner” for further information regarding potential SPE-related litigation. The Debtors reserve the right to pursue any potential claim or cause of action against a potential defendant identified (i) by the ENA Examiner, as conflicts examiner, (ii) in any of the ENE Examiner’s reports or (iii) participating in any of the SPE-related transactions identified in any of those Examiner’s reports. Refer to Section IV.A.4.b., “ENE Examiner” for additional information regarding the ENE Examiner’s duties and the reports filed in connection with SPE-related transactions. Refer to Section IV.A.4.a.(ii)(E), “Conflicts Examiner” for information regarding the ENA Examiner’s role as conflicts examiner.

2. Professionals

The Debtors may pursue any claim or cause of action against a potential defendant identified by the ENA Examiner, as conflicts examiner, or in the ENE Examiner's report. In addition the Debtors have begun an analysis of potential malpractice and course of conduct claims against professionals who provided services to the Debtors prior to the Initial Petition Date, as well as professionals who advised other parties (including, but not limited to, insiders) in connection with prepetition transactions involving the Debtors. The Debtors reserve the right to institute litigation against those parties identified by the ENA Examiner, as conflicts examiner, or in the ENE Examiner's reports. In addition, the Debtors reserve the right to institute litigation against any other potential defendants not otherwise identified therein.

3. Employee/Insider Claims

As described in more detail in Section IV.A.8.f. of the Disclosure Statement, the Severance Settlement Fund Litigation has been commenced by the Employee Committee against certain recipients of the Employee Prepetition Stay Bonus Payments. The Employee Committee is the plaintiff in the foregoing litigation and any recoveries received pursuant to the litigation will be deposited in the Severance Settlement Litigation Trust. The Debtors cannot predict whether the Employee Committee will be successful in its litigation or the amount of the recovery that will ultimately be received by the Severance Settlement Trust.

As described in more detail in Section IV.A.8.f. of the Disclosure Statement, the Employee Committee has been authorized to commence the Deferred Compensation Litigation. The Employee Committee has filed an adversary proceeding against approximately 32 of the recipients of accelerated deferred compensation payment seeking to avoid an aggregate total of approximately $30.4 million in such payments and may file suit against approximately 9 other recipients. ENE is the plaintiff in the foregoing litigation. The amounts at issue are subject to change, and the Debtors cannot predict whether the Employee Committee will be successful in its litigation or the amount of the recovery that will ultimately be received.

The Debtors reserve the right to bring additional causes of action against former officers or insiders, as deemed appropriate.

4. Accounts Receivable Collection and Potential Avoidance Actions

Appendix O-I contains a list of accounts receivable collection actions that the Debtors and certain of their affiliates may pursue. If all of such actions are pursued, it is currently estimated that the amounts sought to be recovered could aggregate in excess of $1 billion, however, the Debtors cannot predict with any degree of accuracy whether or how much they will actually collect as a result of the potential litigation identified below. As with all litigation, there is inherent risk and unpredictability, which makes it impossible to determine the overall impact of the potential litigation on the value of the Debtors' estates. Further, for various reasons, the Debtors may ultimately elect not to pursue certain of the potential collection actions identified herein.

Moreover, some of these causes of action may be brought by a combination of Debtors and certain of their affiliates as indicated in the Plaintiffs column below. The Debtors are continuing to review their books and records for additional potential collection actions and intend to pursue such actions against wholesale and retail customers who have not paid amounts due the wholesale and retail Debtors. Additionally, the Debtors are pursuing or may pursue collection actions against other wholesale and retail customers through independent collection agencies or other outside sources. The Debtors are continuing to review potential avoidance actions and may pursue avoidance claims against those wholesale and retail customers, including those listed in Appendix O-I, who received a transfer within the 90 days prior to the Initial Petition Date or any subsequent Petition Date. For a listing of potential avoidance actions that the Debtors have preliminarily identified, refer to Appendix O-II, "Avoidance Actions." Refer to Section IV.C.1., "Pending Litigation," Section IV.E., "Avoidance Actions" and Appendix S: "Additional Pending Avoidance Actions," for a discussion of pending litigation related thereto. Refer to Section VII.C.1., "Categories of Remaining Assets," for a discussion of the estimated value of the Remaining Assets, which, in some instances, include estimated recoveries on accounts receivables, trading contracts, collection actions and related litigation.

5. Avoidance Actions

Appendix O-II contains a listing of potential avoidance actions for which (i) the Debtors have entered into agreements tolling the statute of limitations, or (ii) it can be argued that, under applicable law, the statute of limitations has not run. Section 108(a) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that if a statute of limitations under nonbankruptcy law has not expired prior to the filing of a bankruptcy petition, then a debtor may bring a cause of action before the later of (a) the end of such limitations period, including any suspension of such period occurring on or after the commencement of the bankruptcy case and (b) two years after the petition date. Many of the Debtors' potential causes of action are held by ENE or ENA and, as a result, the statute of limitations on these causes of action may have expired on December 2, 2003. However, except as may be otherwise provided in the Plan or agreed to by the Debtors, any and all Claims may be subject to avoidance actions that, if not filed by December 2, 2003, may still be asserted as affirmative defenses to the allowability of such Claims in accordance with section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code, subject to the rights of Creditors to contest the availability thereof.

At the time this Appendix was prepared, the Debtors preliminarily identified amounts that they might potentially seek to avoid, in the approximate aggregate amount of $50 million to $55 million. However, the Debtors cannot predict with any degree of accuracy whether they will actually prevail in avoiding such amounts. As with all litigation, there is inherent risk and unpredictability, which makes it impossible to determine the overall impact of the potential litigation on the value of the Debtors' estates. Further, for various reasons, the Debtors may ultimately elect not to pursue certain of the potential avoidance actions identified herein.

Additionally, the Debtors preliminarily identified certain guaranty claims that they might potentially seek to avoid, resulting in avoidance of the amount a creditor holding a guaranty claim seeks to recover in its proof of claim. As the Debtors would not seek affirmative relief in any potential guaranty avoidance action, the Debtors cannot value such potential actions at this time.

The Debtors are continuing to review potential avoidance actions and, to the extent that the applicable statute of limitations has not run, may pursue avoidance claims against any party who received a transfer within the 90 days or other applicable period prior to the Initial Petition Date or any subsequent Petition Date. Any Person (including, but not limited to those Persons listed in response to Item 3 on the Statement of Financial Affairs for any Debtors) that has received a transfer of property, in which any of the Debtors' estates has an interest, during the appropriate look back period should assume that the transfer is being investigated and that an avoidance action will be commenced if such action is deemed to have merit.

6. Other Actions

The Debtors have determined that they may have certain claims or causes of action outside of bankruptcy against certain counterparties to various contracts, customers, vendors, joint ventures, or other third parties arising from the Debtors' day to day prepetition and postpetition activities.

The Debtors are investigating such claims and causes of action and reserve the right to institute litigation upon a determination that valid claims exist.

Appendix P: Calculation of Distributions Under the Plan

Appendix P: Calculation of Distributions Under the Plan

A. Introduction

The Plan provides for distribution of Plan Currency, Litigation Trust Interests, and Special Litigation Trust Interests to holders of Allowed Unsecured Claims (excluding the Portland Debtors). Plan Currency consists of a mixture of Creditor Cash, PGE Common Stock, CrossCountry Common Equity, and Prisma Common Stock, which will be distributed in accordance with the Plan. Based on the Debtors' current estimates of asset values and Allowed Claims, Plan Currency is expected to be approximately two-thirds in the form of Creditor Cash and approximately one-third in the form of Plan Securities.

Holders of Allowed Convenience Claims are entitled to receive Cash distributions in an amount equal to such Creditor's pro rata share of the Convenience Claim Distribution Percentage for the Debtor against which the Allowed Convenience Claim is held.

Appendix P should be read in conjunction with Appendix C, "Estimated Assets, Claims and Distributions." Appendix C provides creditors with an understanding of the different components of the 30/70 global compromise on substantive consolidation and sets forth the estimated assets and Claims of each of the Debtors, as well as the estimated Creditor recoveries under the Plan. Building on this base of information in Appendix C, Appendix P is intended to enable Creditors to better understand the recoveries they are entitled to receive under the Plan by setting forth the estimated calculation of Plan distributions to (i) a hypothetical creditor holding various types of Unsecured Claims in the amount of $1,000,000, and (ii) a hypothetical creditor holding various types of Convenience Claims in the amount of $50,000. The assumptions stated in Appendix C also apply to Appendix P, and are incorporated by reference. Refer to Appendix C, "Estimated Assets, Claims and Distributions," for additional information regarding the methodology used to calculate these estimates.

In addition, the tables below reflect the estimated number of Claims in each Class. It should be noted that these estimates include Claims filed by agents or fiduciaries on behalf of syndicates, bondholders, and other similarly situated Creditors; therefore, these estimates may under-represent the number of Creditors ultimately entitled to receive distributions under the Plan, to the extent applicable.

B. Variance

The Debtors have prepared the estimated calculation of Plan distributions based on certain assumptions that they believe are reasonable under the circumstances. These assumptions are described below. The calculations have not been compiled or examined by independent accountants. The Debtors make no representations regarding the accuracy of the calculations or any ability to achieve forecasted results. Many of the assumptions underlying the calculations are subject to significant uncertainties. Inevitably, some assumptions will not materialize, and unanticipated events and circumstances may affect the ultimate financial results. Therefore, the actual results achieved may vary from these estimated calculations, and the variations may be material. In evaluating the Plan, Creditors are urged to examine carefully all of the assumptions underlying the estimated distributions.

The values set forth in this table are estimates. As such the Debtors make no guarantees regarding actual distributions. However, the values set forth for Allowed Convenience Claims accurately reflect distributions that will be made. The number of Claims shown are estimates only and may differ from the number of Claims entitled to vote in each Class. Actual values, Claims, and recoveries may differ materially from these estimates.

If the estimated value of assets (including, but not limited to, estimates of available Creditor Cash, recoveries on the Remaining Assets, and the valuation of the equity in PGE, CrossCountry and Prisma to be distributed to Creditors) ultimately varies significantly from actual results, then actual Creditor recoveries will vary significantly as well. Similarly, as the estimated value of assets are forward-looking statements based upon information available to the Debtors, the actual results may vary significantly. Refer to Section XIV.C., "Variance from Valuations, Estimates and Projections," and Appendix C, "Estimated Assets, Claims and Distributions," for additional information.

C. Assumptions

The following are the significant assumptions and limiting conditions utilized in preparation of the estimates:

1. As discussed in Section VIII.A.12., "Potential Sale of PGE" of the Disclosure Statement, ENE has entered into a stock purchase agreement to sell PGE to TPG. There can be no assurances that this sale will be approved by the Bankruptcy Court or that it will close. If the sale does in fact close or the common stock of PGE is sold pursuant to another purchase agreement, then the net proceeds will be distributed to Creditors in the form of Creditor Cash. If the sale does not close and PGE is not sold to another purchaser, then PGE Common Stock will be distributed to Creditors pursuant to the Plan. The Schedules of Estimated Recoveries below reflect distributions of PGE Common Stock as if a sale of PGE common stock does not close.
2. To determine the number and amount of Claims, the Debtors relied upon internal Claims data, estimated by using a combination of the Enron Companies' books and records, scheduled Claims, filed Claims, and professional judgment. Such estimates are subject to change and any such changes could have a material effect on Creditor recoveries. The estimates assume that no holders of unliquidated Claims elect into the Convenience Class. The estimates assume that no Allowed Convenience Claims elect out of the Class. Similarly, it is assumed that no other Claims elect into the Convenience Class.

3. Estimated stock share counts and values are based on the assumptions included in the Disclosure Statement regarding the valuation of PGE, CrossCountry, and Prisma. Refer to Section XIV., “Risk Factors and Other Factors to be Considered,” as well as Section VIII., “Portland General Electric Company,” Section IX, “Cross Country Energy Corp.,” and Section X, “Prisma Energy International Inc.,” for additional information regarding the risks attendant with these entities and the industries in which they are involved.
4. Except for the equity to be distributed from PGE, CrossCountry, and Prisma, it is assumed that all other assets will be converted to Cash. However, the Debtors reserve the right to utilize the Operating Trusts and the Remaining Asset Trusts.
5. The estimated total Cash available for distribution was reduced as necessary to satisfy Administrative, Secured, Priority, and Convenience Class Claims.
6. In accordance with the Plan, any holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim against ENA, EPMI, EGLI, EGM, EIM, ENGMC, ENA Upstream, ECTRIC, and ERAC may elect to receive such holder’s Pro Rata Share of One Hundred Twenty-Five Million Dollars ($125,000,000.00) in lieu of all or a portion of the Plan Securities which such holder is otherwise entitled to receive pursuant to the Plan. For purposes of Appendix P, it is assumed that all Creditors eligible for this option will elect to take it. Refer to Section VI.F.3., “Election to Receive Additional Cash Distributions, in Lieu of Partial Plan Securities,” for additional information regarding this option.
7. In accordance with the Plan, pursuant to the compromise and settlement set forth in the Disclosure Statement and in the TOPRS Stipulation, each holder of TOPRS may elect to receive additional distributions of Cash in lieu of distributions of CrossCountry Common Equity, PGE Common Stock, and Prisma Common Stock to which such holder is entitled to receive derivatively on account of the Allowed ETS Debenture Claims held by EPF I and EPF II. For purposes of Appendix P, it is assumed that all holders of TOPRS will fully exercise this option. Refer to Section VI.F.8., “Election of TOPRS Holders to Receive Additional Cash Distributions in Lieu of Partial Plan Securities,” for additional information regarding this option.
8. In accordance with the Plan, each holder of an Allowed General Unsecured Claim against a Wind Debtor or an Allowed Wind Guaranty Claim may elect to receive additional distributions of cash in lieu of distributions of CrossCountry Common Equity, PGE Common Stock and Prisma Common Stock to which such holder is entitled to receive.

9. The estimated number of Claims in each Class include Claims filed by agents or fiduciaries on behalf of syndicates, bondholders, and other similarly situated Creditors; therefore, these estimates may under-represent the number of Creditors ultimately entitled to receive distributions under the Plan, to the extent applicable.
10. At the suggestion of the ENA Examiner, Litigation Trust Claims will be deemed to be assets of ENE and will be defined as all claims and causes of action asserted by or on behalf of the Debtors or the Debtors' estates (i) in the MegaClaim Litigation, (ii) in the Montgomery County Litigation (other than claims and causes of action against insiders or former insiders of the Debtors), and (iii) of the same nature against financial institutions, law firms, accountants and accounting firms, certain of the Debtors' other professionals and such other Entities as may be described in the Plan Supplement. The definition of "Litigation Trust Claims" is not intended to include or constitute a release of – and in fact does not include or constitute a release of – any claims or causes of action that Entities who are not Affiliates of the Debtors may have against other Entities that are not Affiliates of the Debtors.

As a result of the Litigation Trust Claims being deemed to be assets of ENE, holders of Allowed Intercompany Claim and Allowed Guaranty Claims against ENE will share in any recoveries on Litigation Trust Claims as Creditors of ENE. Creditors of ENE's subsidiaries without Enron Guaranty Claims will nevertheless share in potential recoveries on Litigation Trust Claims (i) to the extent the value of ENE's assets are conveyed to such Creditor indirectly by virtue of distributions made on account of Allowed Intercompany Claims and (ii) by virtue of ENE's contribution to the modified substantive consolidation scenario that forms the basis of the 30/70 formula for distributions.

In addition, the Plan will reallocate a portion of the distributions to be made on account of Allowed Enron Guaranty Claims resulting from recoveries on Litigation Trust Claims in accordance with the following formula: (a) 80% of such distributions will be retained by holders of such Allowed Enron Guaranty Claims and (b) 20% of such distributions will be deemed redistributed to holders of General Unsecured Claims against the subsidiary Debtor that is the primary obligor corresponding to such Allowed Enron Guaranty Claims; provided, however, that, to the extent a holder of an Allowed Enron Guaranty Claim also holds a General Unsecured Claim for the primary obligation against the subsidiary Debtor, such General Unsecured Claim will be excluded from the redistribution under part (b) above.

At this time, the Debtors are unable to prepare a valuation of the causes of action to be transferred to and prosecuted by the Litigation Trust. Any such valuation would be highly speculative and unreliable, however, such a valuation is required in order to determine the distributions of any recoveries on the Litigation Trust Claims to the Debtors and their respective Creditors. Accordingly, the Debtors are unable to estimate these distributions at this time.

To the extent the Litigation Trust is formed, then (a) on or after the Effective Date, if the board of directors of Reorganized ENE and, unless previously dissolved, the Creditors' Committee determine that the aggregate distributions of Plan Currency, Litigation Trust Interests and Special Litigation Trust Interests (to the extent either or both trusts are formed) equal one hundred percent (100%) of the Allowed Claims of more senior classes and would thus permit distributions to be made to holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims, Enron Preferred Equity Interests and/or Enron Common Equity Interests, then the Debtors or Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, shall modify the Plan to provide for such distributions to be made, and (b) within thirty days following the creation of the Litigation Trust, the Litigation Trust Board shall inform the Litigation Trustee of the value of the assets transferred to the Litigation Trust. Refer to Section XI.A, "Litigation Trust" for additional information regarding this trust, valuation and reporting for federal income tax purposes. The Plan contemplates that income or gain, if any, generated from the prosecution or settlement of causes of action by the Litigation Trust will not be taxable at the trust level, but will flow through to the holders of Litigation Trust Interests.

11. Special Litigation Trust Claims (consisting of all claims and causes of action, including avoidance actions, commenced by or on behalf of the Debtors or the Debtors' estates against those current or former insiders of the Debtors named as defendants in Montgomery County Litigation and claims of a similar nature against insiders and former insiders) will be deemed to be assets of ENE and treated in the same manner as Litigation Trust Claims.

At this time, the Debtors are unable to prepare a valuation of the causes of action to be transferred to and prosecuted by the Special Litigation Trust. Any such valuation would be highly speculative and unreliable, however, such a valuation is required in order to determine the distributions of any recoveries on the Special Litigation Trust Claims to the Debtors and their respective Creditors. Accordingly, the Debtors are unable to estimate these distributions at this time.

To the extent the Special Litigation Trust is formed, then (a) on or after the Effective Date, if the board of directors of Reorganized ENE and, unless previously dissolved, the Creditors' Committee determine that the aggregate distributions of Plan Currency, Litigation Trust Interests and Special Litigation Trust Interests (to the extent either or both trusts are formed) equal one hundred percent (100%) of the Allowed Claims of more senior classes and would thus permit distributions to be made to holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims, Enron Preferred Equity Interests and/or Enron Common Equity Interests, then the Debtors or Reorganized Debtors, as the case may be, shall modify the Plan to provide for such distributions to be made, and (b) within thirty days following the creation of the Special Litigation Trust, the Special Litigation Trust Board shall inform the Special Litigation Trustee of the value of the assets transferred to the Special Litigation Trust. Refer to Section XI.B, "Special Litigation Trust" for additional information regarding this trust, valuation and reporting for federal income tax purposes. The Plan contemplates that income or gain, if any, generated from the prosecution or settlement of causes of action by the Special Litigation Trust will not be taxable at the trust level, but will flow through to the holders of Special Litigation Trust Interests.

Appendix Q: Subordinated Claims

Appendix Q:

A. Introduction

The following Appendices reflect Claims that the Debtors have preliminarily identified as contractually subordinated, Claims that the Debtors are seeking to subordinate through adversary or other proceedings, and other potentially subordinated Claims that the Debtors intend to seek to subordinate. Appendix Q-I sets forth Claims that the Debtors have preliminarily identified as contractually subordinated or potential contractually subordinated claims. Appendices Q-II and Q-III set forth Claims that the Debtors are seeking or could potentially seek to subordinate pursuant to sections 510(b) and 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code, respectively. Appendix Q-IV sets forth Claims that the Debtors have preliminarily identified as potentially subordinated penalty claims. Refer to Section I.C.2., “Summary of Classification and Treatment” for a description of the treatment of subordinated Claims under the Plan.

The Debtors reserve the right to object to and/or seek subordination of, in whole or in part, any of the Claims listed herein. In addition to the Claims listed herein, the Debtors have filed certain avoidance actions wherein they seek, inter alia, subordination of certain Claims. Refer to Section IV.C.1., “Pending Litigation” for a discussion of such litigation. As a result, certain Claims may either be disallowed by the Bankruptcy Court or subordinated, in whole or in part. The Debtors make no representations regarding whether the Claim amounts represented herein will be allowed or subordinated, in whole or in part, by the Bankruptcy Court and therefore the amounts identified below are subject to change.

As the Debtors continue their diligence efforts, the Debtors may identify additional Claims not reflected herein that they may seek to subordinate. Refer to Appendix O: “Potential Causes of Action” for a list of potential causes of action identified by the Debtors. The Debtors may seek to subordinate the Claims of any potential defendant identified therein. Unless the Debtors determine that certain of the Claims identified herein are not be subject to subordination, the Debtors intend to seek subordination of such Claims.

Appendix Q-I: Contractually Subordinated Claims

This Appendix lists Claims that the Debtors have preliminarily identified as contractually subordinated claims and the Debtors intend to seek subordination of such Claims. The following debt instruments issued by ENE have been identified as contractually subordinated.

INSTRUMENT/CUSIP OR ISIN	AMOUNT OUTSTANDING AS OF THE INITIAL PETITION DATE (UNLESS OTHERWISE NOTED)
6.75% Senior Subordinate Debentures due 07/01/05	$164,123,200
8.25% Senior Subordinate Debentures due 09/15/12	$104,563,109
7.75% Subordinated Debentures due 2016	$184,275,878
7.75% Subordinated Debentures due 2016, Series II	$138,218,479

The Debtors reviewed the proofs of claim filed and preliminarily determined that the Claims listed below are subordinated pursuant to certain debt or preferred equity agreements. A number of the claims listed below are related to the debt instruments described above and the financing transactions more specifically described in Section III.D., “Debtors’ Prepetition Debt Securities.” Additionally, certain of the claims listed below were filed against “unknown” Debtors. For purposes of calculating recovery percentages, such Claims have been treated as if they were filed against ENE. The Debtors have not objected to certain of these Claims, but reserve the right to do so.

Appendix Q-II: Claims Subordinated Under Section 510(b)

The Debtors have reviewed the Claims and the Debtors' books and records, and have determined that certain Claims are based on (i) the claimant's purported status as owner of shares of the Debtors' stock and (ii) alleged damages arising from the purchase or sale of securities. These Claims may be subject to subordination pursuant to section 510(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, and, accordingly, the Debtors intend to seek subordination of such Claims.

As of November 7, 2003, the Debtors have filed two omnibus objections seeking subordination of certain of the Claims. (Refer to Docket No. 12789 and Docket No. 14086 of the Chapter 11 Cases for further information regarding the Debtors' objections and the Claims objected to.) On November 7, 2003, the Bankruptcy Court entered an order subordinating 1,099 of these Claims. (Refer to Docket No. 14046 of the Chapter 11 Cases for information regarding the order.) The Debtors are seeking an order subordinating an additional 35 of these Claims. The hearing is currently scheduled for hearing on January 22, 2004.

In addition, the Debtors may seek to subordinate the Claims of the plaintiffs in the Newby Action and the Tittle Action and the Debtors have sought to subordinate certain claims pursuant to section 510(b) in certain pending adversary proceedings filed by the Debtors.

The Debtors reserve the right to seek to subordinate any additional Claims pursuant to section 510(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and the Debtors intend to seek subordination of any additional Claims that are subject to subordination.

Appendix Q-III: Claims Subordinated Under Section 510(c)

This Appendix lists Claims the Debtors have identified as potentially subordinated pursuant to section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. This Appendix was prepared based on information available to the Debtors at the time and should not be deemed a final determination of the Claim, nor will the information listed herein bear on the final disposition of the Claims identified herein. Substantially all of the Claims listed below were filed by (i) named defendants in the MegaClaim Litigation or (ii) financial institutions on behalf of named defendants in the MegaClaim Litigation. Certain of the Claims were filed in an unliquidated amount or no amount and are reflected as $0.00 in the claimed amount column. However, this does not mean that the Debtors believe there is no liability to such claimants. In conjunction with the MegaClaim Litigation and other pending litigation, the Debtors have sought to have certain of these Claims subordinated and reserve the right to seek to have the remaining Claims subordinated. In addition, the Debtors are investigating whether to seek subordination of other Claims pursuant to section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code, including, but not limited to, the filed or scheduled Claims by or on behalf of financial institutions and other parties who participated in ENE’s revolving credit and letter of credit facilities. The Debtors also reserve the right to (a) amend the MegaClaim Litigation to include additional parties as necessary and (b) seek to subordinate the Claims of any such additional parties.

Section 22.13(b) of the Plan provides that, in the event that a compromise and settlement of a Litigation Trust Claim or a Final Order with respect to a Litigation Trust Claim provides for a waiver, subordination or disallowance of a defendant’s Claim or Claims against one or more of the Debtors, other than ENE, for purposes of computing amounts of distributions, (i) such Claim shall be deemed allowed at the lesser of (y) the “Estimated Allowed Amount” (which shall exclude duplicate Claims) of such Claim (as reflected on the Debtors’ claims management system) and (z) the filed proof of claim with respect thereto; provided however, that, in the event that such proof of claim was filed in a zero-dollar ($0.00), contingent or unliquidated amount, such Claim shall be deemed allowed at the “Estimated Allowed Amount” of such Claim on the Debtors’ claims management system, (ii) such defendant shall be deemed to have assigned such Claim or Claims and right to receive distributions in accordance with the Plan to the Litigation Trust; and (iv) such defendant shall not be entitled to receive distributions from the Litigation Trust on account thereof.

Appendix Q-IV: Subordinated Penalty Claims

This Appendix lists Claims that the Debtors have preliminarily identified as potential subordinated penalty Claims. These Claims were filed by governmental, regulatory or taxing authorities.¹ The Debtors reserve the right to identify additional potential subordinated penalty claims. The Debtors assert that, in accordance with the priority scheme under the Bankruptcy Code, all or part of the Claims listed below are subordinated to General Unsecured Claims. The Debtors reserve the right to seek to have all or part of these Claims subordinated and the Debtors intend to seek such subordination. Although this is the Debtors' contention, the Bankruptcy Court may ultimately conclude that one or more of these claims should not be subordinated. However, it should be noted that the Debtors have negotiated and are in the process of negotiating agreements with certain government agencies regarding the subordination of all or part of their claims. Nonetheless, there can be no assurances that the Debtors will be able to resolve all of these issues consensually.

Appendix R: Dissolved Entities

Appendix R: Dissolved Entities

As of the Initial Petition Date, approximately 775 entities have been sold, merged or dissolved. This Appendix reflects only the 623 entities that have been dissolved or are being dissolved, in accordance with applicable state law dissolution processes from the Initial Petition Date through November 30, 2003. The remaining entities were sold or merged during the same time period.

For all corporations listed herein, the Debtors have filed official dissolution documents in the appropriate governing jurisdiction. Pursuant to applicable laws, certain of these entities are winding down, paying outstanding liabilities and distributing assets and therefore have not been completely shut down. However, none of these entities are presently conducting business.

For all limited liability companies listed herein, all ongoing business activities by such entities have ceased and official dissolution documents have been filed in the jurisdiction of their formation.

Appendix S: Additional Pending Avoidance Actions

Appendix S: Additional Pending Avoidance Actions

This Appendix contains a list of currently pending adversary proceedings wherein the Debtors and certain of their affiliates seek to recover preferential transfers or fraudulent conveyances that are not otherwise discussed in the Disclosure Statement. Refer to Sections IV.C.1.b., “Certain Pending Avoidance Actions” and IV.E., “Avoidance Actions” for additional information regarding pending preference and avoidance actions. In conjunction with the filing of the currently pending avoidance actions, the Debtors have made a good faith determination that the respective plaintiff-Debtors to such actions were insolvent at the relevant times. Each of these adversaries is either in the very early stages of discovery or the deadline for filing an answer had not yet expired. As the Debtors continue their diligence efforts, the Debtors may identify additional avoidance actions not reflected herein. As such, the Debtors reserve the right to identify and institute additional avoidance actions and do not waive any rights with respect thereto. Refer to Appendix O-II for a list of potential avoidance actions that the Debtors and/or certain non-Debtor affiliates may elect to bring.
