Spansion LLC
Cash No.: 09-10692 (KJC)

On June 30, 2003, AMD and Fujitsu Limited ("Fujitsu") organized their Flash memory business as a Delaware limited liability company named FASL LLC, later renamed Spansion LLC, which was 60% owned by AMD and 40% owned by Fujitsu. Since 2003, Spansion LLC has been the principal operating company of Spansion. It is the parent company of Spansion International, Inc. and all other foreign Spansion entities. Spansion LLC has employees, and conducts businesses that generate revenue. It files its own payroll tax returns. It is included in Spansion Inc's federal consolidated and California worldwide unitary tax returns.

Spansion LLC recognizes operating results of its wholly-owned subsidiaries worldwide based on equity method of accounting until its investment amount is reduced to zero. In accordance with US Generally Accepted Accounting Principles, an investor should discontinue recognizing its share of equity method losses when the losses equal or exceed the investor's interest in the investee and the investor should not recognize its share of the investee's subsequent profits until the amount of unrecognized profit equals the amount of any previously unrecognized losses. The balance sheet as of petition date in the report attached has also been revised to reflect the equity method of accounting. In addition, the Company has also revised operating results for March 09 and balance sheet as of petition date as previously filed due to subsequent changes to the books as a result of complex Japan deconsolidation.
